The more things change . . .

Paul Angelle

The phrase has repeated itself thousands of times since it became the theme of this yearbook.

The obvious conclusion, following the ellipsis, would be the old adage—

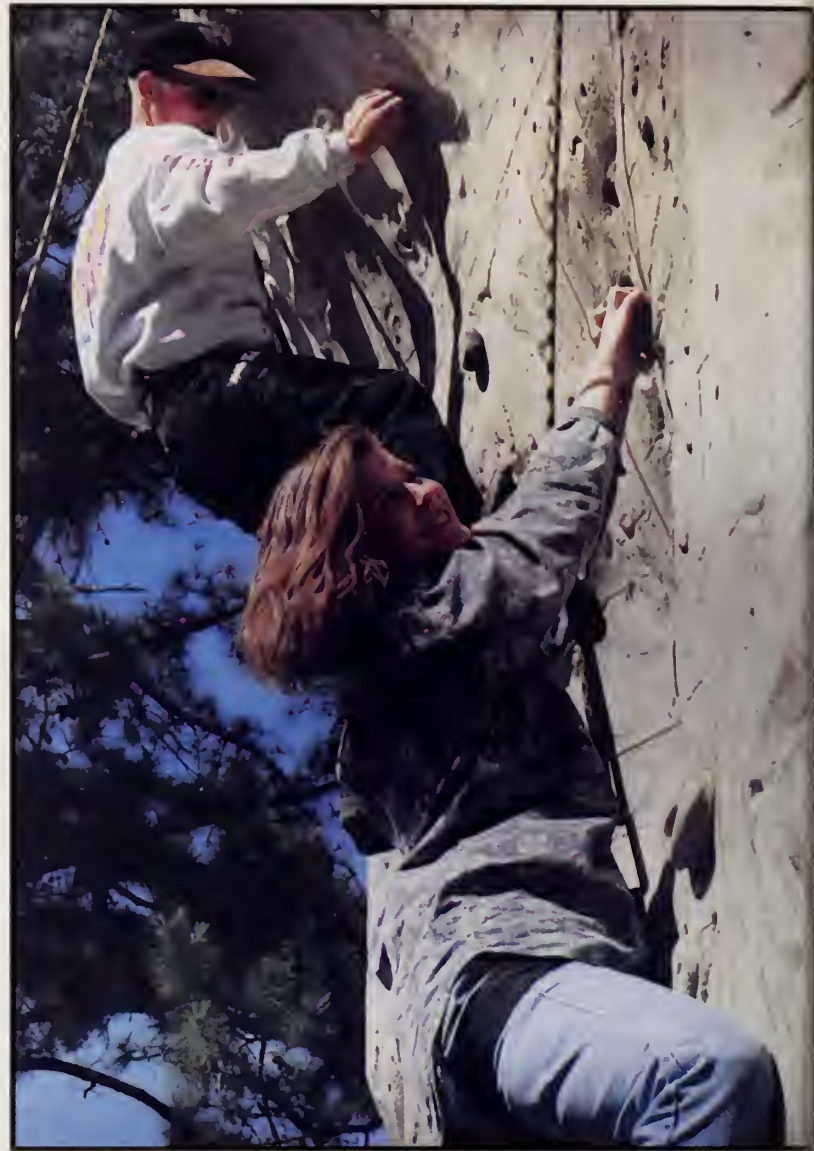

Amy Breaux

The more things stay the same.

That concept is challenged, or perhaps is supported, by annuals such as this one.

Trent Myers

Amy Breau

We, referring to contributors of a yearbook, attempt to do several things. But one thing unavoidable year after year would have to be the fact that the year is recorded.

Even the worst attempts at recording record something.

To say that all things stay the same is not only false, it is somehow irresponsible and damaging.

Life is not static.

Trent Myers

The dynamic nature of all living things transcends itself into the non-living as well as to the living.
Change is contagious, as is tradition.

Paul Angelle

It is not a premise here that a battle ensues between change and tradition. This is more of an attempt to illustrate the notion that the opposing forces of change and tradition can and do work together. This is an attempt to illustrate what happened.

Consider tradition, the solid structure of an institution that it is, as the foundation. The most common foundation we could think of was brick.

Consider change, with all of its controversy, as artwork on the bricks. Some artwork is better than others and endures the test of time. The Last Supper, Leonardo Da Vinci's portrait of Jesus and his disciples on a wall couldn't be compared to the artwork painted on brick walls to create the division pages of this book.

Change isn't always good, it isn't always permanent, but it can be an improvement. If it isn't an improvement, it has the same chance as a beer bottle against a brick wall.

In that case, the more they stay the same.

The Airship Fuji's ground crew consists of men and women who held the craft down by cables.

Airborn, the blimp draws the attention of people on the ground. Unfortunately, some of these people are driving.

Trent Myers

In late spring, when Acadiana residents turned their eyes to the sky, they often spotted an interesting airship—the 193-foot long Airship Fuji blimp. The 15,000 pound lighter-than-air vessel was touring the nation promoting the film company's sponsorship of World Cup USA 94. The red, white, and blue of the World Cup was added to Fuji's own red, white, and green. In addition to the 6-foot letters on the blimp's side advertising sponsorship of the World Cup, the official ball and flag logo was prominently displayed on the blimp's underbelly.

Blimp rides were by invitation only and lasted approximately one hour. The 37-foot gondola below the blimp has room for eight passengers and two pilots. Passengers peered out of large openable windows and enjoyed soft drinks from the blimp's bar. There was also a full lavatory in case the need arose. The local cruise included at least one orbit of Lafayette. The captain also took requests for passes over special interest sites including the USL campus and the Cajundome.

Blimp Ride

Trent Myers

Only up close can the American Flag or the support cables be seen when the blimp is in flight.

Trent Myers

Normal cruise speed is 40 mph, but the blimp can travel as fast as 65 mph. It cruises at an altitude between 1000 and 5000 feet. It's grounded when winds are greater than 25 knots or when there is rain, snow, or fog.

Senior Capt. John McHugh said the Fuji blimp is "one of today's most state-of-the-art airships." McHugh, who grew up in Lakehurst, N.J., said that airships always held a special fascination for him and when the opportunity arose for him to train as an airship pilot, he jumped at it. He joined the Fuji tour in 1989. "For me," he said, "it's a nice feeling to know that I'm a part of making it all happen."

The flying billboard operates 48 weeks a year, crisscrossing the United States at least four times. With over 20,000 miles clocked annually on its odometer, the airship serves as an aerial ambassador from the eastern seaboard to the Golden Gate and from the twin cities to the Texas plains. Outfitted with an envelope that's large enough to hold 233,100 cubic feet of helium or over 700,000 soccer balls, the Fuji blimp is almost two-thirds the length of a soccer field and is about five stories high.

The tour requires a minimum of seven vehicles including the 15-ton mast truck, engineering and fuel trucks, two passenger vans, a full size Ford Bronco and Ford Explorer. A 15-member ground crew is responsible for bringing the blimp off and on mast, setting up the mooring site, and maintaining a 24-hour, two-man pressure watch.

The first Fuji blimp was launched in 1984 in conjunction with Fujifilm U.S.A.'s sponsorship of the Los Angeles Olympics. Hovering over the games, the ship proclaimed a giant "Welcome" to spectators and athletes and provided an ideal surveillance platform to ensure the stadium's security. In the years to follow, the blimp continued the tradition of flying over many of the nation's most prestigious sporting events and has provided millions of viewers around the world with live coverage of Major League Baseball games, NFL and college football games, PGA and LPGA tournaments, and the U.S. Tennis Open. In 1986, the airship captured its own trophy by taking first place in the world's first Giant Blimp Race staged in conjunction with the Statue of Liberty's Centennial Celebration in New York.

Unlikely Hobby Yields Unique Experiences

A ground-level view of the football field really illustrates the disparity in sizes among football players. Here, 5-foot-9 inch Dave Megget of the New York Giants needs to look up to number 66, 6-foot-5 inch William Roberts.

Paul Angelle

In December of 1993, much to the surprise of my close friends and family, I received my diploma from USL.

I graduated.

That unforeseeable outcome, that impossible dream, that unrealistic goal . . . became a reality; I had my degree. After filtering the haze that surrounded my obvious happiness, however, I began to think about the future.

How is it possible that someone could have attended college, made passing grades, and have placed no consideration about the future?

Actually the truth is that I wanted to be a writer, and it seems that all of the best writers were out-of-work lawyers. So, I was going to go to law school. I had it all planned out, but this planning meant very little when I decided I didn't want to go to law school.

I had my degree in political science with minors in both English and criminal justice. So my choice of which field to enter was clear... photography.

Sports photography in particular became my forté. I wormed my way onto a newspaper's staff and scammed press credentials for all sorts of sporting events.

It started with USL sports events—softball games, football games, plays etc. Then, I stepped up to pro football and basketball games. The extra experience was nice, but I had to spend more money than I made on photo equipment to be able to take high-quality pictures.

There are some dangers associated with the sideline. This play ended up out-of-bounds and the photographer to my left almost broke a leg.

Paul Angelle

Now, I'm a regular on the Saints' sidelines and backstage at Cajundome music shows. I've even been spotted at the Summit in Houston while the Rockets were on their way to an NBA championship. NHL hockey is pretty intense as well.

I'm mixing with people at the highest levels of the craft of photography. The only related class that I ever took was photojournalism, and I rarely went to that class.

This brings up an interesting question: Was the college experience, in any situation, a waste of time?

The answer is probably debatable, but through my involvement in the school newspaper, the USL yearbook, and other campus organizations, I made contacts. The same type of contacts people make in the Greek organizations or on athletic teams.

The process of meeting people occurs constantly at USL as well as on other campuses across the nation. And there is definitely truth to the adage; "It's not what you know, it's who you know." ■

There were some impressive lobbying efforts heard by players. Most people don't realize how articulate these athletes are.

Outstanding Senior Receives a Promise of Tomorrow

As a result, Hitachi and the College Football Association have organized a program designed to address this need. They have created the Hitachi Promise of Tomorrow Program, which offers a football trainer, senior player, or graduate student a $5,000 scholarship in the pursuit of post graduate study or for certification in the field of education. Hitachi and the CFA have offered 67 College Football Association member institutions the opportunity to award the scholarship to outstanding student athletes.

Mike Dawson, a USL sports medicine student, was one of the 67 outstanding individuals selected to receive a $5,000 scholarship to continue his studies in the field of education. "This offers Mike an opportunity to do what he enjoys while learning more about people and life," said Sherry LeBas, an assistant athletic director at USL.

The USL athletic department offers students experience in working with athletes on a regular basis. The Hitachi Program is an excellent program that provides opportunities to students through athletics and combines academics with athletics.

"This program is a positive way to help students continue their education," LeBas said. According to LeBas, Mike Dawson's outstanding characteristic is "his love for people and wanting to help people. Mike is dedicated, energetic, caring, a future teacher and good role model," said LeBas. His goal is to make elementary and high school sports arenas a safer place for tomorrow's students athletes.

One of the best things about the program is its "attention to draw dedicated men and women to pursue a career in education," LeBas added. "We need good role models such as Mike Dawson out there to help us look forward . . . into our future." ■

80's Nostalgia Peaks in Early 90's

Animal logos on sports shirts were the norm for what seems like yesterday to some.

What goes around comes around. Every decade seems to come back to haunt us sooner or later. The sixties, bell-bottoms and all, hit big again a couple of years ago. Last year, disco returned with a vengeance with the comeback of the seventies.

Now, to the horror of those of us who lived through it once, eighties nostalgia has swept the nation. That's right! The eighties are back. Grab your Rubik's Cube and brush up on your break-dancing skills.

What do you remember most about the eighties? Maybe it's the Polos with turned-up collars. Maybe it's the music. The eighties produced a lot of one-hit bands that we now see on those "Whatever happened to . . ." shows on VH1. Maybe you can count how many dates you went on to the mall. Let's hope that part of the eighties stays in the eighties.

The eighties was a time when blue eye liner and glossy lipstick was plastered to the face of almost every girl. Hair was permed, moussed, and feathered, with enough hairspray applied to keep most counter-top appliances suspended in mid-air.

In the eighties, Moon Unit Zappa made being a valley girl, like, tubular. The Beastie Boys urged kids to fight for their right to party. There were also those forgotten bands lost in the audio abyss. Remember Men at Work, Frankie Goes to Hollywood, and Toni Basil? If you don't, better rush down to your nearest record store and check it out—lest you be unhip.

Movies from the eighties had a cinematic style all their own. A lot of the stars of the big screen were first discovered in the eighties. Who could forget Sean Penn as Spicoli in Fast Times at

The More Things Change . . .

Amy Breaux

Barry Thurman

Ronald Reagan, the U.S. president that will forever be associated with the 80's, held office for eight out of ten years in that decade.

Miniskirts and oversized earrings often found the spotlight in the 80's.

Ridgemont High? Think of how many stars came out of the movies The Outsiders and The Breakfast Club. Also noteworthy is Nicholas Cage's punk hair in Valley Girl, whose soundtrack has just been released. The eighties was the decade of the cinematic genius.

The fads of the eighties were/are questionable. Rubik's Cubes gave people nothing but headaches. Tokens of affection between two lovers in the eighties were his and her matching earrings. How many different Swatch watches did you own? Probably over three. And how many of you can honestly say that you owned a copy of the Preppie Handbook?

Fads in the eighties were illogical and impractical. Necklaces were even a hassle. The two kinds that were popular were add-a-beads, which were simply chains that people had to buy all of the individual beads for, and twist beads, which were simply strings of beads that girls wrapped around each other and clasped them with ugly silver pieces of metal.

The best thing about the eighties was the clothes. The best thing? At least the most interesting. Acid-washed jeans and neon t-shirts put teens in the height of fashion. Very popular were the white socks and penny loafers, the la Michael Jackson look. You were not cool if you did not own a Members Only jacket and Reeboks were the only sneakers to buy. Girls were cool in sailor shirts and pastel pants; while guys were hot in Polo shirts and dress jackets. When planning on copying the style of the eighties, never forget to turn up your collar.

In the eighties, Madonna made the underwear-as-outerwear look popular. This style was taken to new heights by the thousands of Madonna wanna-bes that ran amok throughout the malls of America. In '86 when country music hit the big time, no self-respecting cowpoke would be caught dead without a denim jacket.

The eighties were definitely a time of fond memories for most people. Now Americans can be seen again in pastels and duck boots. So break out the old Cindy Lauper albums and pull on your parachute pants because the eighties are back. ■

Ku Klux Klan Stirs Emotions on Campus

During the spring semester of 1994, the Invisible Knights of the White Kamellia made two attention-getting appearances on our campus. The appearances not only sparked the interest of students but also alarmed campus officials.

The visit even triggered the interest of several local television stations who managed to get footage of the event.

Many students tried to dispute the fact that the KKK should even be allowed on campus. They questioned the fact that the university administration would even allow the visit to take place. However, USL was only following the same procedures as when any other group wants to visit our campus. The denial of the university to allow any group to peacefully assemble would be denying the right guaranteed to it in our nation's Constitution.

The first visit by the Klansmen was March 18 and concluded early because of the disturbance it was causing, not only to the students, but also to the administration.

Nevertheless, this was not the end of the KKK. The group requested to make a second appearance at the University and permission was granted. Students as well as faculty members and administration prepared for the second visit.

Shawn Wilson, SGA president at the time of the demonstration, told The Vermilion that the second Klan visit would be different primarily because students would be more prepared.

"Last time, everybody was in Groucho's watching the basketball game. All of a sudden someone came in yelling, 'The Klan is here! The Klan is here!' This time I think it is significant to say that a lot of students feel that they have better things to do. Those that are here are here to see something happen, and I don't think students are going to let anything happen this time," Wilson said.

At one demonstration, one group of students handed out fliers to passers by asking them to ignore the Klan representatives. The students said they were trying to encourage people not to give the Klan the time of day and felt that this was the best way of doing so.

The university's NAACP chapter faculty advisor felt that a more direct demonstration against the Klan should have been taken. David Chretien told The Vermilion that he didn't think the Klan should be ignored. "Racism should be confronted. I think what the flyers have done is let the white students in here to be indoctrinated and kept the black students away. The Ku Klux Klan has to know that nobody fears them. Students should walk up to them, get their literature, read it, throw it in the garbage in front of their face, laugh at them," continued Chretien.

Chretien was not alone in his opinion, however, many students did differ. A Vermilion headline stated, "Students Treat Klan Visit With Indifference." This article was only one of many that was featured in The Vermilion concerning the Klan visit. Other articles of interest had headlines such as "Hit KKK Where it Hurts," "Just Ignore KKK," and "Hate Mongers Don't Deserve the Pleasure of a Riot."

The Klan visit did stir up some attention in the USL community, but the students, faculty, and administration survived. ■

Easier
Drop/Add
System
Lets Students
Do Things
at Home

The new drop/add system suffered through some growing pains this past semester, causing some students to pine for the old days. However, with a few adjustments, Dean of Enrollment Management Jimmy Clarke promises things will get better.

Students complained of having to wait up to two hours in line and finding the phone lines completely jammed on the first two days of drop/add. Clarke acknowledged the problem stating that the lunchtime crowd on Monday and Tuesday overwhelmed the system. However, he reported that not everyone had such difficulty.

In a survey of more than 300 students, Clarke found that seven percent reported waiting in line over two hours. The survey also revealed that 44 percent waited less than a half hour. Overall, the survey reported that 76 percent had a positive reaction to the new system, and 72 percent preferred the new system to the old one.

"I think they should go back to the old paper way," one student said. "At least you could put your name on a waiting list. Some of the people I was waiting in line with hadn't even registered yet. They were just looking to get into any class they could."

Clarke said that this complaint was particularly illuminating.

"With the 24 percent who did not like the change," he began, "you've got people who figured out the system and knew how to play the game. Plus, you have some students who never preregister because some felt that they could get a better schedule by simply hanging around the tables and pouncing on classes as they were dropped."

However, he did promise some changes to better handle the first two days.

First, he promised "express lines." These would be lines designed to handle specific problems or changes, such as one line for people who want their schedule printed, one for people who want to just drop a class, and so forth.

Secondly, he stated that the system will add at least eight and possibly as much as 16 additional phone lines. Currently, the system uses 22 lines.

Likewise, students who went to the Conference Center complained that in a room full of terminals, the system used only seven. Clarke responded that one of the first problems Registrar Wiltz Champagne discovered is that the mainframe system cannot handle a large number of users at once. However, Clarke also stated that, too, was being addressed.

Clarke also stressed that those students who wish to go back to the old system, seem to have forgotten the problems of the old system.

"You had to wait just as long, if not longer the old way," he said. "For example, for the math or business drop/add stations lines would fill the stairwells and the hallways. Again, I think you can attribute most of the complaints to students who had figured out the old system and were uncomfortable with the new one."

Additionally, he stressed that the faculty and department heads preferred the new way. In a letter to faculty and staff, Champagne stated that the amount of paper processed and reduced was from 6000 in 1993 to 3377 for 1994. Likewise, the number of successful adds, a measure of student success in finding a course, increased by approximately 8000.

Clarke stated that this bodes well for the future. He would like for people to get out of the drop/add mentality, and do schedule adjustments all the way up to and just before the first day of school.

"I would like to envision two days of drop/add," he concluded. "We waste a week of school, presently. If we could get people to register early and for us to work on better management of courses and availability, I know it will work out for the better." ■

“It’s getting bigger and bigger each year and we’re real excited about it,” says Sarah Hamilton, UPC president.

Highlighted by the coronation of the king and queen, a parade, and a dance party, this USL Mardi Gras event contains all of the elements of traditional carnival activities.

The Coronation of the King and Queen, held on the Student Union Porch, named King and Queen Jack Franks II and Becky Cazedessus. They were crowned by USL President Ray Authement. The candidates for royalty were nominated by all the organizations and whoever got the baby out of the king cake won the crown.

The Krewe of Roux allows all the organizations to come together and have a mini-parade. The parade rolled through campus and was to be followed by a Mardi Gras Party, supposed to feature the music of New Orleans legend, Dr. John, in the Student Union Parking Lot. But Dr. John wasn't able to make it; he got stuck in New York due to snow the day of the event. At the last minute, UPC supplied Charmaine Neville as the attraction.

The Krewe of Roux, sponsored by UPC special events committee, is chaired by Kara Talbot.

Hamilton stated, "Kara's outstanding leadership, and enthusiasm got the Krewe of Roux rolling again." ■

Lagniappe Day Endures It's Twentieth Birthday

This year marked the 20th anniversary of USL's traditional Lagniappe Day. Lagniappe Day originated in 1974 when the USL basketball team was put on suspension for two years by the NCAA. Raymond Blanco, then Dean of Students, thought the event would boost the student's spirit.

The idea stuck with students and the festival continued after the suspension by the NCAA was lifted. However, in 1987 the festival became an after-class event as opposed to an all-day event. This year, Lagniappe festivities began on Monday, April 18 and continued through Friday, April, 22.

Setting the festival on Monday evening was the Laugh Fest sponsored by the Union Program Council Entertainment Committee.

On Tuesday, the events began with a Reggae concert on the green sponsored by the African American Culture Committee.

Wednesday's events included Fun Flicks also sponsored by the Entertainment Committee.

Thursday's activities consisted mostly of crawfish games and a volley tournament.

Friday at noon was the big kickoff of the week's long awaited Lagniappe Day. It began with the 17th annual Lake Jump by USL alumnus Phil Beridon. It continued throughout the day with a tug-o-war, canoe races, and an SGA basketball game. At 4:30 p.m. crawfish was served. On hand at the festival site were palm readers, caricature artists, and snowballs by Old Tyme Grocery. At 5 p.m. the New Orleans sounds of Irma Thomas got under way.

Although the festival has changed over the years, the tradition continues and students continue to enjoy the festival.

"I attend the festival year after year and think all students should be in attendance," said senior, Franchesca Hamilton. "It not only is a time when you can demonstrate your school spirit but it's a time for us to let our hair down and just enjoy the crawfish and the festival activities."

Jennifer Primeaux, the chairperson of the 1994 Lagniappe Day said, "I love to show school spirit and celebrate.

"It was a great honor for me to play such a major role in this year's festival."

Primeaux also said that without the high-spirited students at USL there would be no Lagniappe Day.

"The students are what make the festival such a great success year after year," she said. ■

PARTY! BUT BEWARE

by Amy Breaux

Despite all of the violent problems at the strip within the past year, every bar seems to still be alive and kicking. In fact, they are thriving. Is the strip really dangerous, or are some people just overreacting about the danger?

To some, the strip is still just a place to get drunk and hang out with friends. These people go to have fun and believe that as long as they stay out of everyone's way, they are safe.

Others, however, sometimes fear the area. Fights are more frequent and guns and knives are fast becoming commonly used when arguments start. Some people are terrified of being an innocent bystander in a fight that turns ugly.

The majority of USL students frequent the strip at least twice a week. Most do not worry about being caught in the middle of a fight or about past fights that have ended with the loss of life. Why worry about something like that when the music is loud and the beer is cheap?

The strip is where students go to meet their friends and maybe even make new ones. Some areas are a little more dangerous than others. People that possess common sense stay away from those areas. That seems easy enough. Most bars on the strip do get rowdy after everyone has been drinking probably more than they should. There is, however, almost always a bouncer on hand to quickly put a halt to fights.

Despite Dangers,
'The Strip' Continues Its Existence

The Loose Caboose hosts one of the most diverse groups of non-conformists on 'The Strip.'

Some people are terrified of being an innocent bystander in a fight that turns ugly.

For most every student, the intentions behind going to the strip is not to fight. It most probably is to drink and dance.

The different bars on the strip offer a variety of atmospheres. Whereas Fat City and Changes are most known for their cheap drink specials, dancing falls into the hands of Maiko's and Nite Caps. Very few clubs on the strip offer a dance floor. Because of the lack of dance clubs, the ones that do possess them are so crowded that seemingly no one can move.

Each bar on the strip has its own personality. Some may be very similar, but there are still striking differences between each; they all attract different people. The people that hang out at Fat City probably will not be seen dancing in Maiko's. In some clubs, the people might be so different, it causes conflict. For the most part, groups still stay to themselves and concentrate on having a good time.

Some students totally loathe the strip and refuse to go there. For these students, there are places like The Cellar, which is below Bisbano's, and Metropolis. These bars offer a more mellowed atmosphere without the tense energy that seems to buzz around the strip.

These alternatives also offer a variety of live entertainment. Metropolis features a band every Saturday night. They host local bands as well as better known alternative acts such as The Skatenigs and former Black Flag guitarist Greg Ginn. Due to the lack of space, The Cellar offers more acoustical artists. Some clubs on the strip have caught on to the live entertainment craze. Nite Caps, McKinley Street Pub, and Shannahan's now give local bands the chance to be heard and maybe gather a small following.

All in all, the strip provides a place for students to go and let off steam after a long week of classes. There are also alternatives to the strip that offer a more relaxed environment. Lafayette is not lacking in places for USL students to party. The hard part is trying to figure out which place to go. ■

Pagan and Wiccan Earth Spirit Witches on Campus

On Sunday afternoons in the quad, you will not find odd chalk symbols inscribed in the cement in front of Doucet hall. Nor will you find long-bearded old men in robes slowly walking around a boiling cauldron mumbling, "Double, double, toil and trouble."

What you will find is a small group of young men and women who honestly believe in the ancient religion of Wicca, which stresses the earth as the source of all power and beauty that we can experience. Its members practice magic rituals, and many call themselves witches, but they stress that the stereotypical cackling hag is very far from the reality of modern day magic use.

Gypsy Dawn, founder of P. a. W. E. S. (Pagan and Wiccan Earth Spirit) described the purpose of the organization. "It's hard for those of us who wish to practice Wicca to find other people who have similar interests," she said. "Here in the Bible Belt, it's difficult to open up to find others who are also Wiccan because few people accept us for what we are. We're here to come together and share ideas and thoughts on our beliefs."

"Some of us are still in our broom closet," she added humorously, "and we're trying to get more people to come out and be proud of the fact that they're Wiccan."

When asked for reasons for being in the group, several members (who asked not to be identified) responded that they were unsatisfied with the traditional religion that they had been brought up in. "What's really important is taking care of this world. Catholicism and religions like it are concerned with the after-life and put no emphasis on this life. We believe that the earth and this life are most important.”

Gypsy stresses that none of their rituals are lewd or satanic in nature. “Many people believe that we are devil worshippers and that we engage in orgies at our ceremonies. Nothing could be further from the truth,” she said.

“Even the belly dancing that we practice comes from ancient eastern tradition,” she continued, “and we consider it a beautiful expression of ourselves, and it isn’t done in a lewd or suggestive manner.”

The first meeting of P. a. W. E. S. was held March 27, 1994. The subject of the Sept. 25, 1994, meeting was soliciting manuscripts for the fall solstice edition of their news letter. Plans were also made to attend ceremonies celebrating Wiccan NewYear, which occurs on Oct. 31. ■

When there are no more spaces, students can get really creative in finding a place to park.

Parking problems are not new at USL. Parking problems are relative—however.

At UCLA, a university somewhat larger than USL, parking spaces run about $1,000 a semester. But that's L.A., things are supposed to be more expensive there.

The $1,000 spaces at UCLA are in parking towers that are located miles from campus. Having to park miles away from campus and travel through daytime L.A. traffic may be an experience few people at USL have ever imagined. There is a shuttle service though at UCLA.

The shuttle buses have no right-of-way against the traffic, and parking spaces in parking towers are usually oversold, so there is no guarantee a space will be at the tower when a student arrives.

But that's L.A., this is La. Here, people are used to parking next to their front door. City buses in Lafayette are for show. The concept of mass transit sits somewhere in the dreamscape of an overcrowded hayride. The slow pace of the locals, ironically linked to impatience, dictates an immense sense of constant urgency.

USL, in the early 1980s, decided to ease the mounting parking problems on campus by implementing a transit system. The plan was designed to allow students to park at Cajun Field and ride a shuttle bus to campus a few blocks away. Today, the lot at Cajun filed rarely reaches half of its capacity.

It seems, though, that students always list a lack of parking spaces as a major problem on campus.

The Vermilion is usually chock full of articles about parking problems. The problems are usually the fact that repeat offenders of parking violations are upset to find that their car has been towed.

According to Lucien Gastineau, director of Parking and Transit, records are kept on a vehicle from August to August—the same time span a parking sticker is valid.

“About 40 vehicles are towed each month from campus,” said Gastineau. “We provide a list of every car that has tickets to University Police.”

After two tickets are given on campus, a vehicle is to be towed. Guy’s Towing, every student’s favorite local company, removes the vehicles. They are proud to admit that a reduced rate is given to cars removed from campus as opposed to cars that are removed from off campus. It’s still around 40 bucks.

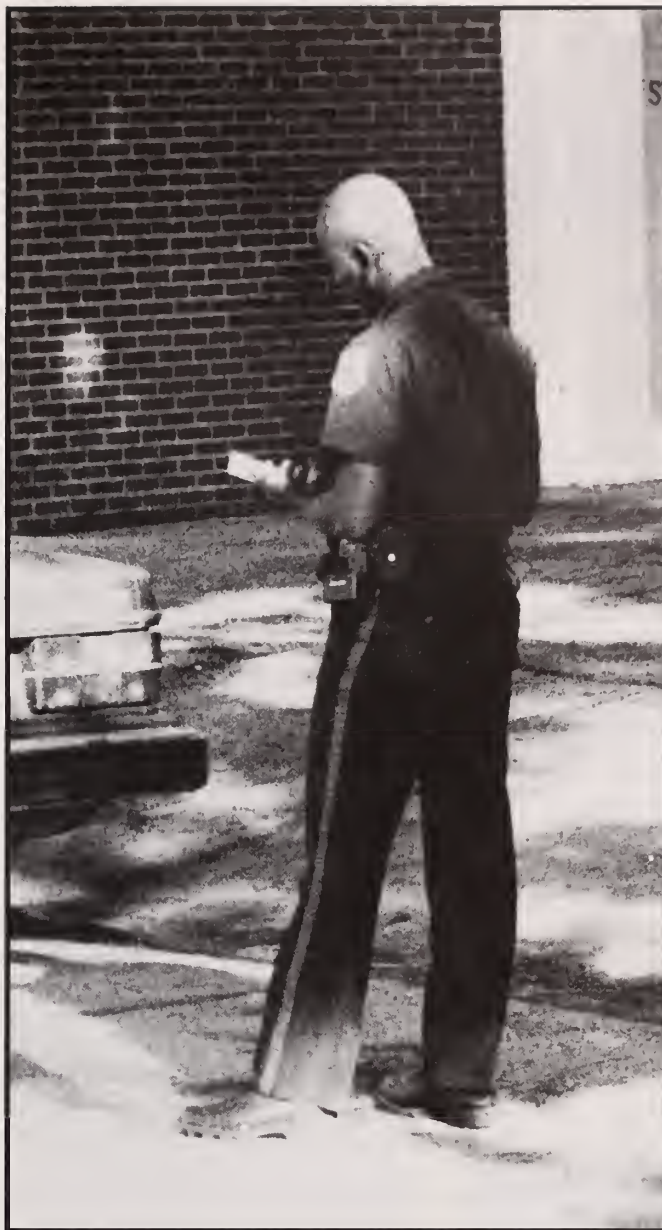

It’s true that many USL students do work. And planning transportation into their schedules, even though it is often necessary, can get difficult.

For those in a hurry, and for the must-park-on-campus situations, pay lots were always available at the student union and at Fletcher Hall. These lots had become full more and more often, so a solution was implemented this fall.

The old retired tennis courts next to the E.K. Long gymnasium on St. Mary Boulevard were transformed into a 215-space pay parking lot. The new lot is lighted at night and costs about a dollar an hour.

Parking problems for teachers in zone 2 (the zone behind M.D. Doucet Hall) had become severe. The situation warranted the implementation of an access gate to fend off illegal parkers.

“Nothing pisses me off more than the lot where I pay to park filled with non-registered cars,” said a Zone 3 sticker holder who asked to remain anonymous. “I think they should tow the first time.” ■

'1-800-

Daniel Lincoln

Students in USL residence halls received a pleasant surprise when they returned to their rooms for the fall 1994 semester.

Over the summer, a new telephone system was installed that revamped the entire on-campus telephone network. The new system replaced the 231 prefixes with 482 prefixes and added options such as LOS (free long-distant calls within a specified radius), a message service for extensions on campus, and automated wake-up calls to students' residence hall rooms.

"The new system has been in the works since last year," said director of Information Services, Steve Mahler.

"The main complaint with the old system was the difficulty people had in making calls on and off campus at night, and this new system should alleviate that problem."

Students using the new phone system seemed pleased.

"I can finally stop calling my mom with '1-800-COLLECT,'" said sophomore Daphne Arvie of Bancroft Hall.

Betty Noel, a freshman from Opelousas, was also excited about the LOS feature. "It's just like my phone back home," she said.

Angelina Briscoe of Bonin Hall seemed pleased with finally being able to make calls, period. "Last semester, when I'd try to use the phone, it would be busy even though no one was on the other one. I like it a lot better now."

The most popular feature of the new phone system by far seemed to be the message center, an option that stores messages for students when they are not able to answer their phones.

Javonna Johnson and Carmeleta Rankin, both of Bancroft Hall, personalized their messages with music, asking callers to leave a message.

Brenda Fry of Bonin Hall summed up the new phone system nicely. "They still need to get call waiting, but overall, it's a lot better than it was before. I'm pleased." ■

According to the USL Code of Student Conduct and Appeal Procedures, Section 15.9, students are prohibited from the "unauthorized use or possession on the campus of firearms, ammunition, explosives, fireworks, or other dangerous weapons, substances or materials."

"The Louisiana State Legislature passed a law in the first session of 1993," said Joey Sturm, assistant Student Affairs vice president assigned to the University Police, "that effectively doubled the penalties for drug-related crimes that occur on campuses throughout the state and made it illegal for any student to possess firearms on campus."

"The law also holds non-students guilty of drug and firearm possession, even if they did not know that they were on a school campus," he continued.

This legislation was passed in order to deter young people from bringing firearms to school and has been nacted with President Bill Clinton's "get tough" stance on crime in mind.

Besides doubling the current penalty for drug-related crimes, the law also has a provision that states a person convicted of possessing a firearm on school property will serve not more than five years hard labor in a state prison.

Though the law was passed with elementary and high school students in mind, the new law also affects college campuses, vo-techs, and any other state-funded schools.

Student Affairs, explained how this new law affects the USL student population.

"The intent of the law was not really to address college campuses," he said. "That part of the legislation was added in as a last minute thing. What they were talking about was the kids that bring guns to the schools. That's where they have to check the school bags, the kids have to have the clear plastic school bags so they can see what's in them. Here we don't have that problem because we're dealing with adults."

When asked why it is illegal for students to possess firearms on campus, Pratt said, "Since we're on a university campus, we want to make sure that all the students feel comfortable here. Sometimes since we have forums of individual ideas and opinions, people sometimes get a little worked up."

"It's not that we think people are gonna be shooting each other up," Pratt added. "We just want to make sure that nothing happens to where somebody gets mad and pulls out a gun. This is so everybody can say what they want and not fear any kind of retribution." ■

Dupré Library plans major renovations

When the Edith Garland Dupré Library was constructed in 1961, not many people on campus expected the building to require expansion. By 1967, however, the library was too small to serve the needs of students and faculty on campus and a renovation project was begun. During that year, a second and third floor were added to the library. These additional floors allowed the library to offer special collections of books for a short time. The new floors also increased the number of volumes that the library could hold and provided more room for students to study and conduct research.

The More Things Change . . .

Almost three decades after the first renovation to the library was performed, the time is again approaching for a major renovation to the library. According to Gloria Cline, director of the library, the funding for the second major renovation of the library will hopefully come from the state. "We're hoping construction will be approved for the new year 1995-96, but we're not sure," Cline said.

The state of Louisiana has awarded a contract for the planned expansion of the library to Steve Oubre, principle architect of the Architects Southwest of Lafayette. The renovations to Dupré Library are expected to include approximately 80,000 additional square feet of physical space. Space for the expansion will be available in the back of the library facing Madison Hall. In addition to the extra space, additions to the library will include new staircases, two new elevators, three additional entrance doors, and two additional exits.

The current seating capacity of 1,000 is expected to be doubled to meet the rising enrollment of the university. The reserve room and reference room will be relocated.

In all, the first floor will be completely renovated and about half of the second and third floors will see major improvements.

Although the state is planning on providing funding for physical improvements and additions, no funding has been provided to acquire additional books for the library or to offset cuts to the library's budget in the past.

Although the renovations are expected to take about two years once initiated, the library should remain open and in full service to students and faculty during semesters, with the library closing only during semester breaks.

The renovations will take some time and will require patience on the part of the people who use the library, but they should make using the library easier and more convenient. Cline said she hopes that this will satisfy the need of all students. ■

Another congested waiting line didn't sit too well with students.

The More Things Change . . .

Students who paid their fees late in the spring had to pay before they could register in the fall.

Gwen Harrison

“The registrar’s office told me I had to pay for being a full-time student, even though I am only taking six hours.”

If you had trouble registering for classes during the fall semester, you were not alone. Over 1,000 students had difficulty scheduling for the semester, due in part to the university’s new prepay policy.

This new policy requires students to pay their academic fees by a certain date. For the fall semester, the date was Aug. 12. If a student does not pay his or her fees by the deadline, a hold is placed on his account with the university. As a result of this hold, the student is not able to register for the next semester until he has paid in advance for the next semester as a full-time student, regardless of the number of credit hours he plans to carry the next semester.

Although inconvenient to some students, the new prepay policy has helped the university to eliminate “ghost students,” students that have registered for classes but chose not to attend or pay for them. The new system has also eliminated the problem of students having to walk from class to class searching for an open section of a class during the first week of the semester.

In some ways, this system has proven to be a positive and successful one. “The system has been working very well,” said Wayne Theriot, director of Business Services. “We are getting students acclimated to paying their fees on time. It has proved that we can reduce the amount of ‘ghost students,’” Theriot added.

Some students, however, feel that the policy is unfair because they may not be able to pay their fees at an early date as the university requires them to do. In some cases, students are required to pay full-time student fees whether or not they plan to be enrolled as a full-time student or not.

Krystal McBride, a liberal arts sophomore, said, “The registrar’s office told me I had to pay for being a full-time student, even though I am only taking six hours. The office also said I would be refunded the differences of the two prices. Then, they told me I could sign up for just six hours if I signed a letter stating that I would not sign up for any more classes this semester.”

Some students lost places in classes because of the new prepay policy. These students had to reschedule their classes and there was no guarantee that the same classes and sections would be available to them when they had to reschedule.

This consequence of not paying for fees in advance also upset many students.

The new policy has proven to be effective for the university. It has helped to smooth out the registration process in conjunction with the new phone system. It is much easier for students to sign up for their classes and get the sections they want if they pay for their classes in advance. ■

A Real Hotel May Be Constructed On USL Property

Brittany Smith

Students could use a university hotel as well as their guests.

This summer, Lafayette Parish Council members agreed to permit businesses that relocate in the USL Research Park a tax credit and other exemptions under a state-created program for university research parks.

In June, USL was contacted by a major hotel chain that is interested in constructing a hotel on USL's campus.

Although the company that proposed the project to USL asked to remain unidentified, the hotel, if built, is expected to have about 150 rooms and be located in USL's Research Park on Cajundome Boulevard near the Southern Science Center (formerly the National Wetlands Research Center).

A 150 room hotel—considered medium-sized in the industry—on USL's campus would not only provide a boost to the Lafayette economy and help to attract visitors in Lafayette to the university's campus, it would also benefit USL students who are currently studying hotel management.

Gerald Breaux, Lafayette Parish tourism director, said the hotel chain's representative contacted him for information on the hotel industry in Lafayette and the possibility of creating a structure at USL. Breaux referred the representative to USL President Ray Authement.

According to Authement, restaurant and hospitality management students could gain hands-on, practical experience working in the hotel.

Authement noted that students in these fields could further develop their skills in a number of areas, including food preparation, daily hotel management and operation, convention planning, and tourism.

USL Hospitality Management Head Linda Vincent-Broussard said that the hotel would mesh well with the knowledge that students gain in the classroom. "The hotel would fit right in with our program which began in January of 1994."

Authement told Cajundome Commission members that USL would donate land from the Research Park to the Cajundome to add a convention center to the dome if USL could connect a hotel operation to both facilities.

The center would cost between $4 million and $10 million, Authement said. Officials are hoping that a new state-tourism tax diversion program will pay for the structure.

Lafayette Parish currently has about 30 lodging facilities, with the total number of rooms available at about 3,300.

In 1993, the hotel industry in the Parish conducted approximately $27.8 million in business, making about $1.1 million in sales tax for the state and about $834,000 for the Parish Tourism Bureau. ■

The on-the-job training a USL hotel could offer would be incredible.

A Fine Day at the # Library

Malcolm D. Carter

After being in place for almost a year, the new library fine policy has found disapproval among USL students, the people it was designed to help.

The new policy, which went into effect in the spring of 1994 after being recommended by the University Library Committee, raised the fine for an overdue library book from ten cents to 25 cents a day per book. The policy does give students a three-day grace period to bring the book in after its due date although on the fourth day, the fine begins at $1.

The money collected from fines does not go the library, but instead, goes to the university's general fund.

The policy was not implemented to punish students, but was put into effect so that students would have a little extra time to turn in their overdue books before being fined, said Charles W. Triche, associate library director.

"The grace period really gives students a break, but those who turn their books in after three days, pay a hefty penalty," Triche said.

Students are not seeing the policy as a positive step for the library, however.

"I think 25 cents per book per day is just ridiculous. It should be more like other libraries, 10 cents a day. I say that is more than enough," said Chad Sonnier, a graduate student in public relations.

Librarian Dale Rourke said that although the fine policy was advertised and has been in place for almost a year, it is still catching most students off guard. "Some students are surprised depending on how many books they have checked out and how long they are overdue," Rourke said.

In addition to changing the fine policy, the library has eliminated some of the extra charges for lost books. In the past, students had to pay a fine and pay for the lost book. Now, all students have to pay is the replacement fee for the book.

"No matter how anyone is reacting to the new fines, the number of fines being paid has drastically reduced. They have gone from 10,263 in 1991-92 to only 6,536 in 1993-94. That says it all," Triche said. ■

Campus Renovations Give USL a Better Look

The new sidewalk near Burke Hall offers a dry path to Olivier Hall.

Kermit Escudier

Walking along the paved walk ways from one place to another, new additions and renovations can be found around various points on campus. Sidewalks, buildings, and parking areas were the main focus of the projects.

Over the summer many of the sidewalks received a necessary face-lift. The reconstruction of the sidewalks that intersected with city streets was funded for and directed by the city of Lafayette. Some of the streets included in the renovations were Taft Street, St. Mary Boulevard, Johnston Street, and University Avenue. The University also repaired some sidewalks at a cost of $25,000. The Student Union appropriated funds for a sidewalk to be built between Burke Hall and Olivier Hall which cost $10,000.

"I feel that these improvements are a positive move for the university," said Physical Plant Director Mike Bridges, in reference to the renovations. Many of the renovations were completed by students who work for the physical plant.

"I'm glad that the university is gradually improving the campus, not only for the appearance, but also for the overall convenience of the students," stated Sarah King, a public relations sophomore.

Sidewalks were only the beginning of the many renovations and additions to the campus. Some lighting and flooring was replaced and electrical work was done in the University Bookstore. Also, the seating in Angelle Hall Auditorium was refurbished at a cost of $80,000. A new pay parking lot, located on the corner of St. Mary Boulevard and Girard Park Drive, was a recent addition constructed for approximately $146,000. It was a necessary addition that was built to help solve some of the parking problems.

A new weight training facility for athletes only was added onto the athletic complex near Cajun Field. "It enables the majority of the athletes to use the facility at once," commented Nelson Stokley, USL head football coach. It is a first-class facility that nearly 300 athletes can use at once. The facility was a necessity for usage and safety purposes.

"It has enabled the university to look more attractive to outstanding athletes," stated Stokley. "Better facilities attract more outstanding athletes which helps the university's athletic department."

The More Things Change . . .

Campus Improvements usually mean campus messes for an extended period of time.

Kermit Escudier

Becky Aloise

Before the sidewalk near Burke went up, tools of mass destruction were brought in to make room.

The USL Union finally has a sign so that visitors can find it.

Two new additions were constructed onto Wharton Hall also. They will be used by the College of Nursing students, each for a separate purpose. One will serve as a classroom to be utilized by approximately 40 students in small nursing classes or graduate studies. The other addition is the Nursing Health Promotion Laboratory. Faculty doing research on patients with certain health problems will use the lab. Senior Nursing students may also use the lab to

"Our enrollment has increased tremendously, so we desperately needed the classroom space," explained Evelyn Redding, dean of the College of Nursing. The College of Nursing has also appropriated funds to build a 100-seat auditorium between the two additions on Wharton Hall. This new auditorium will be used for the larger nursing classes that need the additional space.

"With an increased number of students majoring in nursing, more class space is needed badly," said sophomore nursing student Trish Thomas. "I sometimes have trouble finding a seat in one of my larger classes five minutes before the class starts."

The renovations and additions to the campus are all for the benefit of the students and the appearance of the university overall. The improvements are also being made to equip the university for increased enrollment. ■

Take It All Off Lafayette restricts topless clubs considerably

Mark Chretien

Adult entertainment in the city of Lafayette was very nearly dealt a death blow earlier in 1994 when a new ordinance passed by the Lafayette City Council banned all alcohol sales in clubs featuring "nude" or adult dancing. By a vote of 4 to 1, the council sided with Mayor Kenny Bowen, who felt that such types of "corrupt" entertainment didn't fit in with the conservative values of the city of Lafayette.

Since adult clubs depend on alcohol sales as their main source of revenue, most were forced to shut down. Of the four clubs—Night Moves, The V.I.P. Club, Club Vogue, and the Lucky Lady—featuring adult dancing, only one—the VIP Club—remains open. Has the new law affected business and how has the club been able to circumvent the law and remain open?

"Lafayette has had gentlemen's clubs for over 20 years," said Debbie Riddle, owner and general manager of the V.I.P. Room. "Why all of a sudden are they such a big problem? Because of Kenny Bowen, that's why. He's desperate for any kind of support he can get for the next election, and so he'll attack whatever he feels is 'corrupt' to get votes. He told the City Council that 'those types of places' didn't belong in our city because 'bodies and booze' together cause rape. That's ridiculous. In the eight years that I've run both Night Moves and the V.I.P. Room, only once have I ever had to call the police on someone, and that was because this drunk guy was tearing up my bathroom. It didn't have anything to do with the dancing."

"In fact, no type of 'nude' dancing goes on here anyway," said Riddle. "There never was any nude dancing

Now forced to restrict alcohol, topless clubs in Lafayette face financial problems and are quickly disappearing because nude dancing is illegal. My dancers wear G-strings and pasties. They sometimes use make-up over the pasties to give the illusion of nudity, but they are never nude. Also, the customers that come to my establishment are the nicest and most respectable people you've ever met. Not once have any of my dancers ever been convicted or even accused of any type of prostitution or drug use, and they would be fired immediately if they were. We get 600 percent fewer police calls from our establishments than those received from the Strip or Poets in an average weekend. In fact, our crime statistics should be even lower than that because a lot of calls to break up fights at SL football games or for problems at the Four Corners get lumped in with us because our clubs are in the same general area.

"The law passed by the City Council says that you can't sell alcohol in establishments where adult entertainment takes place," said Riddle. The V.I.P. Room is separated from The Lafayette Fellowship Club, which is located next door and owned by another lady.

"While alcohol is sold next door, and even though the buildings are connected, since the clubs are separate, the law does not apply to the dancers because no liquor is sold here. This is how we're able to circumvent the law for now, but we still have a federal lawsuit pending against the city of Lafayette.

We're fighting for the dancer's rights and for the rights of the people. Consenting adults should be able to choose to do whatever they want to.

"It's crazy how Candy Cantaloupes can visit Baton Rouge and get all over the radio on the Tiger 100.7, and yet 50 miles down the road it's so different. I've got two thousand signatures on a petition to keep the clubs open, and I've gotten calls of support from some of the most powerful people in Lafayette, but they can't support me publicly because of their reputations. I've lost a lot of business in the last couple of months. Some people still think we're all shut down. I'm going to fight this as long as I have to." ■

by Laura Ward

Paul Angelle

Gremillion hopes that what happened to him will improve student rights in the future.

On April 26, 1994, former L'Acadien editor Jeff Gremillion was triumphant in his year-long lawsuit against University President Ray Authement and Vice President of Student Affairs Raymond Blanco, a lawsuit that centered around students' First Amendment Rights.

The lawsuit stemmed from Gremillion's assertion that he was not reappointed L'Acadien's editor for 1992 because of two controversial photographs that appeared in the 1991 yearbook entitled, A Shock to the System. The two photographs included a bare-chested woman feeding spaghetti to a male companion and a photo of the school's bulldog mascot, Ragin' Cajun, sitting on the American flag.

Despite the university Communication Committee's recommendation that Gremillion be reappointed L'Acadien's editor, the administration denied the request. It was the first time in USL's history that the committee's editorial choice had been refused. Supposedly, the reason for the administration's rejection of Gremillion came about because of pressure from some alumni who disapproved of the photographs.

In his lawsuit, Gremillion sought the $7,500 salary he would have received had he been appointed editor of L'Acadien and to have the university concede that it had violated his First Amendment rights.

In the three-pronged settlement, Gremillion was awarded $10,000 plus court costs by Authement and Blanco (through the university.)

Another term of the agreement was that the selection process for appointing student editors for L'Acadien and The Vermilion be revised. The new policy set forth by the university states that "differences of opinion concerning editorial decisions will not constitute a proper basis for not accepting any student who submits an application." Students are also allowed to formally request an explanation from the Communication Committee if their names are not submitted to the administration for consideration of holding an editor's position.

Finally, the university was ordered to issue a press release declaring that the administration supports the First Amendment rights of its students. The statement was released in June 1994 and reads, in part:

"The University of Southwestern Louisiana and all of its employees recognize and affirm the First Amendment freedoms of its students concerning student publications. The University will not interfere with any student publication because of the content of the publication.

"The University will not exercise prior restraint or attempt to exercise prior restraint, because of the content or publication of any material in any student publication. Likewise, the University will not discriminate against, interfere with, discipline, terminate, or refuse to appoint any student from a position on a student publication because of the printing of any article, editorial, photograph, or other matters protected by the First Amendment.

"The University would like to make it clear to any parents, alumni, or friends who contact us to criticize any student publication or any other product of the student's free expression, that the Constitution of the United States of America protects the freedom of speech and press of the USL students. Thus, the United States Constitution prohibits the University from infringing on the students' exercise of their constitutional rights. In short, the Constitution mandates that we stand behind our students and their expressions, whether we agree with them or not."

Gremillion received a bachelor's degree from USL in May of 1993 and is seeking a master's degree at Columbia University's School of Journalism in New York City. In a statement to The Vermilion, Gremillion said that he harbors no ill will toward Authement and Blanco.

"I respect and admire them both," he maintained, "and I believe they truly want what is best for the university. I just hope that they realize that what's best for students—not parents or financial contributors or even us alumni—is what's best for USL."

A Shock to the System won Best of Show at the 1992 Associated Collegiate Press convention. ■

The office of Counseling and Testing does not have the capabilities to handle in patient care, so those individuals who need more in depth treatment are referred to an area substance abuse facility that can accommodate their needs.

"We do maintenance counseling. We can refer students to go to other facilities that can provide in patient care, but we can't force them to go," Guidry said.

The trend has changed from long-term in patient care to long-term out patient care and short-term in patient care, primarily because employers and insurance companies are trying to reduce costs.

"We usually keep a person in our hospital for one to three days to detoxicate, and then we put the patient in out patient care or get them private therapy geared toward educating them on the harms of abuse and resolving personal problems," said Johnny Patout, administrator for Vermilion Hospital.

Every person that is addicted to drugs or alcohol has a motivating factor that is behind their problem.

"A person who is addicted has to abstain, but they have to do something about the motivating factor to use," said Patout.

"It doesn't matter whether it's Alcoholics Anonymous, treatments, or religion. Unless they deal with these factors, they're just marking time." ■

plethora of reasons to
campus

As a student who has lived on campus for the past four semesters and been a counselor for one, my personal experience has been that living on campus can be one of the greatest assets to your success in college. New found freedom, proximity to classes and other useful facilities, and other services provided by the university especially to residents are only a few of the advantages of living on campus.

"Waking up ten minutes before class and actually getting there on time is a great advantage," said Kerry Heerssen, a senior in land management and resident of four years.

Now that you are free at last, it's time to have some fun! This is no problem for you, the resident, because the Strip is only two blocks away from campus when you get the urge to go out. There is also no curfew in the dorms, so no one will be waiting up for you. Since you've left mom and dad at home, you have only yourself to answer to after a night out on the town.

Also, when you live in the dorm, you make many new friends. These are the people you live, party, and study with.

The primary purpose of being at college is to get an education, so you will also have to set aside study time. Studying won't be such a hassle when you live in the dorm, because it is located near everything. You don't have to wake up hours before class to prepare for the class itself and a drive there. You can sleep later and safely wake up about an hour or a half hour before the class and be ready in plenty of time. In the event that you do wake up late, your classes are no farther than a 15-minute walk or 5-minute dash.

This is a great advantage compared to getting dressed, driving to Cajun Field, taking the bus, and finally dashing to a class for which you are already a half hour late.

Another great point of living on campus is that you have a better chance of meeting with a professor at a time convenient to the both of you. Since you live right here, you can check your messages or voice mail frequently and you are more accessible.

Also, between classes you have another great advantage over others. You can take a relaxing nap in your room, or go there to watch TV and rest before your next class instead of wandering wearily around campus with nothing to do.

"It is much easier for me to check on my experiment," explains Roja Avula, a graduate student in environmental engineering, "The university escort service brings me to Madison Hall and back to my dorm when I am finished."

Whether you are hungry for a snack between classes or a full meal, as a resident you have a wide variety of food available to you. Between fast food, healthy food, ethnic food, and desserts, you have many choices to fit your busy schedule. The convenience of the meal ticket is better than trying to scrounge up enough change to buy something, because the barcode on your ID card is scanned and you are on your way. Also, you are never responsible for doing the dishes.

Let us not forget everyone's favorite subject of parking at USL. As a resident, yet another of the many advantages is on campus parking. You are guaranteed a parking space near your dorm. No bus lines, no waiting at Cajun Field, and no lottery in hopes of getting one of the few lucky numbers for a spot on campus for one semester.

The last of the advantages of living on campus is the student services offered only to residents. If you happen to get sick, you are automatically covered by student health insurance assessed in housing fees. With this insurance you are able to see a doctor on campus for no charge. Counseling and testing services are also offered free of charge. This includes free counseling sessions with a licensed, professional counselor. They also offer many tips on test-taking strategies.

In-dorm tutors are also available during posted hours in all subject areas. Computer rooms in the lobby of each dorm are also open during posted hours for those papers you will be writing. The cable TV system on campus offers a special channel, the Learning Channel, which features the lessons taught that week in Math 92 and 105.

For a little university fun, residents are able to attend most activities free of charge. Those activities sponsored by the university such as Lagniappe Day, sporting events, and special hall activities are free to students who show the barcode on their ID.

"Living on campus has given me a full college experience," said Camille Trahan, elementary education sophomore.

As you can plainly see, there are many more advantages to living on campus as opposed to living off campus. Although the decision of living on or off campus is your own, I prefer being here where all of the action is. ■

POLE

Nineteen ninety-four was a great year for alternative music in America; it was also a terrible year for alternative music in America.

It was great because of the resurgence of punk rock, as evidenced by the success of groups such as Green Day and The Offspring. It was a terrible year because of the suicide of Nirvana's Kurt Cobain in April. Cobain wrote "Smells Like Teen Spirit," the song that propelled alternative music into the mainstream.

Along with the death of Cobain came the demise of Nirvana and the success of Hole, a group led by Cobain's widow, Courtney Love. Hole's album, "Live Through This," featured lyrics that gave a chilling description of Love's life with Cobain. "Live Through This" finished the year as the favorite album of critics as well as fans, according to polls in Spin magazine, Rolling Stone, and countless other commercial and industry music mags.

The West Coast led the way in the punk explosion of 1994 much as it had in the early 1980s.

The More Things Change . . .

OFFSPRING

From the Bay Area came Green Day, whose album "Dookie," rode the crest of the charts for months, due to several multi-format radio hits and constant exposure on MTV.

The other side of the punk coin was the Orange County scene (the same one that spawned Social Distortion and Suicidal Tendencies) and The Offspring, whose fittingly titled album, "Smash," yielded the song that was hardest to avoid in '94, "Come Out & Play."

The Seattle scene chipped in in 1994 with another song that was popular, Soundgarden's "Black Hole Sun." This song brought the group its greatest success, earning them two Grammy Awards.

Elsewhere in the Pacific Northwest, Alice in Chains scored big with "Jar of Flies," and, as the year ended, Pearl Jam released its third effort, "Vitalogy."

Adding to the new, a multitude of rock artists from the 1970s returned to prominence in 1994 and were slapped with the tag "Adult Alternative." This new label was used to market The Eagles, Jimmy Page and Robert Plant, and the Rolling Stones to a new, younger audience.

The effort worked to the tune of millions of dollars spent on CDs, tour merchandise (MTV sometimes looked like the Home Shopping Club) and outrageously-priced concert tickets.

The alternative scene thrived in Lafayette, too, with the opening of Metropolis, a new club dedicated to bringing the best alternative groups to its concert stage. Patrons of Metropolis in 1994 enjoyed shows by Jawbox, Neurosis, and several other national acts.

Lafayette also experienced the opening of its first strictly alternative record store, Toys Alternative Music, which offered music to the local market that was, for the most part, previously unavailable.

Local alternative bands had a good year as well. Hand Bob the Spoon, October Groundfly, and The Canes recorded or released new projects that guarantee a bright future ahead for the Lafayette alternative scene. ■

“ It started about 15 years ago when one of the students complained that there was no where to go for Thanksgiving day for kids out of state or out of the country that attended USL. I invited him to my house and promised him that next year we would have a Thanksgiving meal for those who couldn't go home for the holidays. ”

To most people, Thanksgiving means a time to gather with family around the table and eat a big meal consisting of turkey and all the trimmings.

After hours of preparation, the Thanksgiving meal is usually finished within a mere 30 minutes, timing it just right for the men to retire to the den to watch all the football action.

On the opposite side of the coin, many individuals have no family to spend the Thanksgiving holidays with and, in turn, don't have much to be thankful for.

About 15 years ago, two Christian organizations on campus, Our Lady of Wisdom Catholic Student Center and the Methodist center, Wesley United Campus Ministry, changed Thanksgiving day for the seemingly hopeless individuals that had no one to spend it with.

"It started about 15 years ago when one of the students, Bob Mason, who was from New York, complained that there was no where to go for Thanksgiving day for kids out of state or out of the country that attended USL," said Don Ross, director of Wesley United Campus Ministry. "I invited him to my house and promised him that next year we would have a Thanksgiving meal for those who couldn't go home for the holidays."

The year the two centers combined their efforts for Thanksgiving, there were about 350 people that came to enjoy he Thanksgiving meal. Throughout the years, some of the meals contained music or drama but all of the meals have contained some sort of non-denominational Thanksgiving service.

The meeting place of the meal has changed throughout the years, starting at the Wesleyan center, then moving to the Presbyterian center and finally to the Catholic center, where it has been for the past 10 years.

"Fifteen years ago, no one was doing anything like this, so for years the number of people that joined us for our Thanksgiving meal kept increasing. Now, everybody is offering some kind of Thanksgiving meal for those who can't be with their family or simply don't have any family.

Since more organizations are offering a meal, the number of people joining us at Our Lady of Wisdom has decreased in the past few years. We've gone from 350 in 1979 to 130 this year," said Ross.

Although the numbers have diminished over the years, the two centers have no plans to terminate the 16th Annual Thanksgiving Meal.

"It's become a tradition. My family knows no other Thanksgiving meal except for this one. We plan to keep it going for years to come. All we can do is plan for a smaller number of people," Ross said. ■

A Host of Architects

Jeff Guidry

Architects from across the nation and around the world met at USL for the annual Association of Collegiate Schools of Architecture (ACSA) regional conference, held this year in Fletcher Hall.

The theme of the conference was collaboration and Dean of Art and Architecture Gordon Brooks organized a collaborative artistic piece that involved several disciplines of USL's College of Art and Architecture.

"We wanted to do something that would be a centerpiece for the conference," Brooks said. "And since our collaboration in the spring on the musical 'Company' went so well, we decided to do a collaborative piece that would show off what we as a college could do."

Brooks enlisted the expertise of seven collaborators from both inside and outside the College of Art and Architecture to assist with ideas for the piece. Collaborators included Lori Bales (theater), Ken Jenkins (dance), Hector Lasala (architecture), John Fiero and Darrell Bourque (English), Robert Russett (film and video), and Jim Guthrie (music).

In discussing the vision behind the show, Brooks said, "we decided to do a 60-minute piece, so we created a time and Architecture Hosts

ne in which all of the individual moments would be mapped out.

"Each part of the collaboration had its own moments both together with and separate from the other disciplines," he said. "For example, a theater moment could take place at the same time an architecture moment was happening, and then the music would come in by itself with nothing else."

The group had been working since the end of the spring organizing the ideas for the show, and in the fall, the team brought in visiting professor of dance, Leni Sloan, to assist in organizing the artistic process. Sloan is a veteran of more than 40 collaborative pieces and has organized San Francisco Festival 000.

When asked about his role in the creative process, Sloan said, "I'm a facilitator. I try to hold a mirror up to the collaborators so that they can see what their individual visions look like.

"I was brought in fairly late in the game," he continued, "because the time constraints with the conference coming up so soon were gaining on us. I was asked to help come up with action plans so that at the end of each creative session we would have come up with something workable."

When discussing their work most of the collaborators agreed that through the process of group creation and working with others was fascinating, it was at times frustrating.

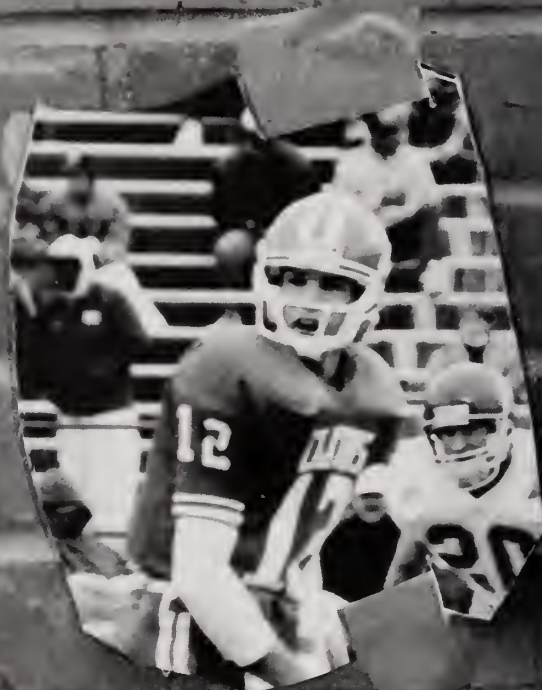

"Collaboration requires a different viewpoint from individual creation," said Darrell Bourque. "The one thing we couldn't anticipate was the amount of time this sort of project would take."

Despite the problems, the collaborators seemed very happy to have been part of the process. "I don't think any of us realized the power of collaboration," said Lori Bales.

Sloan addressed the nature of non-traditional art, stating, "In narrative-sequential act, we function on predictability. With event art, we have less restriction, which provides us with more challenges and more excitement.

"This show is a parade," he said. "We can assemble and rehearse each part of the parade, but it's not a parade until you get it out on the street." ■

USL Football captures second title in two years

At the conclusion of the 1994 season, head coach Nelson Stokley quickly pointed out that USL is the only Division I-A school in the state to post back-to-back winning seasons.

Paul Angelle

There were high expectations for the 1994 football season for the Ragin' Cajuns. The team that held the biggest turnaround in NCAA Division I-A in 1993 were favored to win their conference by just about every college football prognosticator in business.

The 1993 8-3 mark, some thought, was only the beginning of great things to come.

The Cajuns fell short of the 8-3 mark by two games but did manage a share of the Big West Conference Championship for the second time in two years. There was a sense of disappointment with the record.

"I don't want to make excuses for anything that happened during the course of the season,” said head coach Nelson Stokley. “If we didn’t live up to your expectations then us as coaches didn’t do a good enough job.”

The ‘93 season began in Manhattan, Kan., where the Cajuns took on Chad May and the then No. 25-ranked Kansas State Wildcats.

USL lost despite a great outing by senior tailback Steve Mocek who rushed for 95 yards and the Cajuns’ only touchdown. In that game, sophomore quarterback Jake Delhomme hit 14 of 21 passes for 159 yards but he threw two costly interceptions and no touchdowns.

The following Saturday, however, the Cajuns came home to play their conference from Northern Illinois. The Cajuns ran the ball extremely well with Mocek, Marcus Prier, and Kenyon Cotton combining for over 200 yards and two touchdowns against a supposedly tough Huskie defense. Delhomme was only eight-of 20 but he threw no interceptions and he did throw a touchdown pass along with a touchdown run in the Cajuns 29-9 home opener victory.

The Northern Illinois game gave Cajun fans a glimpse of a new star on the offensive side of the ball, sophomore wide receiver Donald Richard who had four catches for 168 yards, which was the second-highest yard total in school history for a single game, and it was the

The Cajuns were home again the following week and lost to Division I-AA Troy State after building up a comfortable lead early in the game.

The following week the Cajuns were back in Big West conference action once again as they traveled to play the Spartans of San Jose State University. Though they were up 21-0 at one point in the game they somehow managed to lose the game 31-28. That loss would eventually eliminate the Cajuns from an outright conference championship and a trip to the Las Vegas Bowl.

and managed an impressive 13-3 win over Louisiana Tech, something Stokley had not yet done in his career.

The Cajuns returned home for yet another conference game, this time against Arkansas State. There were only five completions thrown the entire game, but the Cajuns handed the Indians a 26-0 shutout to keep them in the conference hunt with only two conference games left on the schedule.

The Cajuns went to Hattiesburgh, Miss. for a rematch with Southern Miss. The Golden Eagles did not take kindly to the loss they incurred at Cajun Field in 1993 and returned the favor by thrashing the Cajuns 43-20, intercepting Delhomme five

The final two games, one a trip to unfriendly Lubbock, Texas and the other emotional 17-16 victory at home against Western Michigan left the Cajuns with a share of the Big West championship.

That made Stokley the first coach in the history of USL to win back-to-back conference championships. ■

Byron Starks gave USL opponents another self-confident shot maker to deal with in 1994.

Ball control and high-percentage shooting originated with Michael Allen and spread throughout the team.

Led by four talented seniors, the Ragin' Cajun basketball team played up-tempo basketball on their way to a 22-8 overall record and a second NCAA Tournament appearance in three years.

In 1994, USL was the only team from Louisiana to qualify for the NCAA Tournament.

Guard Michael Allen paced the team with his shooting and leadership skills.

Allen led the Sun Belt in scoring with a 22.7 points per game average and a free throw percentage of .871. Allen was named Co-Player of the Year in the Sun Belt and was named to the All-Deep South team. Allen scored a season-high 36 points against Arkansas-Little Rock in a 86-75 USL victory.

Along with Allen, senior guard Byron Starks posted a scoring average of 17.9 points per game to give USL one of the most potent guard combinations in the nation, averaging over 40 points per contest.

Sixth man Tony Moore came off the bench throughout the year to spell Allen and Starks and to pump up the Cajun fans with his three-point shooting. Moore also added to the senior leadership that benefited from the 1994 team.

But the Cajun basketball up-tempo style wasn't just about offense and outside shooting.

season as he led the nation in steals with 120 in 30 games. Griggs had a season-high 8 steals against the Texas-Pan American Broncs in a 90-75 USL victory.

An 82-79 hard-fought victory over Memphis State in December set the stage for the Cajuns to enter Sun Belt Conference play.

The Cajuns finished the conference schedule one game behind Western Kentucky who finished at 13-5.

"USL basketball is a fun style of basketball. The fans love it," said Marty Fletcher, head coach of the Ragin' Cajuns. "It's an up-tempo game with pressure defense and multiple defenses.

We are a high-scoring team. But we can be successful at 50 points a game," Fletcher added.

"We used a three-guard offense for much of the season, and we even used a four-guard set at times," Fletcher said.

The Ragin' Cajuns used that guard-oriented offense and pressure defense to win the Sun Belt Tournament, hosted by Western Kentucky in Bowling Green, Kentucky.

USL beat Texas-Pan American 81-60 and scraped past New Orleans 59-55 to reach the championship game against the Hilltoppers of Western Kentucky. In the title contest, USL beat WKU 78-72 to earn a spot in the 64-team NCAA Tournament.

The Cajuns' shooting came up short against Marquette in the first round of the Southeast Regional, as they lost to the Warriors to close out an exciting year.

"I feel fortunate. I have a vocation that allows me to be involved with something that I enjoy," said Fletcher. "I have one of only about 300 Division I coaching jobs. The best parts about my job are my team and my coaches," Fletcher said. ■

Junior center Bryan Collins came on strong toward the end of the '94 season including a 16-point, 19-rebound effort against Marquette in the NCAA tournament.

“Beating LSU twice in one year was kind of like rubbing mud in (LSU’s) face,” said Cajun senior outfielder Lee Cantrelle.

Cantrelle helped the Cajuns win their home game against the incumbent national champions with a first-inning grand slam. He did it in front of a record Moore field crowd of 7,583 screaming fans on April 6.

“When I was running around the bases, I don’t think I could hear (the fans),” said Cantrelle. “I was in shock.”

The grand slam was part of a six-run first inning in a game that saw the Cajuns win 11-8.

Winning pitcher Mike Gautreau, who relieved Cody Robbins in the top of the third inning, pitched the remaining seven innings, giving up only three runs on four hits.

The longest outing of the season for Gautreau was just over five innings before the contest against LSU. USL head coach Mike Boulanger was questioned on his decision to leave Gautreau in the game. We felt like he could do the job... he’s a veteran, and he knows what (the game is) all about,” he said.

I pitched, I was tired," said Gautreau. "Towards the end, I just kept getting stronger and stronger."

Three weeks later the Cajuns traveled to Baton Rouge to face the Tigers once again, this time at Alex Box Stadium. The Cajuns were again victorious despite a threatening rally by the Tigers in the bottom of the ninth.

USL has gone undefeated against the Tigers throughout this decade. The multitude of red and white surrounding the LSU stadium took away from the Tigers' usual home field advantage.

"It gave me a good feeling to notice there were just as many USL fans at the game," said catcher Brooke Inzerella. "That right there probably pumped us up more than anything."

USL had no problem scoring against the Tigers, with Oswaldo

Aguirre's first collegiate home run and an additional home run by Travis Krause, helping to accumulate five runs in the first five innings —as well as a solo homer by Michael Judge in the seventh, and three runs in the eighth.

LSU, slow to score against the Cajuns, came back to score five runs in the ninth inning and bring the score to 9-8. Relief pitcher Mitch Deshotels struck out LSU designated hitter Tim Lanier, who began the ninth inning comeback with a solo homer, to end the game and register yet another win for USL against the Fighting Tigers.

"Let's look at this the right way," said All-American LSU second baseman Todd Walker. "USL is a better team, hands down."

"We haven't beaten USL since I've been here. It's not like I expected to win." ■

USL Remembers Tigie Moore's Dedication to Baseball

Marion Lartigue "Tigie" Moore's life was characterized by extensive service to mankind. Moore was born Sept. 23, 1908, in Sumter, S.C. He attended Le Citadel in Charleston, where he would later receive the Palmetto medal, that school's most prestigious alumni award.

Beginning with his service in World War II soon after college, Moore dedicated his life to serving and helping others.

Moore came to Lafayette after the end of World War II. For his service to the citizens of Lafayette, he received the Civic Cup in 1950. He spent many years as chairman of Lafayette American Legion baseball and the Lafayette Playground and Parks Committee.

He also received the Roberto Clemente Humanitarian Award in 1975, a national award given to outstanding leaders and humanitarians involved in baseball.

Although his major focus was youth baseball, Moore went on to become involved with USL. He served as director of the USL Foundation and chaired several USL booster organizations. Moore always found ways to help the baseball program in times of need.

"Mr. Moore was always in your corner. We could always go to him" said head baseball coach Mike Boulanger. Moore was responsible for several endowed baseball scholarships at USL. In 1978, USL's new baseball field, the largest outdoor baseball facility in Louisiana, was named after Moore and his late wife, Catherine Louise Van Horn. Moore was known as "Mr. Baseball" in Acadiana.

M.L. Moore died on Feb. 16, 1994, three days before the opening of the 1994 season. He was buried on opening day, hours before the first pitch of the season. The 1994 USL baseball team wore black arm patches in his memory. Boulanger said that he wanted his new players to know about Moore and the support he gave USL baseball.

Moore will be remembered for his service to USL baseball, but his memory will remain with his friends because of his unselfish dedication to mankind. ■

Lady Cajun Park Holds Softball Jinx

Becky Aloise

Black cats, shattered mirrors, walking under ladders—those are all superstitions that most individuals think about in their lifetime. However, many critics have added another superstition—the jinx on the Lady Cajun softball field. The notion has been that despite the home-field advantage for the Lady Cajuns in the last three out of four years, the team has never been able to advance to the NCAA Collegiate Softball World Series while playing at home.

"I'm not sure I'd classify it as a jinx. I just know that it has not worked for us," said Lady Cajun head softball coach, Yvette Girouard. "We've been here four times, and we've come away empty handed."

With a host of talent, the Lady Cajuns have played at home during the 1990, 1991, 1992, and 1994 seasons only to lose the regional and a chance to go to the big dance in Oklahoma City, Okla. Many people are unaware of the strict guidelines that must be followed while a NCAA tournament is held.

"In the regional tournament the whole atmosphere changes. The NCAA takes the home advantage right out of our hands. The center field crowd is no longer a factor. Our announcer, Robert Harris, who is a tremendous aura out there, is controlled and stifled and, in consequence, the crowd becomes stifled," said Girouard.

"It just changes the whole atmosphere out there, and it no longer becomes our home-field advantage."

On the other hand, the Lady Cajuns have been very successful. That success is attributed to superb coaching, great teamwork, and possibly a superstitious motive. In 1993, the team traveled to the regional site in Michigan to compete for a chance to play in the NCAA Collegiate World Series. Along with them, and their undefeated home record, was dirt from Lady Cajun field.

"That was really not my idea. That was the ground keeper at the time—Mike Hess' idea. We had not been beaten on our field that year, so he took some of Lady Cajun Park with him."

Whether or not the dirt helped, the Lady Cajuns advanced to the NCAA Collegiate World Series. While in Oklahoma, the Lady Cajuns beat Arizona in a two-to-one series and then advanced to the final day of the World Series. Though it was a tough fight, the Lady Cajuns were defeated.

The NCAA chooses the regional site through a bid process that each school in that particular region is allowed to participate. The nod for hosting duties is usually given to the school which was the highest ranking in the regular season, although the softball facility is considered as well. Though many see playing at home as an advantage, Coach Girouard is undecided on the question of whether it is good to play at home.

Girouard also commented on the fan support behind the Lady Cajuns during this past season.

"I have to pay a compliment to our administration and to the University for this last one in particular. There's no one in the country that does it better than we do and everybody in the country knows that. But if it's to our disadvantage to play here—we got a better draw when we went on the road," she said.

Despite the question of the jinx at Lady Cajun field, Girouard is quite optimistic about the 1995 season.

"We lost six players off of last year's team—four were starters, three-fourths of our infield and a two-time All-American pitcher, but we'll be in the top 20 again." ■

barely misses world series

It was a beautiful afternoon and the Centerfield Club was in position to welcome the Lady Cajuns onto the softball field. Fans crowded into Lady Cajun Park for the preseason opener against NLU on Oct. 17. The first pitch of the doubleheader would spark the beginning of an awe-inspiring, record-setting season.

Once again, Lady Cajun softball sheds positive light onto the USL athletic program. Always a bright spot in the USL sports program, USL softball coach Yvette Girouard continues to present fans with a team which has earned a name synonymous with national success.

USL Lady Cajun softball ended its regular season with a record of 55-4. Coach Girouard named this season's squad as being "certainly the most talented." In 1994, the Lady Cajuns set the most regular season records and ranked second in the country, the highest ranking of any USL team to date. The squad advanced to its fifth consecutive NCAA regional tournament. The tournament was hosted in Lafayette.

"There weren't any lows during the season...we won every tournament except the Texas A&M tourney, and that wasn't a low, we learned from it," said Girouard. "One definite high point was winning the Pony invitational in Fullerton, Calif., where only the best teams were invited."

"It was a tremendous season," added senior Alyson Habetz, "The fan support was incredible which made it lots of fun to play. USL had some extremely talented players who worked hard and had winning attitudes. It was an honor for me to be a part of such a talented group."

"I gave 110% every time I stepped on the field and had lots of fun doing it," said Habetz when asked about her experience as a member of the Lady Cajun softball squad. Habetz completed her senior season in 1994. She was a major contributor to the Lady Cajuns at first base and as a team leader. "It was a privilege for me (to be coached by Girouard)," said Habetz. "She is well known throughout the nation for her accomplishments as a coach and besides that, she is a great person."

Girouard (483-172) ended the 1994 season just 17 wins away from her 500th career victory.

Senior standouts on the 1994 squad consisted of first baseman Habetz (third team All-American), pitcher Kyla Hall (first team All-American), second baseman Tami Pearson, and shortstop Heather Neville.

Coach Girouard stated that the seniors were "definitely some of the best players I ever coached, good students, and great ambassadors for Lady Cajun softball. I'm proud that they played in our program."

Girouard is looking to catcher Tiffany Whittle and All-American rightfielder Kathy Morton for leadership during the 1995 season.

Four All-Americans are returning for the 1995 season including first-team rightfielder Morton, designated player Stephanie DeFeo, second-team third baseman Lynn Britton, and third-team leftfielder Lana Jiminez.

Freshman Jiminez recognized Habetz as the most influential team leader during her first year on the squad, "(Alyson) was always so positive—for the team and not for herself."

Habetz offered words of advice to her fellow teammates: "Just take lots of pride in being a Lady Cajun softball player and show that pride every time you step onto the field. Also, remember that you can accomplish anything if you work together—so dream big, have fun, and see you at the World Series."

The 1994 Lady Cajun squad will be a tough act to follow. When Coach Girouard was questioned on whether or not she expected a letdown in performance during the 1995 season, she responded, "Not at all, everyone's so used to winning they will work hard..four All-Americans are returning, we have a great nucleus to build on."

Along with the absence of the seniors in 1995, the absence of assistant coach Pat Murphy will be felt throughout the program. Murphy worked well with the hitters and did much for the marketing of Lady Cajun softball.

"(Murphy) was my right hand man, I have to give him as much credit in our rise to the top as anything. Things will be much different, he brought much to Lady Cajun Softball. He will be sorely

Youth and Inexperience Lead to Poor Finish

The Cajun and Lady Cajun cross country track teams had another unusual but expected season. As Coach Carl Lawson said "This was the worst season for cross country since I've been here."

They began the season with a trip to LSU, where the Lady Cajuns started on a high note, defeating the Lady Tigers 31-24, on a two-mile course. Danielle Payne, Cleo Jones, and Cheronia Walker finished second, third, and fourth respectively. Jones posted the fastest time of the three with a 12:06.79 clocking.

The men, however, lost to the Tigers 15-50 in a blow away race. Gene Siner and Vacques Prudhomme were the only top-10 finishers for the Cajuns in the four-mile course.

Things did not get better for either squad as the year went on. At the USL Invite, the Lady Cajuns finished second behind the fourth place individual performance of Danielle Payne, who clocked a time of 18:39 on a three-mile course. But things were worse for the men's team. Their top finisher was freshman Brock Shaheen, who clocked a 2:40 time to take 29th place on the four-mile course.

The NSU Cross Country was another disappointing showing for the men's team. They placed sixth in a field of eight. The women also fell another notch with a third place showing inatchitoches.

The dismal song played on as the cross country teams headed to Audubon Park for the Pelican Cup Invitational. The Lady Cajuns finished eighth out of 15 teams and the men finished tenth out of 13 teams.

USL's men's and women's cross country teams ended their long seasons at the Sun Belt Conference Championships in Ruston, La. The pre-meet predictions had the women finishing seventh and the men ninth overall. When all points were tallied the women posted a sixth-place finish. And, as predicted, the men finished ninth. Joel Chesimet, the only senior for the Ragin' Cajun squad, ran for only the second time this year due to a pulled hamstring. He was the only top-40 finisher for the men, placing 16th.

Coach Lawson commented that "the Cajuns missed Joel's leadership all year." Lawson contributed the poor season for both squads to youthfulness and inexperience.

He said that he now can relate to how Coach Marty Fletcher feels about his tough season with such young and inexperienced players. He used the cliché, "These are the years that try mens souls," meaning that such a tough season is going to try the souls of these athletes to see if they will be able to pull it back together to perform better next year. ■

Waterski Team Breaks into Second

In 1988, Bob May, associate professor of health and physical education, decided to run an ad in a national waterskiing magazine. May believed in USL's waterski team and wanted to improve their level of competition.

"Our level of talent was average. We worked very hard, but we just didn't have much talent," May said.

In the hope of attracting talented student-athletes, May ran the ad and included the benefits of attending USL and information about the culture, location, and people of Lafayette.

"The ad stated that we had a funded waterskiing program at USL. It also boasted that Lafayette, located between New Orleans and Houston had great food, friendly people, beautiful oak trees, and was the Heart of Acadiana," May said.

Shortly after the ad was placed, May began to receive numerous inquiries about USL's ski team. Little by little, skiers from across North America began to relocate to Lafayette. The first to join the team as a result of the exposure from the ad was Kevin Marcelissen from Canada.

"Kevin was our first true tournament skier who arrived on the scene about five years ago. Since then, we have had the good fortune to recruit good skiers," said May.

As a result of the added exposure, May has built a solid team that has earned national recognition for five consecutive years. In 1990 the water ski team ranked ninth in the nation. In 1991 they ranked sixth nationally. 1992 proved to be their best year as May's skiers ranked third in the nation. As they headed into the 1993 season, their expectations were met in Sacramento, Calif., with another national ranking of third.

The More Things Change...

Jason Kazinski

"This year we're very excited about the upcoming fall season. We have three solid, professional skiers to help us: Scott Smith, Kevin Marcelissen, and Mike Heath," said May.

The success of the team is owed to its skiers, May asserts. For 1994, members of the ski team include Marcelissen, Smith, Heath, Lynda Davidson, Auston Wortman, Todd Anderson, John McMath, Sheila Delaney, Dan LaFaver, Carey Selk-Rodger, Kristen Zink, Elyse Taylor and J.D. Wiswall.

With the ski team competing in three categories: slaloms, tricks and jumps, May has several athletes on the team that are able to compete in more than one event.

Auston Worton is a solid three-event skier from Tennessee with worlds of potential, according to May.

Elyse Taylor, from Houston, Texas, is also a three-event skier, with tricking being her strongest event. Kristen Zink is also from Houston, Texas, and is strong in both slaloms and tricking.

J.D. Wiswall is also a very strong three-event skier who has qualified to jump professionally and is felt to be the strength of the men's team this year.

Lynda Davidson, originally from Lafayette and a senior at USL, recently won the Division I Women's National Jump Title with a jump of 128 feet. Lynda Davidson has been jumping even farther since her title-winning jump; she now has a personal best of 138 feet, which will qualify her for professional tournaments.

"Her jump of 138 feet would probably be in the top ten jumps in the world this year," said May.

Mike Heath, a professional skier from Oklahoma, appeared on ESPN in August, 1994, and has been with the team for four years.

Dan LaFaver, from Colorado, came to USL in 1993 and is a very strong slalom skier, May said.

In contrast, Carey Selk-Rodger is a strong tricker and jumper.

Scott Smith spent the summer of 1994 skiing for the U.S. Team. He spent the majority of August in South America. He is a professional skier and dominates all three events.

Sheila Delaney, Kevin Marcelissen, and Todd Anderson are all from Canada and will enhance the Cajuns' chances of continuing their national success.

John McMath, a sophomore from Houston, Texas, was named "most improved skier" by the American Waterskiing Association of Summer Skiing in 1994.

Two new students will join the team in 1994 and will give the Cajuns two brother-sister combinations: Starlet Smith, sister of Scott, and Karen Marcelissen, sister of Kevin.

"Competitive waterskiing isn't just a spectator sport. We work just as hard as any other team, if not harder. Our season never ends," May said.

The team trains throughout the school year, often spending weekends at competitions in other areas of the country, particularly in the southwest. In the summer, the team members teach at ski camps and compete at the professional level.

There are six conferences in the United States. USL is part of the South Central Conference, one of the nation's strongest conferences that also includes Northeast Louisiana, Texas A&M, Texas Christian, LSU, La. Tech, Southwest Texas, University of Texas, Oklahoma State, and Baylor.

Milledgeville, Ga., was the site of this year's nationals competition where the Ragin' Cajun ski team went to conclude its 1994 season. The team, under May's direction came out third last year and the year before. This year they came in second.

"I know the girls' softball team finished the year third in the nation once," said May. "And I think a USL weightlifting team won the national championship in the fifties, but second place has to be one of the best seasons for a sport in this school's history.

"I'm proud of what our team has done, but this is the kind of team that's happy with a second-place finish. They're not over elated, but happy."

May added that the men's competition was extremely tough and in his opinion, the USL men, "were trying too hard."

In 1994, Coach May will complete his twenty-ninth year teaching and coaching at USL. ■

Ellen Fauser posted a 12-5 record for the Lady Cajuns.

Members of the 1994 Lady Cajun tennis team included Vanessa Campos, Ellen Fauser, Silke Ladehoff, Krystal Nabors, Sharni Rotacker, Christiane Teuber, and Denise Wilson. These team members were high-spirited and ready to start another great season of Lady Cajun tennis.

The season opened on Feb. 4, 1994, with three home games against Alabama-Birmingham, Tulane, and Southeastern Louisiana. Alabama-Birmingham and Tulane were competitive opponents and defeated USL. The Lady Cajuns were again defeated by Southeastern Louisiana, 5-4, and opened the season 0-3.

Despite losing their first three matches of the year, the Lady Cajuns regrouped and toughened their resolve to win, using their enthusiastic team spirit to work harder as a team. A 5-1 victory over Middle Tennessee State in Starkville, Miss., marked the first win of the season for the squad.

with wins over Northwestern State, Arkansas-Little Rock, Western Kentucky, and Tennessee.

The season went well, thanks to "good team spirits," Teuber. "We overcame the bad luck and the losses from injuries."

"Christiane is a hard worker. She is always the first to practice and the last to leave; she always does what's asked of her," said head coach Dan Holden.

USL then hit the road to face Tulane, Georgia State, and Georgia Tech. The Lady Cajuns were victorious against each of these opponents, and posted an overall winning record for the first time during the year.

As Sun Belt Conference play drew closer, the Lady Cajuns looked at successes in the past to motivate them to again succeed in conference play. Conference competition was particularly important to the senior members of the squad but was also a big step for the younger members of the team. The younger members of the team sought a conference title to honor the senior members of the squad.

With high expectations and a good team chemistry, the tennis squad traveled to Little Rock, Ark.

Their first opponent, Jacksonville, was demolished by the Lady Cajuns, 6-0. The Lady Cajuns then defeated Arkansas State, 5-1.

The final match of the season was against the South Alabama Lady Jaguars. The Lady Jags again upset the Lady Cajuns, with a 5-1 victory.

"It was the most disappointing loss because we played hard for the seniors," said Christiane Teuber.

Even though the Lady Cajuns did not become the 1994 Sun Belt Conference Champions, they did not finish the season without accomplishments. They finished second in the conference overall, with a 17-8 record.

Additionally, team members Rotacker and Nabors were named to the Sun Belt All Conference Team. ■

I love this place! It has a real winning attitude," said USL men's tennis coach Dan Holden, who in his first year as a Division I head coach led the Cajuns to a 19-6 record. Holden, who had worked previously at Division II Southern Illinois and was at one time an assistant at Clemson University in South Carolina, said that USL offers a unique opportunity when it comes to men's tennis.

Jason Kazsinski

"First of all, the weather down here is great. It's a comfortable playing environment year round. Also, the athletic department provides you with anything you need, and the people are just the nicest I've ever seen," he said.

"The Acadiana community is very supportive of tennis and of USL athletics in general," said Holden. "There's always a nice crowd at the matches. We'd like to see a few more students out here, but overall, we're very pleased."

Holden's fondness for Lafayette is especially appreciated, considering that his tennis travels have taken him not only through Southern Illinois and Clemson, but also through a college career at Belmont College in Nashville, Middle Tennessee State University and a three-year tour on the professional tennis circuit. He admits that his newfound roots may have something to do with his fondness for crawfish.

Holden was especially proud of the hard work and the positive attitude shown by his players during the season. "A coach has to wear many different hats," he said. "You have to make sure that the respect and discipline is there, but you also want the players to feel that they can come to you. It's easy, though, when you have a great bunch of guys like these."

Each member of this year's team, which consisted of players from such diverse spots as Poland, South Africa, and Italy, had been ranked individually in the top ten players in his age group in his native country. They can also boast of posting a winning record while at the same time maintaining the highest team G.P.A. among all men's athletes at USL with a 3.10 average for the spring semester.

With returning veterans like senior captain Greg Wood, along with Steven Parks, Greg Zgola, and Hughes Laverdiere on the squad, Holden expects an even better performance next season.

"We felt that we should have been nationally ranked last year, and this year we're looking forward to great things. We feel that a bid to the NCAA Regionals is not a unrealistic goal to shoot for. We want this program to be back where it was in the 1970s and early 1980s, when the USL tennis squad was ranked among the top ten or 15 teams in the country. It's going to be tough, but with hard work I think we can do it."

With excellent facilities, great young players, and lots of community support, Holden sees a bright future for USL tennis.

"Overall, my first year as head coach here has been great," he says. "I look forward to being here for a long time." ■

Roller Coaster Season Leaves Cajuns at Home for NCAA Playoffs

A Ragin' Cajun rounds third base and heads for home plate.

The USL baseball team closed a roller coaster 1994 season on a downward spiral. The Ragin' Cajuns finished the regular season with an impressive 42-13 mark, then lost miserably on consecutive days in the Sun Belt Tournament.

Mike Boulanger's troops won the first 13 games of the year, including victories against national powers Oklahoma State, Kent State, and Missouri. The Cajuns swept OSU and Kent St. to win the early-March Louisiana Classics Tournament at Moore Field in Lafayette.

USL then opened Sun Belt competition against the Lamar Cardinals. The trip to Beaumont yielded three disappointing losses.

After being shutout in the first two games of the series, the Cajuns lost 4-5 in the final game to complete the sweep and bring the team crashing down to Earth.

After splitting their following two dates with Southwest Missouri State and McNeese State, USL reeled off a 17-game winning streak. The second significant hot stretch of the year helped USL receive national publicity and consideration for the Top 25. UNO ended the streak with a 2-5 win in the third game of a SBC series, but the highlight of 1994 was yet to come.

Defending national champion and bitter in-state rival LSU traveled to Lafayette for a highly-attended matchup with the Cajuns. A Moore Field-record 7,583 fans passed through the gates, only to see the Tigers go ahead 2-0 in the top of the first inning.

USL tied the score in the first frame, then Lee Cantrelle strode to home plate with bases loaded and an opportunity to put the Cajuns on top. Cantrelle knocked a towering grand slam beyond the right-centerfield fence to give his team a 6-2 lead.

Oswaldo Aguirre provided some much-needed insurance late in the game with a bases-loaded double and USL held off the Tigers, 11-8.

The Cajuns continued their see-saw run with a 4-1 loss to Delta State in their next outing one week later. The Cajuns split six of twelve games heading into a rematch with the Tigers. This time, USL drove east-bound on I-10 to face LSU at Alex Box Stadium.

Aguirre, Travis Krause, and Michael Judge blasted home runs against the 31-14 Tigers as the Cajuns built a commanding 9-3 lead going into the bottom of the final inning.

LSU fought back to narrow the gap to 9-8 and had the game-winning run on second base with two outs.

Designated hitter Tim Lanier could not come through for Skip Bertman's Tigers, however, as the Cajuns completed a sweep of the home-and-home series.

Following the second LSU game, the Cajuns won two-of-three in Sun Belt series with UNO and Louisiana Tech. Sporting a 42-13 record, the Cajuns received a No. 21 national ranking in the USA Today/Baseball Weekly poll. USL appeared to have the momentum in its favor going into the season-ending tourney, but that proved not to be the case.

Jacksonville and Lamar pummeled the Cajuns by the combined score of 32-9. The lopsided tallies made the job of the NCAA selection committee an easy one as USL stayed home when it came time for the NCAA playoffs. ■

Ragin' Cajun Track and Field was a running success in 1994. The men's team maintained its outdoor dominance, and the women ranked as contenders in the Sun Belt Conference.

After being upset by Arkansas State in the Sun Belt Conference Indoors meet, the men posted a record 235 points in the outdoor championship at USL's Cajun Track in May, defeating Arkansas State by 79 points.

The men earned a third straight conference title and their fourth straight overall conference outdoor crown.

Senior sprinter Grady Labbe, who graduated from Teurlings Catholic High School, was the team leader for the Cajuns. Labbe won the 100-meter dash in 10.67 seconds, the 200-meter run in 20.81 seconds, the 110-meter hurdles event in 14.22 seconds, and ran the second leg on the team's victorious 4x100 meter relay that clocked a time of 40.19 seconds. Labbe also set a meet record in the 100 meter preliminaries with a time of 10.37 seconds. He was named the Outstanding Track Man for the Conference.

"Grady had a great year," said head coach Charles Lancon, who graduated from USL and has coached the track team for the past five years.

Winston Sinclair helped the Cajuns' winning way by shattering his meet record in the 400-meter hurdles with a time of 49.77.

Rocky Guidry, who completed his eligibility on the USL football team in 1993, dictated the javelin event as he threw for a winning distance of 204-11.

Triple jumper, Ndaba Mdhlongwa, was victorious with a distance of 53-7 3/4.

High jumper, Edgar Garcia, posted a winning height of 7-4 1/2 to help the Cajun cause.

The Lady Cajuns finished third in the Sun Belt Conference Indoors and placed second in the outdoor tournament, being edged out by seven points by Arkansas State.

JoJo Harris paced the women's squad as she set a school record with an NCAA qualifying 180-11 effort in the discus. Harris placed second in the discus and shot put at the Sun Belt Outdoors.

The women had noteworthy performances turned in by several athletes.

Among these was sprinter Keisha Ray Owens, who won the 100-meter and 200-meter dashes and was the anchor on the winning 4x100 relay team; Leafay Henry who was the 100-hurdles champ; and D'Nais Jones who was the winner in the 400-meter hurdles.

"We knew that we had a good team, but we didn't think we would do this well. The kids performed well for us. We had good performances all around," Lancon said. ■

Nia Kiggundu, a member of the Sun Belt All-Conference Team in 1993, returns a shot for the Lady Cajuns.

Young Team Volleys for Wins

The Lady Cajun Volleyball team opened the year under a new head coach, Cheryl Morgan. The team was young with only four returning lettermen from last's year squad and six newcomers on the team. However, Coach Morgan believed, "We have the talent and enthusiasm to go far with many successes."

The Lady Cajuns started the season in Hammond, La., against SLU where they lost 1-3. Their first of only nine wins came against Mercer whom they defeated narrowly 3-2. They went on to lose the next seven matches until they defeated NLU 3-1 and followed that up with a loss to UNO. The high point of the season for the team was winning four straight matches. They followed that string of wins with four consecutive losses, however.

The team went on to lose the last four matches of the regular season and finish 3-6 in conference and 9-21 overall. They finished in seventh place in conference, just short of qualifying for the Sun Belt Conference Tournament, for which only the top six teams advance.

There were some bright spots for this young Lady Cajun squad. Sophomore Nia Kiggundu ranked nationally in both kills and digs, she placed 11th and 16th respectively. She was helped to the 11th place ranking in kills by a stunning 38 kills in a match against UNO.

Kiggundu was also named to the 1994 All-Conference First Team and All-Louisiana First Team. ■

Good Parts Make a Better Team

Lady Cajun softball team lands five All-Americans

Jason Kaliszewski

Pitcher Kyla Hall earned her fourth mention on the All-American squad, which came as no surprise to anyone.

In a team sport, individual players can make a difference. Often, a team is only as good as its individual parts, entities which blend their personal skills together for collective success. For the Lady Cajun softball team, 1994 was a year of both team and individual success.

Under the guidance and leadership of head coach Yvette Girouard, the team compiled a 57-4 record, a regular season No. 2 national ranking, and another trip to the NCAA Regional Tournament—a journey that is becoming commonplace for the Lady Cajuns.

For her efforts, Girouard was named Coach of the Year in the South for the fifth year in a row. But she wasn't alone in striving to be the best she could be and in helping the team achieve success through all-out individual effort.

Six players from the 1994 Lady Cajun softball team earned All-American status for their performances during the season; four players were named to the first-team All American squad; one player was named to the second team; and one player was named to the third-team squad.

Heading the list of Lady Cajun All-Americans was pitcher Kyla Hall. In 1994, Hall finished with a 31-3 mark and a 0.49 earned run average. She has 21 shutouts, eight no-hitters, five perfect games, and struck out 240 batters. She also made her fourth consecutive appearance on the All-American list. For her career, Hall, who broke nearly all Lady Cajun pitching records, notched 104 wins, a 0.56 earned-run average, 56 shutouts, and 18 no-hitters.

She finished her career with USL records for no-hitters, perfect games, strikeouts, wins, complete games, and shutouts.

"She's not only been the best pitcher we've ever had, she's been the biggest competitor we've ever had," said

USL's Stephanie DeFeo, who made first Team All-American as a designated player, takes out a catcher at Lady Cajun Park.

Alyson Habetz, a 1994 third team All-American, struck out only four times in 169 at bats.

Paul Angelle

Girouard in an interview with The Vermilion.

Joining Hall on the first-team list were outfielders Kathy Morton and Lana Jimenez and designated player Stephanie DeFeo.

While Hall was setting down opposing batters in record fashion, Morton was lighting up opposing pitching staffs as the junior right fielder set JSL season highs for batting with a .440 average and runs driven in with 68. Morton also set USL season marks for hits (85), doubles (32), and extra base hits (34) and is primed for a stellar senior season.

Jimenez sparkled as a freshman for the Cajuns as she batted .397 and stole 15 bases during the year, showing her versatility.

Freshman DeFeo hit .435 on the year and tied for the team lead in home runs with seven. She set a single-season record for slugging percentage with a .739 clip.

Lynn Britton, a sophomore third baseman, made the second team All-American squad with a lethal combination of power, hitting for average, and solid defense at the hot corner. Britton's numbers for the season include a .356 average, six homers, 36 runs batted in, and a fielding percentage of .962. She looks to continue to be a leader on offense and defense for the Lady Cajuns in the next two years.

Senior first baseman Alyson Habetz was recognized by the third team All-American squad. Habetz, an Acadiana product, batted .320 with 33 runs driven in and a mere four strikeouts in 169 at-bats. She also tied a team record with seven triples on the season.

All six players were named as All-South selections.

In the 1994 season, the Lady Cajuns showed that—as in a well-seasoned gumbo—good parts can lead to a better whole. ■

keeps rebuilding and rebuilding...

Keeyada Robinson, who averaged 7.3 points per game and 5.0 rebounds per game, battles to put up a shot.

Rome, as the old saying goes, wasn't built in a day. Neither, it seems, is the Lady Cajun Basketball program.

The program has made great strides since its all-time low three years ago, when the team posted a 0-27 mark. Two years ago, it improved to 4-22, and last year the team moved to 6-21 and 4-1 in the Sun Belt, despite playing one of the toughest schedules in the history of the program. The Lady Cajuns played 12 teams that were nationally ranked and played in the NCAA or the WNIT post-season tournaments.

Head coach Dwayne Searle (13-9 career at USL) struggled throughout his fourth season, losing his first six and going through a five-game skid, includin a 44-100 blowout by the perennial Sun Belt powerhouse, Louisiana Tech. The Lady Cajuns closed out the season with four straight losses. The team averaged 57.3 points per game but were outscored to a tune of 75.7 average. Despite their struggles, Searle remained optimistic.

"We're going to try to get after people on both ends of the court a little more," Searle said. "We're not going to have quite the height and size to match up with a lot of the teams we play, but our speed and quickness is going to be better."

Searle has good reason to feel optimistic about the future. This past season he was without Alyson Habetz, who sat out last season to concentrate on her duties with the softball squad.

During the 1992-93 season, she started 17 of 26 games, averaging 12.9 points and 3.1 rebounds and nailing 63 three-point shots, achieving Academic All-American honors.

Forward Frederica Wills was the Lady Cajuns' leading scorer at 11.6 points a game, including a season-high 34 points in a home win over South Alabama. Wills also averaged 5.1 rebounds.

Monique Melancon paced the conference in steals with 77 for a 2.9 average and averaged five points per game as well as 2.7 rebounds. Sophomore Keeyada Robinson started the final 12 games, exploding during the last six weeks of the season and averaging 7.4 points and 4.9 rebounds, including a winning last-second turnaround jumper for a win over Lamar.

Rounding out the team were forwards Lori Deville, Monica Fisher and Christie Lofton. Deville averaged 4.0 points with 2.4 rebounds and provided some needed size up the middle. Fisher played every game and averaged 2.4 points and 1.1 rebounds. Lofton struggled last year, but still managed 1.7 points with 3.1 rebounds—her boards were fifth best on the team. Finally, point guard Tara Shamsie was USL's best in the lane last year and provided a needed spark with her play off the bench. Although she averaged 2.1 points, she was invaluable in her role as a reserve. Latasha Mitchell, a guard, struggled all season recovering from a knee injury. ■

Last Volley in Lawsuit is Returned

On August 8, 1994, a suit by a former USL volleyball player that claimed a violation of civil rights, defamation of character, and invasion of privacy against USL athletic administrators and former L'Acadien student life editor, Trent Myers, was thrown out of court.

The suit centered around events that occurred after the team's loss in the Sun Belt Tournament in 1991 and around an article entitled "Breaking Training," that appeared in the 1991 L'Acadien, A Shock to the System.

The yearbook article focused on the disappointing loss that the volleyball team suffered in the Sun Belt Tournament in Jonesboro, Ark., in November 1991.

The article also detailed events in which the former volleyball coach, Cheryl Lambert, discovered that four players had brought alcohol to the tournament and had been drinking after the game. Lambert subsequently removed the four players from the team.

In the article, Lambert commented that, "The drinking was the icing on the cake. To have the opportunity to go to conference and be the conference champs meant everything to me. Because of their action, because of bringing the alcohol, I don't think it mattered to them. That upset me more than the actual drinking that went on."

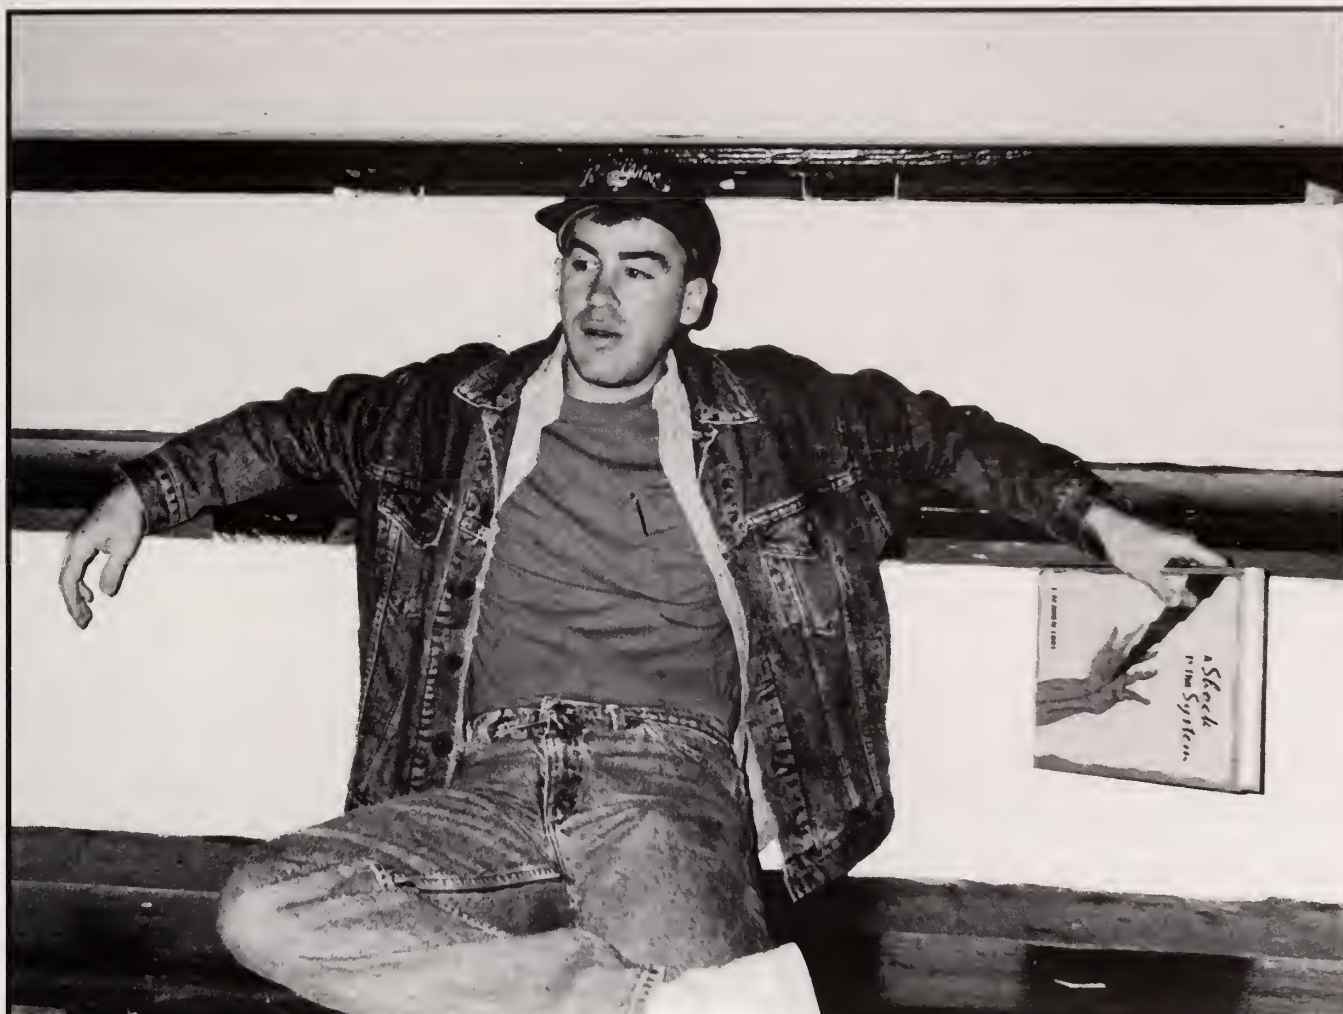

One of the players who was removed from the team filed a lawsuit against USL, claiming that the women had been treated unfairly. The suit also claimed that the yearbook article had invaded the privacy of the player, according to William Goode, the attorney representing USL and Myers.

The suit also attested that the university had violated the player's civil rights and filed for due process, equal protection, and sexual discrimination as well as defamation.

In a summary judgment, the case was dismissed.

"It's not normal to get a dismissal on this type of case," Goode said. "We were correct in our position. We were ready for trial, but I was able to convince the judge of my position." ■

Former L'Acadien Editor Trent Myers, still haunted by his 1991 volleyball story, admits, "I'm so glad it's over."

USL Basketball has Greatest Recruiting Year Ever

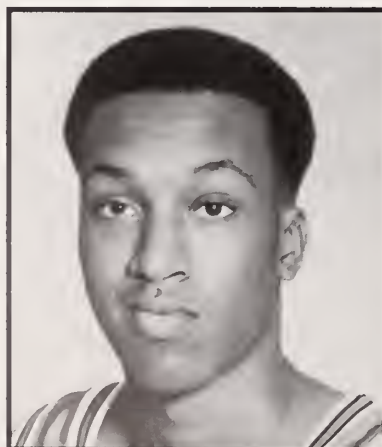

“These young players are highly thought of. We’re delighted that they’re coming here.”

A bright orange and yellow necktie with a smiling sun near the bottom hangs on head basketball coach Marty Fletcher’s office wall. This cravat—affectionally labeled by some as Fletcher’s “good-day-sunshine” tie—is a symbol of both the success and the colorful style of the Ragin’ Cajun basketball team in recent years.

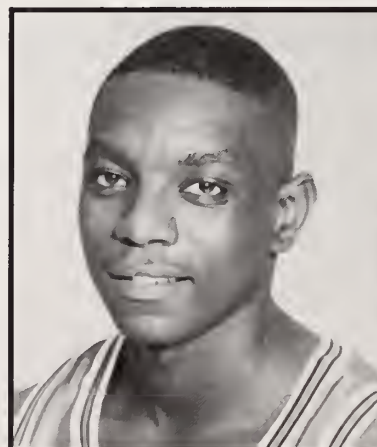

Past team accomplishments have included NCAA Tournament appearances two of the last three years, Two Sun Belt Tournament Championships, and one regular season Sun Belt Championship. In addition to these marks, USL has best winning percentage in conference games in the history of the Sun Belt Conference.

Gone from the 1994-95 roster are senior backcourt mates Michael Allen and Byron Starks, one of the most potent guard combinations in the country, super thief Shawn Griggs who led the nation in steals last season, and Tony Moore who came off the bench much of last year to complement the Cajun’s potent offense with his outside shooting.

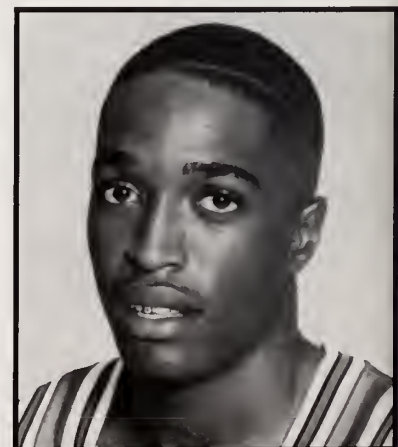

With 1994 and its successful 22-8 record behind him, head coach Marty Fletcher is looking for a change in his starting cast—a transition that will hopefully continue the winning ways of the Ragin’ Cajuns. Hoping to run and gun for another 20-win season, Fletcher and his coaching staff welcomed seven talented and highly-touted freshmen to the team in 1994, a recruiting class that has been ranked nationally by several media publications across the country.

New to Ragin' Cajun basketball in 1994 are four players from the state of Louisiana, including the exciting New Iberia combination of 6-7 forward Chris Manuel and 6-8 forward Kevin Price, two players who will add size to the Ragin' Cajun frontcourt. Also from Louisiana are 6-7 Shreveport native Reginald Poole and 6-3 guard Chris Snowden, from Waterproof, who should see plenty of playing time with Allen, Starks, and Moore gone.

Three out-of state players, Ron Bailey, 6-7, from Louisville, Ky., Ahlon Lewis, a 6-0 guard from Houston, and Eric Medeaux, 6-7, from Beaumont, Texas, complete a recruiting class that should prove to be one of the best in USL's history.

"These young players are highly thought of," Fletcher said. "We're delighted that they're coming here. It's going to be an adjustment for them to compete at the college level of play, however. This will be the least-experienced basketball team we've had. With the loss of our senior leadership, these young players will have to play and contribute right away.

"We have a lot of pieces to be put together. This group is young, hopefully they will grow quickly," Fletcher added.

Butch Pierre, Todd Reinhardt, and John Lyles constituted Fletcher's coaching staff last year and Fletcher credits their efforts as essential to recruiting this exciting group of young players. "These guys did a marvelous job for USL," Fletcher said.

Ragin' Cajun basketball is up tempo. It involves multiple defenses and is designed to take advantage of the open court. "It is a fun style of playing basketball," said Fletcher.

"We've used this style for the last eight years. We like to score 90 points a game, but we can also be successful in 50-point games."

In addition to developing the basketball skills of young men, Fletcher aims to heighten the character in his players.

"We put more pressure on our players to be good citizens and to take care of their responsibilities than winning basketball games. We want our guys to work hard and to do well off the floor," Fletcher said.

When asked just how far this young and talented team of Cajuns can go, Fletcher, noting the difficulty of predicting how young players react to the pressure of college basketball, responded, "We'll have to wait and see."

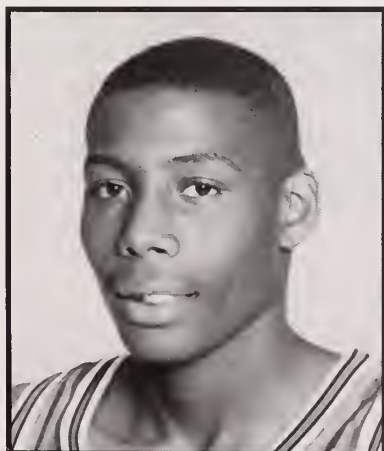

For Cajun fans, this wait has the potential to be an exciting and colorful four-year period. ■

Coach Nelson Stokley said of Shafer, "He's got a great leg... he helped us win football games last year."

Can You Top Perfection?

USL Place-kicker
Mike Shafer
Never Missed

Paul Angelle

"I try to make every one I kick," said USL's junior place-kicker Mike Shafer when asked how long his string of perfect kicks was going to last near the end of the 1994 season.

"I try not to think about missing, and I pride myself on consistency."

Shafer's perfect 14-of-14 field goal performance in 1994 included only one more made field goal than his 1993 effort. But in 1993, there were 19 attempts. Two of his six misses were in the rain against Florida.

Also in 1993, there was a void to fill, with the departure of Richie Cunningham. Cunningham was one of USL's best kickers since the days of Raphael Septien, who went on to notoriety as a Dallas Cowboy.

Cunningham did lose out on the Dallas job in 1994 to former Louisiana

Paul Angelle

Everything seemed to go perfectly for Shafer with punter Mike Jones' hold.

Paul Angelle

Tech kicker Chris Boniol.

Shafer answered the call, and before he missed his first attempt in Florida in 1993, he had tied former kicker Mike Lemoine's record of nine straight field goals without a miss.

Shafer missed his last attempt against Louisiana Tech for 1993, but in all fairness so did Tech's Boniol, who was mentioned by Football Digest as the best free agent acquisition of 1994.

Shafer hit his first field goal in 1994; he hit his last field goal of 1994.

And he hit every field goal in between, a total of 14 in a row.

That tied an NCAA record for most consecutive field goals in a season and destroyed the former Cajun record that he had tied of nine in a row.

There was an opportunity for Shafer to break the NCAA record in the closing seconds of the 1994 season finale against Western Michigan.

After the Cajuns had battled back from a 14-0 deficit and sat atop the Broncos 17-14, USL had the ball well within Shafer's range and head coach Nelson Stokley chose to run out the clock and go into the locker room with the win.

"There's too many things that can go wrong with a field goal," said Stokley. "They gave us the win, and it was my job to take it. (Shafer's) foot had been bothering him this week in practice anyway.

"But he had a tremendous year, and next year I think he's capable of doing it again. He's got a great leg and a better attitude."

Shafer was the first kicker signed by Stokley out of high school, and if 1995 is anything like 1994, it will be tough to top perfection. ■

Antic Bird Makes Final Appearance at USL

The F a b u l o u s Cajun Chicken Flies Away

Matt Tarver

Each USL football and basketball game is Halloween for the Fabulous Cajun Chicken.

Whether he dresses up as Elvis, Michael Jackson, a robot, a shark-dodging deep-sea diver, or the grim reaper, the antics of this drum-banging bird are well received by USL fans of all ages.

The Fabulous Cajun Chicken was developed by Russell Heim, a 1980 civil engineering graduate of USL who works for Marathon Oil Company in Lafayette. Heim began donning a chicken suit in October 1984. He recalled that he was asked on a Thursday in the fall of 1984 to come up with a character concept by game time that Saturday. "The only thing that I could find was a bird costume at the fun shop. That's how the Cajun Chicken was born," Heim said.

Originally designed for football only, the popularity of the Fabulous Cajun Chicken soon spread to basketball games and other events. "I just love performing," Heim said.

David W. Varisco is the performance coordinator for the Fabulous Cajun Chicken. "Right now we've got our new tear away skits, tear away pants. Those are popular," Varisco said.

"We feel that when parents are needing to bring kids to games, the Chicken gives kids something to look forward to or to keep them occupied while the game is going on. We've been told by a lot of parents that it really works well for them. And the kids and the Chicken just get along really well."

Heim and Varisco form The Fabulous Cajun Chicken Inc. and perform at no cost to the university. The Fabulous Cajun Chicken is sponsored by Lafayette Motors.

Despite the popularity of the Fabulous Cajun Chicken, 1994-95 will be the last season that he will make regular appearances at USL sporting events. Heim stated that he has some offers from professional organizations and is looking forward to performing at minor league baseball games.

He does, however, hope to make a few special appearances at USL during the 1995-96 sports season. Feb. 26, 1995, was scheduled as his last appearance at a USL sporting event.

"We had a great time, a lot of fun over eleven years. I've been in a costume for 13 years, altogether," Heim said. "Halloween is my day off." ■

No Doubting Thomas

Free Safety Named All-American

Matt Tarver

Orlando Thomas, the nation's leader in interceptions in 1993, trots back to the huddle after defending a pass.

Whether he punished opposing offenses with bone-crunching tackles or hurt them with acrobatic interceptions, Orlando Thomas left his mark with the USL football program.

Thomas, a native of Crowley, La., ended a stellar four-year career with the Cajuns in 1994, a career that included back-to-back Big West Conference titles and a 14-3 record in the past two years.

As the team's defensive quarterback, Thomas' stealth-like style of play garnered him national attention. In 1993, Thomas, part of the Ragin Cajuns' gambling and blitzing defense, led the nation in interceptions with nine. He was named second-team All-American by UPI and was a third-team All-American Selection by AP. He was also selected co-defensive Player of the Year in Big West Conference in 1993.

In 1994, even with offenses avoiding him, Thomas recorded six interceptions and finished with 18 aerial thefts in his career. Thomas had four, two-interception games in his career at USL.

As well as defending the pass, Thomas was a force in stopping the run. He finished 1994 with 102 total tackles and closed his USL career with 347, second in USL history. Thomas led the Cajuns in 1994 in fumbles recovered, forced fumbles, solo tackles and tied for the lead in interceptions. He also recorded three sacks during the past season.

He helped the Cajun defense to lead the Big West Conference in total defense, passing defense, and scoring defense.

In 1994, Thomas was named to 1994 first-team All-American pre-season by Athlon's, Street & Smith's Football News and The Sporting News.

He was also honored with a first-team All American selection by Football News and a second team selection by UPI and AP.

Thomas was invited to play in three post-season college all-star games. And the 6-2, 213 pound senior is expected to be a high draft pick in the spring 1995 NFL Draft. ■

Robichaux Leads Off for the Cajuns

USL Names New Baseball Coach

Matt Tarver

Former USL pitcher Tony Robichaux was named the 10th head coach of the USL baseball team on Sept. 22, 1994.

Robichaux comes to Lafayette from McNeese State University, where he was the winningest head coach in the program's history.

"We think we have one of the finest young baseball coaches in the country in Tony," said USL Athletic Director Nelson Schexnayder. "We look forward to the continued growth and success of our program under his proven leadership."

A native of Crowley, Robichaux led the Cowboys to a 244-149 record over his career. His .621 winning percentage is the highest in Cowboy history, and he never had a losing season in his seven years as head coach.

"There is no question that Tony has been, and will continue to be, a very successful coach and the type of person that can lead a quality program," Schexnayder said.

Robichaux, 33, played baseball at Notre Dame High School in Crowley. He played one season at USL as a pitcher in 1984, compiling a 6-1 record and a 2.58 earned run average in 14 appearances for the Cajuns.

"We want to continue and build on the success that has been here," Robichaux said.

"I think we can be a good ball club, but I think we have a blue-collar team, and I also think we will have to execute, throw the ball straight, and play good defense to be successful."

"I think that will have to be our style because we won't have the overall ability to sit back and hit the ball out of the ball park." ■

NCAA Tournament

Fans Watch on TV
But Hearts are With Team

Matt Tarver

As a massive 45-inch television was wheeled into Groucho's in the Student Union, fans of the USL basketball team had high expectations. Led by four talented seniors, the Ragin' Cajun basketball team prepared to meet the Marquette Warriors before 24,299 fans at the Thunderdome in St. Petersburg, Fla.

The 1994 NCAA Tournament marked the second appearance in three years for the Ragin' Cajuns. USL was the only school from Louisiana to have a team make it to the national tournament in 1994.

For those who could not attend the game in Florida, watching it on television would have to suffice. Students crammed the Student Union and anxiously awaited the tip off of what promised to be an exciting and up-tempo game.

In addition to the large-screen television placed in the center of Groucho's, several smaller televisions located to the side of the establishment were also tuned into the game.

With another 20-plus win season and one of the most potent backcourt combinations in the country, the Ragin' Cajuns hoped that outside shooting and tough defense, led by NCAA steal leader Shawn Griggs, would propel them past the first round of the NCAA Tournament.

Fans packed the Student Union during lunch to be with friends, enjoy a break from classes, and support the USL athletic program. As the game began, the uproar in the union easily muffled the commentators on television.

As the game progressed, shouts of "Stop 'em," "Put it up," and "Run, run, get it," were common as the fans in the union urged their team on, hoping that their vocal support could be transmitted through the televisions and provide a boost to the Cajuns' effort.

USL led by three points at halftime. But a slow start in the second half and poor shooting late in the game doomed the Cajun effort. Michael Allen paced the team with 23 points. Byron Collins added 16 points. No other player on the squad scored in double figures, however, and the Cajuns shot a mere 38 percent from the floor for the game. Marquette was led by Damon Key who scored 24 points and Roney Elford who scored 20 points, as the Warriors shot 45 percent from the floor and attempted 10 more free throws than the Cajuns. The Cajuns were also out-rebounded by Marquette 49-30. The game slowly slipped away from the Cajuns in the second half, and the 81-59 final score did not reflect the intensity of the contest or the competitiveness of the Cajuns.

Fans left the Student Union emotionally spent and probably a little hoarse. But most were proud of their team, a team which used a hustling style, tough defense, and outside shooting to reach a level worthy of national attention. ■

The new state-of-the-art weight room offers both free weights and machines.

In a world of fierce competition, athletes are always searching for new and better ways to gain a competitive edge. Many ideas have been pursued over the years ranging from the first Olympiad to the most current Super Bowl but one fact still remains . . . raw determination and skill, accompanied by weight lifting and conditioning, is still the best way to pursue athletic excellence.

USL athletes are no strangers to ferocious competition. With a successful record in virtually every sport from football to water skiing in 1994, USL athletes are still looking for ways to run faster, jump higher, and throw harder.

As of August 1994, Cajun athletes are able to improve themselves in their respective sports by the addition of a new weight room facility located in the athletic complex near Cajun Field.

"A new weight room project was first discussed when Sam Robertson was the football coach," said Nelson Schexnayder, USL athletic director. "I think those discussions were along the lines of 'It would be nice to improve it and how we can make it better.' I think it got its emphasis when Nelson Stokley was athletic director."

The new facility includes a large locker room for the Cajun football team, two meeting rooms, and a top-of-the-line weight and conditioning room.

"The one that we had, we had just outgrown it," Schexnayder said. "The original weight room was built, as was this whole complex, before we had women's athletics. We have since added all our women's sports.

There's been a greater emphasis on weight training not only for strength and size but also prevention of injury, better agility, and improved speed. All sports are now taking advantage of the weight room, and we had just outgrown the size of the old weight room.

"I think the total project cost was in the neighborhood of half a million dollars," Schexnayder said. "Our weight room was finally designed and built and then was furnished by Body Masters of Rayne. It contains free weights and machines such as weight benches, leg press machines, and many other weight lifting machines. Body Masters furnished the weight room at no cost to the university or athletics which has been a tremendous help for us. Not only are they one of the best in the world, they're also USL alumni and friends. It's a great partnership for us," Schexnayder added.

"All our athletes, all sports, men and women, are able to use the facility. We schedule times, and Jeff Jordan, our strength and conditioning coach, works with all of our athletes.

He has a student system and all our coaches work with the athletes on particular strength and conditioning programs. It's available to all our athletes at different times when it's best for them," said Schexnayder.

"Now we have a first-class facility which is much safer and can accommodate our athletes much better. We have the tools which can hopefully make us better on the field and on the court." ■

The USL cheerleaders are dedicated to supporting the athletic program. As student athletes, the cheerleaders donate their time, energy, and skills to make sure that other USL athletes never have an emotional letdown during a game.

“I love cheerleading. I can’t imagine not cheering. I love getting the crowd into the game,” said Crystal Whitney, a four-year member of the USL cheerleading squad and captain of the cheerleaders for the past three years.

“There is nothing like being a cheerleader in the Cajundome when everyone is on their feet and shouting U-S-L,” Whitney said. “Knowing that, as a cheerleader, I helped to get that momentum going from the fans is a big boost of adrenaline."

"I like being involved, working together, and supporting USL," said Amy Fournet, an elementary education junior and two-year member of the squad. "I enjoy leading the fans when they cheer and letting the athletes know that we are there supporting them," Fournet added.

"I like standing in front of a crowd performing. I've always been involved in athletics, and cheering helps me stay busy and involved, and it helps with school spirit," said John Charles, a junior in education/health and physical education and co-captain of the 1994 squad.

"The program has come a long way since I started," Whitney said. The only thing I get discouraged about is that sometimes we are not able to go places we'd like to go because of a lack of funding. I wish we could go to more out-of-town games because, by going to other schools, we are able to get ideas for our squad from watching other cheerleaders."

"I enjoy everything about cheerleading. . . practice, games, trips, everything," replied Gi Gi Blanchard, cheerleading coach. "There are no scholarships for cheerleaders; they don't get paid. They cheer because they love to get the crowd into the game," Blanchard said.

Despite limited funding, the cheerleaders thrive on providing a lively and upbeat atmosphere at USL sporting events.

Besides cheering football and basketball games, the Cajun cheerleaders also perform at alumni functions, and they participate in cheerleading clinics for high school squads in the Acadiana area.

Although the Cajun cheerleaders make the stunts they perform look easy, the team puts in about six hours of practice each week to perfect such skills.

And the squad members must try out for the team each year as well as be available to practice year-round.

"We don't get anything by being a cheerleader except a pair of tennis shoes, but our pay is seeing the fans hollering and screaming for the Cajuns," Whitney said. "That is how we are paid." ■

Along with the glamour, smiling faces, and shining costumes, comes a lot of hard work and dedication.

"We practice three days a week for the whole school year," said senior co-captain Staci Montgomery. "This year, I'm especially proud of the team because we are all studio-trained dancers. We can perform routines that are a lot more stylized than in the past."

Team members are required to try out for the squad each week in order to dance in that week's performance. The performance is different each week, so the members of the team must learn a dance in a single day and be prepared to

"I've been around dance for a long time, and they're among the most talented I've ever seen. When you work hard together, you learn a lot about each other and become close. You learn to appreciate each other's hard work."

Along with USL athletic events, the Ragin' Jazz participated in the Universal Dance Association Camp in 1994, and over half the squad was asked to return and try out for positions on the camp staff in 1995.

The team also had a special segment featuring their singing talent on head basketball coach Marty Fletcher's "On the Baseline" television program. ■

Nineteen ninety-four marked the first year of Chris Gannon's college football coaching career.

But 1994 was by no means Gannon's first experience with USL.

Gannon played collegiate football at USL from 1985 until 1988. In 1988, The Sporting News picked Gannon as a pre-season All-American. Also, he garnered first team All-Louisiana and first team All-Independent in both of the 1987 and 1988 campaigns.

Gannon was drafted by the New England Patriots in the third round of the 1989 NFL draft. He played for the Patriots for four seasons, and retired in order to join the Cajun coaching staff this past summer.

Gannon has remained close to USL, volunteering assistance whenever he had time off from the NFL. He remained in Lafayette throughout the off-season in order to stay close to the program. His wife Ruth Ann is from here. ■

Guercio Moves On Vallot and Wilson Move In

Patti Guercio, former Dean of Greek Life, left USL in May of 1994 to pursue other endeavors. "It was time for a new challenge," Guercio said of her decision to move on.

"I had been at USL for three years, and I felt like I had given everything I could there as dean of Greeks, and I was ready for a change."

As Dean of Greeks, Guercio's responsibilities included the Greek Governing Board, the Interfraternity Council, and the Panhellenic Council. She was also adviser to the 21 Greek organizations on campus. She worked with the sorority and fraternity row houses and also taught a Greek leadership class. Guercio conducted several yearly conferences and headed all Greek activities and Greek recruitment at student orientations.

Although Guercio said she does miss USL, she is very happy with her new position as assistant director of residence life and student activities at Brenau University in Gainesville, Ga. She said the university is a small women's college that operates on the quarter system.

Shortly after Guercio's departure, her position was filled by two former USL students: Kelli Vallot, a former graduate assistant in the nursing department, and Shawn Wilson, former Student Government Association president. Both Vallot and Wilson are members of the Greek system. Wilson is a member of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, and Vallot is a member of Phi Mu Sorority.

When asked how they heard about the position, Vallot replied, "I heard Patty (Guercio) was leaving and I sent her a note wishing her well. In return, she sent me a flier advertising the position. I submitted my resume, went on two formal interviews and was offered the job."

"I simply heard through word of mouth," Wilson said. "I then submitted a resume, went on two formal interviews and was offered the job."

Wilson and Vallot agreed that they enjoy their jobs and put their hearts and souls into their work.

"I don't think Shawn or myself are the type of people who would do something we didn't enjoy doing," Vallot said.

When asked if the transition from student to administrator an easy one, both agreed that having already established a rapport with students helped them to have respect as administrators from the students.

"Being a USL alumnus and already being familiar with the campus and its administrators also made for an easier transition," Wilson said. "It may not have been so easy for someone from the outside coming in."

When asked how she felt about Vallot and Wilson replacing her, Guercio stated, "At first I had mixed feelings about two people taking my place because I really enjoyed being able to work with both fraternities and sororities, but the Greek system does have some room for growth."

"Before I left, I gave Shawn and Kelli the run down on the system, and I think they will do a great job," she said. ■

Alpha Kappa Alpha

Jaleh Kazemi and Erica Leblanc

According to Tanisha Hickman, a general studies senior member of Alpha Kappa Alpha, the sorority's greatest project this year has been its continued involvement with the Lafayette Martin Luther King Center. AKA started a Literacy Corps Program at the center teach adults how to read and write and tutor school children with their homework, she explained.

"We're still involved with the Literacy Corps Program," Hickman noted. "We now mostly help neighborhood kids do their homework. When you help a child study for a test, and he comes back the next day to tell you he made an A on his test, it makes you feel great."

Hickman said that one of the reasons that AKA members volunteer to help the center is the organization's focus on service.

"Our sorority does a lot for the black community because that 's what we're about, servitude," she added.

AKA President Lezlie Jones agreed on the importance of "giving back to the community."

"Other organizations are founded for social reasons," Jones remarked, "but we believe if you put service to your community first, the rest falls into place. At first, I didn't expect the kids at the center to accomplish as much as they did, but they are really smart.

"They just need a lot of attention that they can't always get at home. Hopefully we can be like their older sisters and give them the guidance and attention they need.

"Another one of our projects is our Founder's Day Celebration Awards which we organize with the ladies in our Graduate Chapter."

Hickman underlined the different awards given on Founder's Day.

"This day is important because it recognizes achievement within our group," she emphasized. "This time, we will be recognizing our past President Tracey Biagas and our Graduate Adviser, Connie Butler. She's been a member of our sorority for 33 years, so she's a life-member. She's been helping us a lot with her support."

Jones said she urges students to join an organization.

"Being in AKA gets me involved with the community," noted Jones. "I probably wouldn't think of tutoring kids on my own. It teaches you leadership and how to act a certain way. I also know a lot more people on campus."

Hickman explained that although AKA is a predominantly African-American organization, it in no way excludes white girls.

Stacey Montgomery said she chose AKA because of its positive voice on campus and because she looked highly upon AKA's positive role models.

"We are dedicated to public service," said Montgomery. This is evident in the sorority's various public services projects.

"You don't have to be an African-American to be a member of our group," she added.

"In fact, we have white members. Most African-American sororities have white members but I have yet to see a black member in a white sororities. I wish they would be more accepting of minorities." ■

Alpha Omicron Pi

Jaleh Kazemi

One of Alpha Omicron Pi's major achievements is raising $17,000 for its national philanthropy this year, explained sorority president and sociology senior Kerry Tauzin.

"Our goal was to raise $2,000, so we were pretty close to reaching it," said Tauzin. "We've raised more money than the previous year, so we are happy about that too. We also won first place during USL Greek Week for the Philanthropy Award. The judges look at reports from each group showing what kind of program they have."

Tauzin underlined some of the activities organized by the sorority to raise money for its philanthropy which is the Arthritis Foundation.

"We go to houses on Halloween with flyers and explain who we are," recalled Tauzin, who has participated in this program two years in a row.

"We basically trick or treat for money through various neighborhoods in Lafayette. It was my second time doing it this year. It was kind of awkward the first year because we ran out of flyers."

"This time, all of us wore our letters, and we had enough flyers with the proper information on it so the people could understand why we were asking for donations."

Another AOII tradition is a carwash organized at Sonic located on Johnston St. in Lafayette.

"We usually also hold a car wash at Sonic every year," she added. "This time, KATC-TV3 came, and they showed us washing cars on the news the same day."

Other AOII accomplishments include winning first place in the USL Homecoming Sweepstakes for the second year in a row and obtaining second place for Outstanding Chapter, said Tauzin.

"Our big project for this upcoming fall is going to be planning Alcohol Awareness Week," Tauzin noted. "We already participated in a program called 'Our Chapter, Our Choice' in which facilitators came to our sorority house and held workshops and different skits about the risks involved in drinking. Sororities and Fraternities participate in this program on a volunteer basis, and Phi-Mu and AOII both agreed to get involved. For Alcohol Awareness Week, we'd like to go out for that whole period and have fun without drinking. We'd like students to think about avoiding alcohol-related problems before they get really serious."

Amy Trahan, an English Education Junior, is one of the AOII members in charge of the event.

"Lesley Weimer and I are organizing the week together," explained Weimer. "We want to promote alcohol safety and to support designated driver programs. We are aware that this is a college atmosphere and people want to have a good time, but we're just trying to give a good example about safety," Weimer added.

"During that week, we'll organize different social events without alcoholic beverages like a crawfish boil, and we'll distribute different pamphlets on campus about the consequences of drinking abuse. We're also going to approach different companies in the area in the hope that they can sponsor us. We're planning to donate all the money we raise to a substance abuse facility. We haven't decided on specific dates yet for the week because we're waiting to see when homecoming is." ■

Delta Sigma Theta

Erica LeBlanc

On November 20, 1994, Delta Sigma Theta became the first African American Sorority to step its way to Sorority Row. Although the house that the sorority now has was only recently purchased, the Theta Xi chapter has been on campus since 1971.

"It has always been a dream of the members of this chapter to have a house, and with the hard work and dedication of—not only present—but past members, the dream has become a reality," said chapter president Franchesca Hamilton.

The chapter has been saving money for the past six years to purchase the house. The sorority contributes a large portion of the savings to the success of the annual Greek Show which they sponsor. The sorority entertains audiences with step competitions each spring. The competitions are between sororities and fraternities from across the state.

"One of the many positive aspects of having a house is that we have a permanent place to host different activities," said Rose Prejean, past president. "We also have a place to welcome our visiting sisters," Prejean said.

Despite the chapter's enthusiasm for the house, the members of the chapter expressed concern that it may be a main attraction for prospective members. "We want members who have a genuine interest in Delta Sigma Theta," said Marion Jackson, chapter secretary.

"The purchase of the house was a dream come true, and we hope that it will encourage other Greeks to strive for their goals," said Sherri Stringfellow. "Whether their goal is to purchase a house or something else with a lot of hard work, these dreams will come true," Stringfellow added.

Founded in 1913 at Howard University at Washington, D.C., Delta Sigma theta was formed for the advancement of black women. The sorority has a strong tradition of public service. In keeping with the tradition, the USL chapter prides itself on its numerous public service projects. One such program is Summit 3, an activity in which the sorority members become big sisters for boys in the community. Another program, Summit 4, focuses on AIDS awareness for which members distribute pamphlets in the Student Union.

The chapter has also developed an Adopt-A-Grandparent program with a local nursing home, and they also visit local hospitals, schools, and homeless shelters during the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays. ■

Delta Delta Delta

Nineteen ninety-four has proven to be an eventful year for Tri Delta. Recognition, service and achievement are only a few of the words that can summarize the year for Tri Delta's accomplishments.

In the spring, Greek Week was a time of recognition for Tri Delta. The sisters of Tri Delta received top honors for the week with the Dean's Award and the Chapter Progress Award. Also, in a total 10 areas of judging, Tri Delta placed first in two categories and was a runner-up in three. The winning categories were On-Campus Involvement (First), Public Relations (First), Inter-Greek Relations (Runner-Up), Sisterhood (Runner-Up), and Educational Programming (Runner-Up). This one week served as a moment for Tri Delta to be acknowledged for their continuous devotion to excellence. Their hard work certainly paid off.

In the fall, Tri Delta held its first Rock-a-Thon to benefit children's cancer charities, their national philanthropy. The Rock-a-Thon is the first of what may become an annual event.

The chapter collected donations prior to the event and also accepted donations on the day of the Rock-a-Thon.

The sisters of Tri Delta rocked for the cause for eight hours in front of Wal-Mart. Their dedication to their national philanthropy was displayed when they were able to donate over $2,000 to a local children's cancer facility.

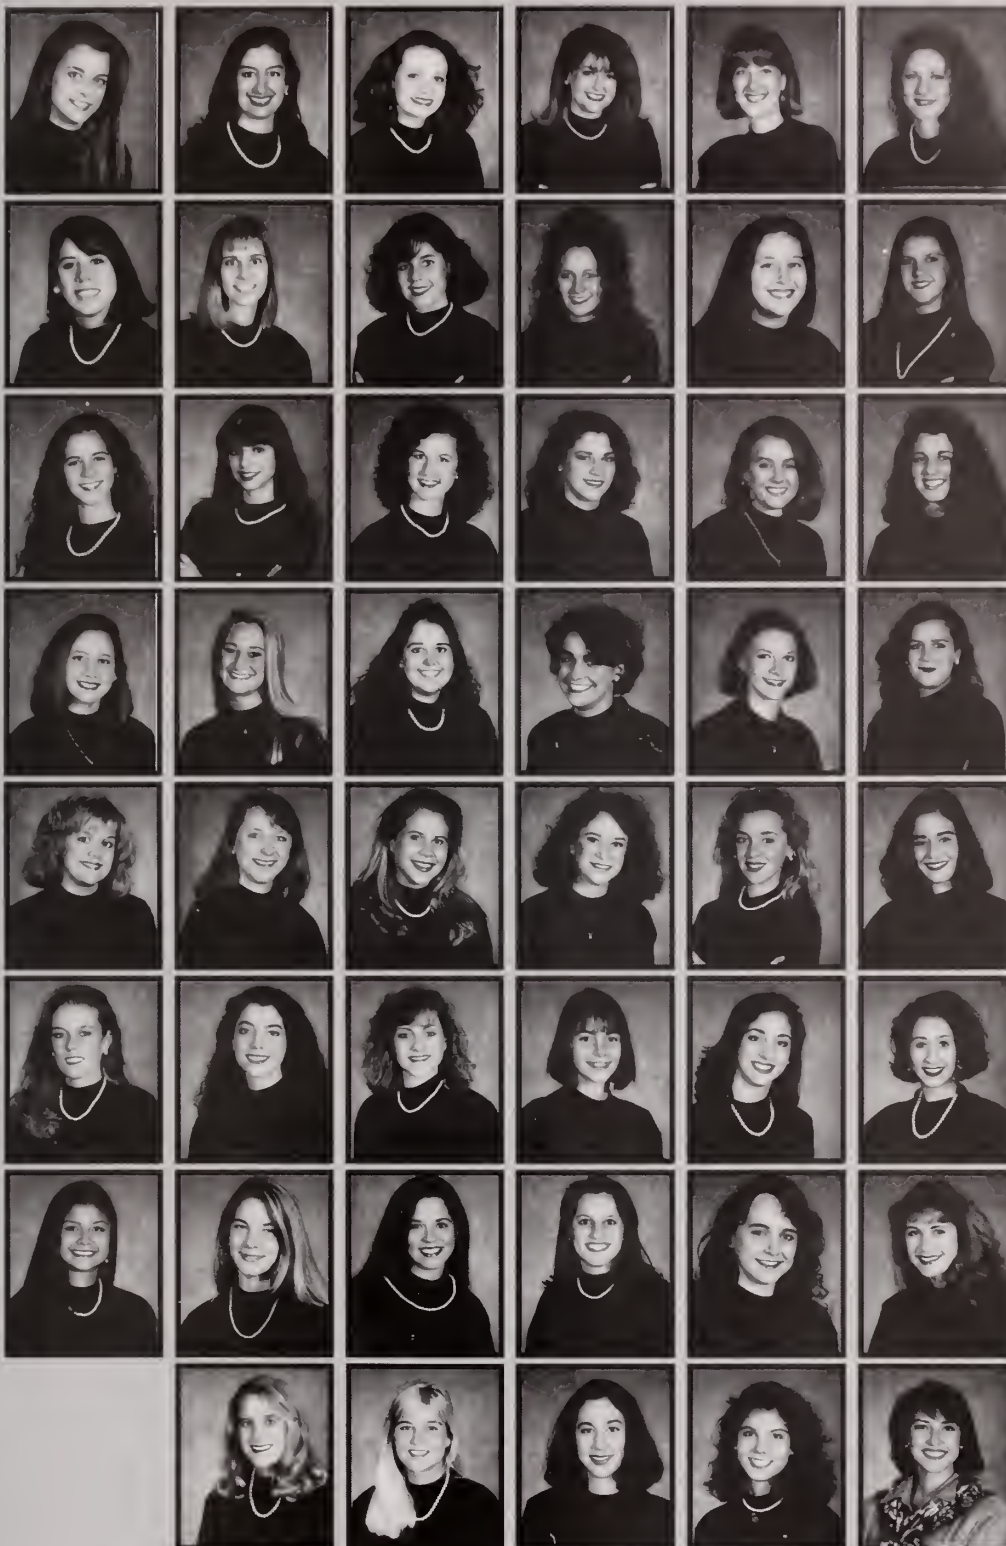

In the area of academic achievement, Tri Delta has continued to excel. Tri Delta has maintained their top position in the rank of grade point averages. After posting the highest grade point average in the fall of last year, they managed to keep their status in the spring with a 2.9 grade point average. Academic achievement is one area that is constantly stressed within the chapter. The Tri Delta sisters work very hard with time management to keep their grades up. Thus far, they have maintained a successful balance in their lives.

Achievement does not stop with academics though. Tri Delta has also excelled in athletics. Flag football has been their major sport. Once again, the Deltas were undefeated during the regular season and were eligible to advance to the state level at the University of New Orleans. This is the fourth year in a row that the Tri Deltas have exhibited their talents in the state tournament. ■

Kappa Delta

Bridgette Granier

Scholarship, philanthropy, and sisterhood are ideals commonly attributed to most sororities. Experience in all of these areas in addition to individuality and pride define the very idea of what it means to become a Kappa Delta sorority sister.

This year the sorority has its largest membership in the past four years. With 58 active members and 29 pledges, Kappa Delta has become the largest sorority on campus.

In 1994, pledges are concentrating on a service project in which they will offer service hours to the Special Olympics.

Helping out at a children's shelter is another focus of the sorority's service program. Tutoring, helping with art classes, and just being a friend to kids in the children's shelter are a few of the service projects that the girls provide. The members of Kappa Delta also help the teenage girls of the shelter with decorating their rooms, using make-up, and putting up displays and bulletin boards.

Along with the philanthropy of the sorority, comes the fundraising activities from which 80% is used locally and 20% is forwarded to the National Committee. The Shamrock Project, an annual fashion show, raised approximately $2,500 for the National Committee for the Prevention of Child Abuse. As of May, nationally, Kappa Delta raised a total of $2,000,000 toward the organization; actual work in collecting funds began in 1921. The Kappa Delta Orthopedic Research Award, founded in 1947, allotted $1,000,000 in aid toward the research of professors and doctors in the orthopedic field.

Not only is the sorority centered around community service, it also focuses on a strong bond of sisterhood, that also allows for the individuality of each member. Over the years, sisterhood has increased for Kappa Delta, but it has always been there.

Each person joins a sorority for different reasons, but what keeps Kappa Delta strong is each girl's individual pride in the sorority," explained sorority president Lynell Duhon. ■

Phi Mu

Erica Leblanc

Phi Mu, one of the largest sororities on campus, was founded in 1852 at Wesleyan College. Phi Mu has grown in many ways since then—not only the Alpha Sigma Chapter on USL's campus, but nationwide as well.

Philanthropy plays a major role in the sorority. Although the sorority does enjoy parties, social and other fun events, the members are also committed to public service. Chapter member Lori Dauzat said, "the main beneficiary of the sorority is the Children's Miracle Network."

The chapter has many service projects during the year which include the "Big Man on Campus," and the "Cute Kids Contest." Dauzat said, "the way the fund raiser works is every fraternity is given an empty milk jug and has 3 days to put as much money in it as possible. The organization with the most money gets to be the 'Big Man on Campus.'"

"This means they get to take the place of a dean for a day," Dauzat said. She also added that the "Cute Kids Contest" is lots of fun. Photos are taken of children and the cutest kid is voted on by local shoppers. The shopper votes by donating money to the chapter. The money is contributed to the Children's Network.

Other activities that the sorority participates in include socials with fraternities on campus, family day, and Founders Day. They also hold various socials with fraternities on campus. "These activities help to maintain Greek relations," Dauzat said.

Tyler Turner, a Phi Mu Pledge said "one of our annual Phi Mu sponsored events includes the Mystery Date."

Laurie Vicknair added, "Each girl chooses three names and gets a date with one of her choices. The "mystery" is that she does not find out until that night which one of her choices is her date."

When asked how exactly do they find out who their date is, Amy Schneider replied, "bows are made for the party. When the guy arrives, they take off their tie, and he is given a bow. The maker of the bow is given his tie. The girls look for their bows and the guys look for their ties. The mystery is solved when the pair finds each other."

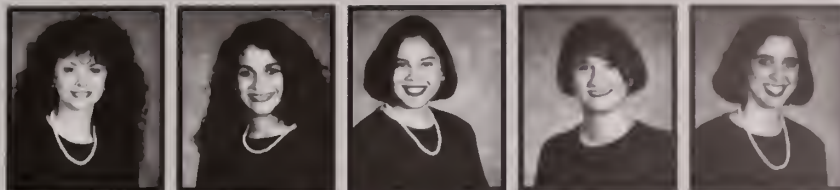

When asked why they were interested in Phi Mu, the group of pledges agreed that Phi Mu was friendly and down to earth. "We all feel at home in their presence. The friendships made here are wonderful, and we are all one big family," Dauzat said. ■

Becky Kazedessus, a General Studies junior and president of USL's Tri-Sigma's chapter Alpha Mu, is very proud of the achievements made by her sorority this year.

"There are two collegiate awards that seniors in each chapter can apply for," Kazedessus explained. "One of them is called the Margaret Freeman Everett award. This past year, Kimberly Meaux, a senior in elementary education was chosen (to receive the award) out of seniors from all over the nation, so we felt very proud and honored. She is going to be presented with the award at our National Convention in San Francisco.

"Another senior, Melissa Lambert, made it to the top ten candidates for the second award called Mable Lee Walton. Both of these awards are granted to students according to their academic achievements and their involvement in both their sorority and their community. These two students have held office positions in Alpha-Mu and have been active on campus. Kim Meaux was on the USL Homecoming Court this year."

Kazedessus also outlined other awards won by the organization as a whole.

"During the University's Greek Banquet Awards, we won three certificates of recognition. One for Chapter Operations, one for Scholarship Programming and one for Sisterhood."

She explained that sisterhood has always an important focus of Alpha Mu.

"We've won the Sisterhood Award several times. We feel that without sisterhood, we wouldn't have a good sorority. We do different things to promote friendship among our members. Some of our activities include different retreats like the one we hold for new members. Another element that keeps us together is our sorority house. It is always full, even though we don't live there. During the semester, girls meet up at the house for lunch and different activities."

Kazedessus talked about traditional events that Alpha Mu organizes every year.

"We always have events for Tri-Sigma week, which is held April 19 through 24," she added. "We try to do different fund raisers and all of the money goes to the Robbie Paige Memorial which is our National Charity Foundation."

Kazedessus also said that the foundation uses the money it receives to build playrooms for sick children in hospitals.

"When we decided to have a philanthropy, we dedicated all our earnings to Robbie Paige's son, who died of Polio at an early age.

Other activities that Tri-Sigma participated in during Tri-Sigma week included a visit to Lafayette's Women and Children's Hospital where the sorority members spent time with children in the pediatric ward.

"We have good support from our alumni adviser and our national adviser," Kazedessus added. "They let us know we are a strong group. I feel we have established close ties within our sorority but now, we need to reach out to different groups and do more publicity about our activities." ■

Zeta Phi Beta

Mark Chretien

Zeta Phi Beta Sorority was founded on January 16, 1920 on the campus of Howard University in Washington D.C. by five coeds. These women dared to depart from the traditional coalitions for black women and sought to establish a new organization predicated on the precepts of scholarship, service, sisterhood, and finer womanhood.

The Omega Eta undergraduate chapter at USL was chartered on January 7, 1977.

Omega Eta continues to serve as a catalyst for service and charity. During the past year, the sorority held its annual Blue and White Week, during which it emphasized a different ideal of Zeta Phi Beta Sorority each day. The chapter also promoted Halloween safety, donated Thanksgiving baskets to the needy, and donated Christmas toys to needy children. One of Omega Eta's most notable accomplishments was the adoption of the pediatrics ward at University Medical Center.

Omega Eta encourages the highest academic standards both within the sorority and on the university's campus. It requires its members to maintain a higher grade point average than that required by the national body and gives special acaademic awards to outstanding members. The chapter encourages scholarship outside the sorority by tutoring at the Boys and Girls Clubs in the community.

Finer womanhood is promoted daily by members of Omega Eta through their deeds, disposition, and demeanor. The chapter also sponsors an annual Finer Womanhood program. Members receive nominations for outstanding women from various campus organizations. From these candidates, one woman is chosen to receive the "Collegiate Woman of the Year" award. Darleen Williams, representing the African-American Culture Committee, won the award this spring.

Sisterly love is a quality which comes naturally to members of Omega Eta. The chapter is sponsored by Nu Epsilon Zeta graduate chapter, and serves as the sister organization to Iota Iota chapter of Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity, Inc. Above all, though, members of Omega Eta are true sisters.

Omega Eta undergraduate chapter is designing new strategies and providing outreach services as it continues to move Zeta forward into the 21st century. ■

Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity was established on December 4th, 1906 on the campus of Cornell University in Ithaca, New York. The fraternity's motto is "First of all, servants of all, we shall transcend all." The fraternity's membership includes the Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall, W.E.B. DuBois, Jesse Owens, and Duke Ellington. The Zeta Xi chapter here at USL was founded in 1968.

Community involvement is a major focus of the fraternity. "Our focus this year was to try and make an impact at U.S.L. as well as on the community outside of our campus," said Alexcie Guillory, "Service projects for the 1994-95 school year included participation in the local "Stepping Up, Stepping Out" high school youth conference, visits to the Amelia Manor nursing home to spend time with elderly residents, a clothing drive in cooperation with local churches, distributing turkeys at Thanksgiving, participation in the Adopt-a-Road program, sponsorship of an essay contest for area high school youths, and regular tutoring of a group of students at a local elementary school.

The fraternity was also active in campus activities. They sponsored a "Step Show" on Halloween weekend attended by fraternities and sororities from around the state. They also sponsored the 17th annual Miss Black and Gold Pageant, with eight contestants vying for the honor.

Alpha men served terms as president of the National Society of Black Engineers and the National Pan-Hellenic Council. The chapter also passed out flyers during Teen Pregnancy Prevention Week and AIDS Awareness Week.

"It was a great year," said chapter president Hayward Beverly, "but we're certainly not done yet. We never accept that what we've done is the best we have to offer. We want to be even better. We're not the types to rest on our reputation," he said. ■

Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity was founded over 80 years ago at Howard University. Saving the best for last, Phi Beta Sigma became the last fraternity to become a part of the new, but thriving realm of Black Greek Letter Fraternities.

In 1976, on the campus of U.S.L., the Iota Iota Chapter became the 225th chapter to be nationally chartered by Phi Beta Sigma. Since its inception on the campus, the chapter's motto, "Culture for Service and Service for Humanity," has expressed its purpose. Nearly 20 years later the brothers of Iota Iota are still striving to uphold the basic premises of the : Brotherhood, Scholarship, and Service. ■

The Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity prides itself on community service.

"Kappa Week, held Oct. 7-14, is an annual showcase of the programs that we are active in all year long," said Willis Hall, public relations chairman for Kappa Alpha Psi.

"Every Tuesday, we participate in the Guide Right National Program at Vermilion Elementary School. We tutor kids there on Tuesdays and assist teaching the rest of the week. We also donate money for the 'Just Say No' program and for academic activities and computer hardware," added Alton Lloyd, president of Kappa Alpha Psi. Wednesday night of Kappa Week is African-American woman appreciation night.

"That night we recognize the importance of women in our community. We held a poetry reading and fraternity member Gershom Davis played an extended trumpet solo," said Hall.

Thursday night's activity was entitled "Spend the Night with the Nupes."

This evening allowed students to display talents such as comedy, music, and the stepping ritual. This ritual incorporates rhythmic dance and expresses the importance of African Heritage, Hall said.

"Kappa Alpha Psi is unique in that we were the first group to employ canes in the stepping activities."

"This addition to the dance is the easiest way to distinguish us from other African American groups," Hall added.

The price of admission to the night's events was one dollar and a can of food. The proceeds from the event went directly to Vermilion Elementary School.

"Our 1993 step team electrified audiences with its unique flavor. We won the Louisiana step championship that year which gave us the opportunity to compete in Florida and Atlanta," Hall said.

Lloyd pointed out, "We are planning to offer a class in self defense and want to invite local law enforcement to participate. We also had the highest GPA of fraternities and sororities combined in the 1992-93 school year and the second highest G. P. A. of all fraternities during the 1993-94 term." ■

Sigma Alpha Epsilon

Matt Tarver

On March 13, 1994, Sigma Alpha Epsilon celebrated 26 years of service And brotherhood.

Being a "True Gentleman" is the primary goal of the fraternity. The concept of a "True Gentleman" was adopted by the group from a poem written by John Walter Wayland.

Originally organized at USL as Phi Alpha, the fraternity now known as Sigma Alpha Epsilon received its charter from the national fraternity in 1968. The national Sigma Alpha Epsilon was founded on March 9, 1866.

In 1985, Sigma Alpha Epsilon moved into a house on fraternity row and has spent the last few years working with local community service projects and organizations such as the Boy Scouts of Acadiana, Adopt-A-Road, and the Cornerstone Village Retirement Home.

The fraternity has done a lot for me," said Dewayne Shirah, vice president of USL's chapter. "When I pledged, I was quiet and reserved. The fraternity helped me to get over that, and eventually, I learned that if you want something, you are going to have to speak out and do it for yourself."

"Strengthening the bond of brotherhood between the members is very important," Shirah said. "Everything else will take care of itself." ■

Sigma Nu Treasurer, Sean Kramer, a business communications senior underlined the different awards received by his fraternity this past year.

"We won several awards for Homecoming last year," he explained. "We won first place in the banner contest. We had a football player with a flame coming up from behind him to illustrate the Cajun Blaze theme. We also won first place for our float. It was a stadium with a snake coming up on top and blowing smoke."

Sigma Nu's yard display, featuring a 20-foot football player stepping on an Indian, won a first place award as well, Kramer said.

"Last year, we won the brotherhood award for Greek Week because of a retreat we organized. We try to have a retreat every semester to plan our calender together and discuss different things that are going on."

Kramer emphasized the community-oriented activities that the fraternity sponsored.

"We made donations to Festival T-Shirts because they adopt a needy child at Christmas and one to the Muscular Dystrophy Association."

The senior recalled Sigma Nu members engaging in a "blind" baseball game.

"One of our Alumni has a visually impaired brother," he explained. "The brother and his baseball team needed to practice for special Olympics so several guys from our group went out to play against the visually impaired team. They wore blindfolds to put themselves in the same conditions. It was a totally new experience for them. They had a beeping ball and bases. At first they thought it was going to be easy, but they lost to the other team."

Other Sigma Nu projects include out-of-state trips.

"We are the only fraternity that goes out of state for our events," remarked Kramer. "Last year, we had our white rose formal in Lake Conroe, Texas. We left on Friday, spent Saturday on the beach, and headed back that night. It enabled us to get away for a weekend." ■

Greek Affair Advisors offer Leadership Training to Greek Leaders

Kelli Vallot and Shawn Wilson are giving back to the Greek system.

Vallot and Wilson, as assistant deans of students and Greek affairs advisors, instruct a one-credit course each semester on Greek Leadership. Begun in the spring of 1994, the course is entitled Continuing Education 125. The class is designed to acquaint leaders of fraternities and sororities with relevant issues facing the Greek system.

"The class helps with Greek relations," Vallot said. "It gives us an opportunity to spend some time with students on a personal level."

"We have a great speaker each week, people from campus and from the community, to talk with students about issues such as time management, scholarship, community service, and services available on campus," Vallot said.

"In an academic setting, we can discuss Greek life in depth and talk about the philosophy of the Greek system," Wilson said. "The class gives us an opportunity to challenge students to think about the system."

The course requires students to compose a resource book of information presented in the class. The class requires students to form "TEAM" and to organize an event at the end of the semester such as a workshop, community service act, or sponsoring a guest speaker.

"As future leaders, we want the students in the class to grow individually, and that growth can be applied to the groups they are associated with," Wilson added. ■

Greek Participation in Homecoming Week

Bridgette Granier

Throughout Homecoming Week many things can be observed. Parties on the Strip, parties on the Row, pep rallies, dances, and the parades and the football game that concludes a very busy week of student activities.

From a different view, the people who do so much to put all of these activities together are often overlooked. While the Greeks on campus are often seen throughout the week, some wonder why this group is more active in student activities on campus than most other groups.

Paige Cline, a five year member of Tri-Delta sorority and a coordinator of many Homecoming activities said, "Traditionally, Greeks participate in Homecoming Week to show school spirit in a very positive light. It also offers school, campus, and community exposure, and it is used as a very effective Rush tool."

Planning for Homecoming began during the spring and lasted all summer. Not only does this planning require a great deal of time, but it also creates an environment in which different sororities and fraternities can get together for a good cause, and they have a lot of fun working to help others.

"It was inspiring for me to see so many people come together and sacrifice so much time and energy to make it a really special time for the football team, students, and alumni," Cline explained.

Over the course of the week, different organizations were judged on participation at events such as Yell Like Hell, Cajuns Can Care, and float decorations for the parade. The main focus of the competition between the Greeks was to win the coveted Sweepstakes Award. This year Sigma Nu fraternity and Alpha Omicron Pi won Sweepstakes.

If tradition holds true as it has in past years, as long as USL has Homecoming, there will also be an overwhelming amount of participation from the Greeks to make the Homecoming Week as unique and special each year as it has been in the past. ■

Bob Luckey

USL saxophonist Kevin Lifsy, shakes hands with President Bill Clinton during the jazz ensembles visit to Washington, D.C.

Robert Luckey, director of the USL Jazz Ensemble, organized a trip to Washington D.C. in February of 1994. The trip was a call for financial support of the art at a national level, a call that has been heard on a local level.

This journey was originated by Luckey's wife —the music director at the Episcopal School of Acadiana.

"She contacted Senator John Breaux to see if he would be interested in hosting the ESA band to come to Washington D.C.," said Luckey.

To save on travel expenses, the two schools shared resources and made the trip together. According to Luckey, the two ensembles spending time together "created an awareness that jazz is happening as a quality type of music and that we need help.

"This year the Acadiana Arts Council has had its funding restored."

Luckey observed that this integration gave the high school students, "about four days to sit with and talk to the older college kids who have had far more experience (in music)."

"Most of us go into teaching," said Trudi Ellis, a member of the USL Jazz Ensemble. This trip gave Ellis an opportunity to see that "working with kids is something that not all of us do naturally. I think for the college band, it was a learning experience to spend that many hours with kids."

Ellis believed that during the trip, the high school students learned what "serious musicians do when they get ready." The girls that roomed with her were shocked when they awoke to Trudi warming up before breakfast. Trudi gave them an idea of the deep level of commitment involved in her love for music.

Luckey explained that the, "tour of the Vietnam Memorial was most memorable because we met the president by accident." The students stopped him on his morning jog, shook hands, and snapped shots.

"The secret service men were extremely nasty," said Luckey. "But President Clinton wanted to stay, and he talked for about 20 minutes or so, and he was really very personable."

The group played at the Kennedy Center.

"It's a wonderful concert facility," said Luckey. "We were stationed in the lobby which is so big that you could put the whole Washington Monument laying down in it. It was exciting to have hundreds of people stop and listen to us."

The Jazz Ensemble took its Washington, D.C., experience back home when the group played at the first annual Abbeville Arts Festival on April 20.

"I was told by the coordinators of the event that the people who came expected to see paintings, sculptures, and prints," said Luckey. "The community learned that music is an art and jazz is an art. Both our Jazz Combo and our Jazz Ensemble played and were very well received." ■

USL President Raymond Authement asserts that even after 100 years, USL is still trying to enhance its capabilities.

Presidential Concerns

Arthur Simon

Small beginnings never have to limit what one can accomplish in life—for others and for the self. For USL President Ray Authement, being born in the small town of Chauvin, La., and working as an administrator in what was once a university with little national recognition never dimmed his dedication and commitment to achievement.

Authement has been USL president since 1974. His career began at USL as a mathematics professor in 1957.

As the leader of USL, Authement has an on-going vision for the university, a design that has already brought the university widespread national acclaim.

Plans for USL's centennial are already taking shape, although the university won't celebrate its 100th birthday for another five years.

"We prepare for the centennial knowing two important things: five years are the equivalent of the blink of an eye for a university progressing as quickly as USL, and planning is the key to any successful venture," Authement said.

"A glance over our shoulders shows how rapidly the University of Southwestern Louisiana is moving. For instance, it mapped out a plan in the late 1980s for achieving excellence in the field of research and began to establish the University Research Park. Less than a decade later, the park is home for the Southern Science Center, (formerly the National Wetlands Research Center), and will soon welcome the National Marine Fisheries Center and the Apparel and Computer Integrated Manufacturing Center. USL will also serve as headquarters for the National Biological Survey," Authement said.

"The university continues to look for ways to enhance its research capabilities, particularly in the areas of biological and pharmaceutical research.

"Although the research component is important, USL has continued to focus on the academic needs of students by constantly reviewing curriculum and by adding and consolidating degree programs. Clearly, one of our biggest challenges is helping to create a community college system that will offer more students the opportunity to succeed academically.

"Of course, there are also financial concerns. USL hopes to build its endowment, which is money invested to produce income. It is essential that this university continue to take steps to control its financial destiny," Authement said.

In 1992, Authement was honored as the "Distinguished Citizen" by Goodwill Industries of Southwest Louisiana for his outstanding service and dedication to the community.

He is married to the former Barbara Braud. They have two daughters, Kathleen and Julie, and three grandchildren.

"USL can be proud of what it has accomplished. But we can't spend much time looking back; there is too much to do. Our centennial celebration will be here before we know it." ■

A Rock for a Rock

by Chad Rivet

Patricia Rockwell is the new debate coach of the USL debate team, taking over the position in the wake of Marilyn Rockenschuh's controversial termination.

"I love seeing students develop their skills," Rockwell said of the passion that drives her to coach students. "I love seeing the intellectual stimulation of working on something like this . . . I want to be supportive."

Rockwell, optimistic about the USL debate team, wants to stimulate diversity among the team's members.

"We've got a combination of beginners and veterans that I think is wonderful. Most of them have varied interests," she said. "They're interested in politics, history, or education; some want to be teachers, preachers, or lawyers. I also suggest debate as an excellent training ground for business majors because you develop skills valuable in business conflict situations."

Rockwell encourages people from all majors to get involved with the debate team. She urges the student body to "come on over because I believe that there's something in it for almost everybody."

Rockwell was born and raised in Nebraska where she received her bachelor's and master's degrees. She taught in Nebraska, Kentucky, and Alabama before moving to Tucson, Ariz. to earn her doctorate.

"There was a nice opening that seemed appropriate for my background," Rockwell said. "I also had a background in French so the area is very appealing to me with the Cajun culture and everything."

"USL combines opportunities for me. My doctorate is in interpersonal communication and the communication department is trying to expand the interpersonal program at the master's level. It seems to be the perfect blend of things for me."

When asked how many members of the squad had quit under former coach Rockenschuh's reign, Rockwell appeared positive.

"A handful quit, but I haven't actually sat down and asked," she said.

Debate Coach is Replaced After Year of Turmoil

"I could tell if students had done it before because they were good. In that respect, I know they were here. I want this to be a fresh beginning. I'm here to help them."

Rockwell wants to improve the debate team by increasing the size of the team.

"I'd like anybody to come over and see me at the Roy House," Rockwell said. "I don't want our team to be elitist. Typically, debate teams involve traveling long distances to compete. Tournaments are something that students enjoy, but today's students can't afford to gallivant around the country every weekend. I say to those students that we're going to appeal to you by developing more on-campus performances and inter-squad debates."

An example of this occurred on Oct. 20-22 when two Russian debaters competed with USL's squad on campus.

Rockwell believes this diverse approach will "help to expand people's skills once they get into the work force. People need to see that what they're doing (in debate) is going to have some relevance to them in their future life." ■

“ He was an inspiration to everyone in the class. He made learning fun. ”

Oscar Douglas Abington

Funeral services were held Sunday, Aug. 14, in the Chapel of Flowers in Delhomme, La., for geography professor Oscar Douglas Abington. Abington, born in 1936, was 58 years of age when he died Aug. 11 at a hospital in Lafayette.

Originally from Alexandria, Va., Abington began his college career at USL in 1969 after having received his bachelor's, master's, and doctoral degrees from LSU.

“He was a great man,” said Arlene Reese, a former student of Abington's. “He was an inspiration to everyone in the class. He made learning fun.”

Many of Professor Abington's students attended his funeral. Edwin Devillier, a senior at USL, claimed to have been so inspired by Abington that he decided to change his major, follow in Abington's footsteps, and leave the fourth generation of lawyers in his family.

Having served on USL's staff for 25 years, Abington had the longest tenure of anyone in the geology department.

“Professor Abington was truly a great teacher. At first, I thought, ‘I am going to be bored in here—I hate geography,’ but then Professor Abington started explaining the lesson for the day and I really enjoyed it. I never missed a day in any of his classes. I sure will miss him,” said Devillier.

The family of Professor Abington along with many, if not all, of his students will remember the way he enriched their lives forever. The loss of such a great man is felt in the core of all who knew him. Professor Abington will be greatly missed. ■

“ The service [was] a celebration of his life, rather than dwelling on death. ”

Ivan Stewart Hoch

An unusual memorial service was held on Jan. 22 in memory of the late Ivan Stewart Hoch, former head of USL Performing Arts department. This service included songs performed by faculty and students and a slide show retrospective of significant events in his life, as well as the reading of many personal letters that his wife Nancy solicited from friends and relations throughout the country. She asked people who knew him and could not make it to the memorial service to write letters recalling humorous and interesting events in his life. These letters were read aloud by former students and friends who were able to attend the ceremony.

Mrs. Hoch wanted the letters read so that the service would be “a celebration of his life, rather than dwelling on death.”

Hoch was a native of Kansas City, Mo., and received his bachelor's and master's degrees in theater from the University of Missouri in 1958 and 1961, respectively. He received his doctorate in theater from Cornell University in 1971.

Besides his 20 years of technical and artistic direction for USL Mainstage Productions, Hoch was also published in the Southwest Theatre Journal, presented a paper at the Association for Theatre in Higher Education Convention in Seattle, Wash., and acted as a Citizen Ambassador to Czechoslovakia and Moscow and Leningrad, Russia, in 1990.

His original playscript Rare Bear was performed at USL in 1984. Other original and adapted works include, Felicite, Who Da Doc?, and The Beautiful Pea Green Boat.

Hoch is survived by his wife Nancy of Lafayette, his mother, Dorothy Greene of Kansas City, Mo., and one sister, Elaine Poole, of St. Louis, Missouri. ■

David Barry replaces Cusimano as head of the newly-named College of Liberal Arts.

Renaissance Man

by Franchesca Hamilton

The College of Liberal Arts recently experienced an addition to the department. David Barry, former head of the foreign language department, replaced Richard Cusimano as dean of the College of Liberal Arts. Barry began his new role during the first week of August 1994 in preparation for the opening of the school.

The process by which Barry was chosen was a tedious and detailed one. The position was advertised in a variety of scholarly magazines throughout the United States. When all of the applicants for the position turned in their resumes, the interviews began. The committee that was selected to lead the process of choosing the new dean eliminated the choices down to a certain percent. Barry was among those chosen. Barry attended interviews with students as well as faculty during this decision process.

Barry's biggest concern during the fall semester was to get the students in the College of Liberal Arts to interact. He says he wanted the departments and students within the college to be held together by more than just a name.

"I want to bring the college together to create a sense of pride, mission, and direction for the entire college," said Barry, "not just the individual programs.

"I'm not the type of person who likes to sit and just accept things for the way they are," continued Barry. "The reason I was interested in the position was to see what can be done. I think there needs to be more in the way of recruitment, which means scholarship services. Faculty need money for promotions, grants, and research projects. So, I think that is the other challenge."

Barry immediately began to work on the concerns he has. In the fall, Barry diligently worked with the Student Government Association to try to address the administration on certain issues. He proposed that the SGA sponsor brown bag lunches. At these lunches, students would have access to all the deans of academic colleges and to the administration. The students would be able to speak with the deans about their concerns, complaints, or compliments. Barry figured this would be a way to make the relationship between the students and administrators much better. In the process, the students would get their concerns heard.

In addition to becoming the new dean of Liberal Arts, Barry has been a faculty member since 1976. His administrative titles include chairman of the Louisiana Endowment of the Humanities, a position he has held since 1990, former president of the CODOFIL Consortium of Louisiana Colleges and Universities, former president and executive director of the International Council on Francophone Studies, and executive director of the Conseil International D'Etudes Francophones. In 1985, Barry was named a USL Foundation Distinguished Professor.

Barry is excited about his new position and hopes to address not only the concerns he has, but also the concerns of the students and faculty. ■

Deep South
Writer's
Takes Place at USL

Graduate students, as well as faculty members, were on hand for the Annual Deep South Writer's Conference.

Siv Cedering was inspirational as she read from her heart to those who sat and listened.

Writers traveled from the far corners of the globe to attend USL's annual Deep South Writer's Conference. Among the ranks of the literary elite were Sylvia Iskander, Darrell Bourque, Wendell Mayo, Tony Fennelly, William Heyen, Tom Petitjean, Stephanie Muller, Diane Langlois, Nancy Burns, Kelly Stern, Joseph Andriano, Siv Cedering, Herb Fackler, Leah Larson, Dan Glisson, and Ernest Gaines.

The conference began Friday, Sept. 23, opening with a Children's Literature Workshop headed by Sylvia Iskander, followed by Darrell Bourque's Poetry Workshop. Student reading and contest awards ended the first day of the conference.

Reading, along with a fictional panel, dominated Saturday's events. Siv Cedering was inspirational as she read from her heart to those who sat and listened. Speaking of the human condition and the state of our planet, Cedering, through language, gripped the spirit and left nothing unsaid.

William Heyen's, The Heart, read at Vermilionville on Sunday, is likely to immortalize the iconed author from Long Island, N.Y.

Ernest Gaines read selected excerpts from his latest book, A Lesson Before Dying, signaling the end of the weekend-long literary conference. ■

One of a Kind Doctoral Program

USL is Third School in the U.S. to Offer PhD in Francophone Studies

In August, USL became the first university in North America to offer a doctor of philosophy degree in Francophone studies. Both the Louisiana Board of Regents and the Louisiana Board of Trustees approved the program on Aug. 15, 1994, capping a process that began over six years ago.

"This achievement is so appropriate for a university that is at the very center of the French-Acadian culture," said Ray Authement, USL president. "It is fitting that such an announcement comes on the eve of the Acadian World Congress in Canada that celebrates the 390th anniversary of Acadia's founding."

USL already offers undergraduate and master's degrees in Francophone studies. The doctoral program completes the growing field of study in French-language higher education at USL, both in research and teaching.

by Marcelle Tessier

"The demand for faculty who hold the doctor of philosophy degree in Francophone studies is strong," said David Barry, dean of the College of Liberal Arts. Barry was instrumental in guiding the degree program toward certification in his former role as head of the foreign languages department.

"There is a shortage of programs to educate these faculty internationally and none at all exists in the United States," he said.

Francophone studies is the multidisciplinary consideration of peoples, cultures, literatures, institutions and geographic areas where the French language is or was, the common characteristic of a social-cultural identity.

"Today, it is the unifying term that encompasses the rich diversity of French-language culture throughout the world, based on interdisciplinary comparisons and contrasts," explained Barry.

Doctoral minors in Francophone studies will draw on the strengths of the departments of English, sociology and anthropology, history and philosophy, modern languages, and the Center for Louisiana Studies. Furthermore, efforts are underway to establish an endowed chair for distinguished visiting scholars from around the world.

The comprehensive curriculum for the doctoral program has been hailed by professors and educators from around the world.

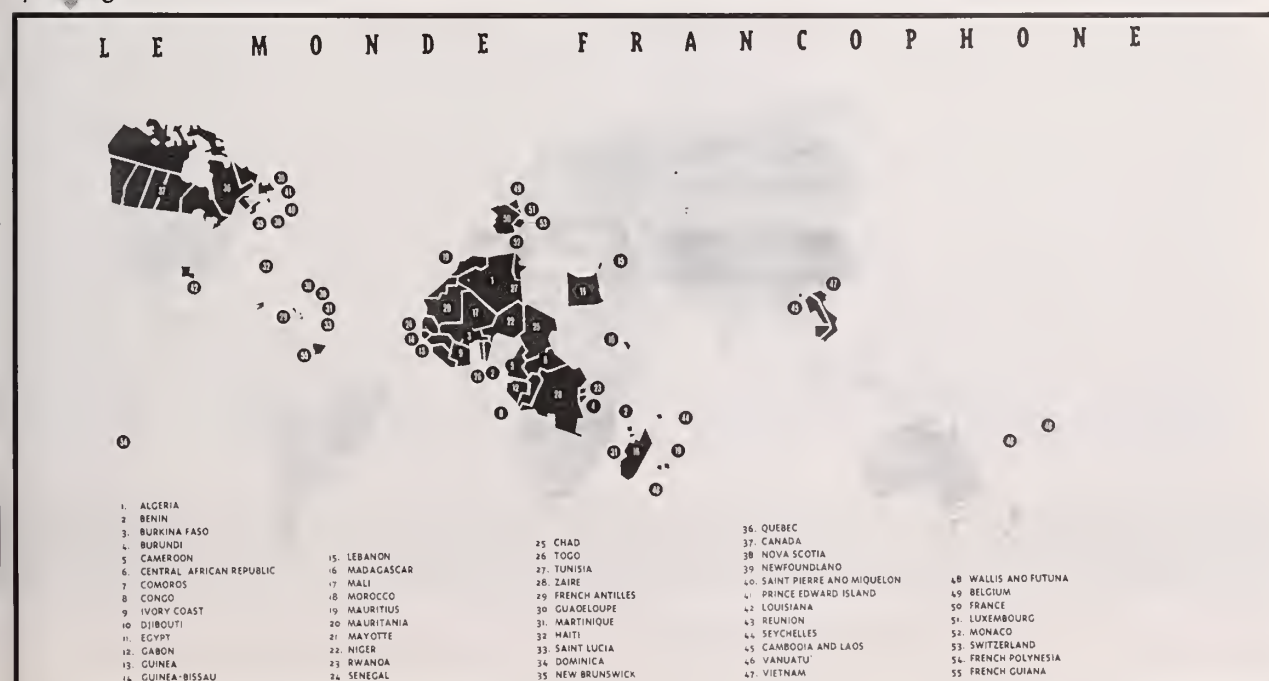

"USL is indeed the natural and logical site for a graduate program in Francophone studies," said Albert Valdman, professor of French and linguistics at Indiana University. "By choosing to focus on Francophone studies, the 'Université des Acadiens' may succeed in attracting the best students and faculty in the country."

Jay Edwards, professor of anthropology at LSU, said, "Your unique combination of strengths in Louisiana history, folk culture, and languages makes USL the logical location for a graduate program in Francophone studies."

Barry expects USL to graduate the first doctoral candidates in 1997. The university began accepting applications in the fall of 1994.

"USL, as the Université des Acadiens, underscores one of the fundamental missions of the university—to preserve and promote the French cultures of Louisiana," said Barry. "This is a unique program and an important event for the state and the region, as well as the university." ■

The Neville Brothers Headline First-Ever Concert at Moore Field

by Marty J. Hebert

After suffering severe budget cuts to the program, the USL baseball team needed a financial boost. A benefit concert with Aaron Neville and the Neville Brothers in the spring of 1994 provided that boost.

Despite dreary weather, an excited crowd of more than 4,000 turned out for the show held at Cajun Field on May 8.

A San Francisco-based band named The Pulsators started the program, but did not get a pleasurable response from the crowd. The Conque Brothers followed the Pulsators and delighted the crowd with their unique Cajun humor. The Boogie Kings, a Lafayette legend, took the stage next. Their thunderous horn section got the crowd going and livened up the atmosphere.

As darkness surrounded Cajun Field and a drizzle continued to fall, the Neville Brothers hit the stage. The outdoor concert, along with the local flavor of the Neville Brothers provoked a special feeling for the people who attended. The Neville Brothers music came alive. "I Can See Clearly Now," a tune appropriate for the rainy occasion, was met by great crowd response. Many fans danced on the muddy field to live Neville classics such as "Fire on the Bayou" and "Congo Square."

Approximately $15,000 was raised for the baseball program. The money will be put in the general athletic fund.

"USL, the fans, and the sponsors all win because of the success of this concert," said concert promoter Gerald Hebert.

Carrot Top Does Lafayette

Often mistaken for the Wendy's girl, Carrot Top usually brings a smile to the faces of audience members.

It was a packed house on July 15 at the Heymann Performing Arts and Convention Center. The crowd that came to see the comic known for his fizzed-out red hair was primarily young. When looking at the stage, one noticed a set with five different trunks. The trunks were decorated with flowers and looked like they came straight from the 1960s. The sound of music, such as Janis Joplin blared in the Heymann. Everyone was eagerly awaiting the main performer.

The opening act for Carrot Top was Eric Gottfreid. He based his act on women in amusement parks, such as Disneyland. Gottfreid made jokes about the fat women who weigh close to 300 pounds, and wear spandex shorts in public.

As Carrot Top was beginning his show, a woman threw a pair of red thong underwear onto the stage and the comedian flipped out. He asked the crowd, "What the hell am I supposed to do with this?" Then he picked them up and stuck the thong in a little purse, one of his many props. Later in the show, a member of the audience yelled for the red-head to put on the underwear. That was all that had to be said. Carrot Top took the hint and wore the panties all night long.

The night produced some excellent jokes. An Etch-A-Sketch was Bill Clinton's campaign promises, a toilet flush was Rush Limbaugh's toothbrush, J.J. Simpson's football had a knife attached to it, and Michael Jackson's back-stage pass was a pacifier on a string.

Not all of the jokes were considered funny by the crowd this night, however. And, when the crowd didn't react to a joke the way he wanted them to, Carrot Top would pout and shout at the audience, "Fuck you, I thought that was funny!" After he finished pouting, he motioned as if he were putting the failed jokes in a corner to discuss amongst themselves why they were not funny. Part of Carrot Top's routine is his pouting act. After a joke failed and he pouted, his next joke usually got a better response from the crowd.

For his final act, Carrot Top dressed up and lip synced to different singers. The artists Carrot Top parodied in this final routine ranged from Slash and Axl, to Madonna, to Mick Jagger, then Steven Tyler. Overall, the humor was a real crowd pleaser. ■

Houston Comes to Lafayette

by Ginger Robertson

Bobby Brown's Wife Thrills the Cajundome

The crowd cheered for nearly 20 minutes before the concert, waiting for the moment when Whitney Houston would appear on stage in the Cajundome. Shouts of "Whitney! Whitney!" roared through the building. As she took the stage, wearing a yellow sequined gown, one could sense her confidence and the pleasure she receives and gives in performing before a large audience.

She opened the July 7 concert with the number one hit "The Greatest Love of All." "You don't know love until you look into the eyes of your child," Whitney claimed after her first song.

Houston's band consisted of five members: guitarist, bassist, saxophonist, keyboardist, and drummer. Houston also utilized three backup singers.

Houston's show was further enhanced by the help of several nieces and nephews and her husband, singer Bobby Brown, who sang on several occasions. Her daughter even made an appearance on stage.

Several times during the concert, Houston paid tribute to Aretha Franklin, an artist for which she has great admiration. Houston talked about the musical group that her mother and Franklin sang in, the Sweet Sensations, and she sang a few of Franklin's hit songs including "Natural Woman" and "Pink Cadillac."

"I'm Every Woman" ended the performance along with Whitney and Bobby sharing a slow dance together for an enthusiastic crowd. The loving couple finally left the stage hand in hand.

Tickets for the concert ranged from $35.50 to $50. The show was not completely sold out, but the turnout was excellent. People waited in long lines to purchase tickets even on the night of the show.

Overall, the concert was not a 90-minute dance party, but an appreciation of the music, singing, talent, and stage presence of Whitney Houston. Lafayette was the only city in Louisiana to be lucky enough to experience this great event. ■

A Night with Clint Black

by Jennifer Romero

Lafayette Concert Gets Up Close and Personal

On Friday, Sept. 16, Lafayette's Heymann Performing Arts Center was visited by one of country music's hottest performers.

At 8 p.m. Clint Black walked onstage, singing "Tuckered Out," a song that incorporates the names of many of country music's other stars. In keeping with the theme of the 14-city tour, Black had no opening act and was supported by a small backup band.

Moving next into one of his early hits, "Straight From the Factory," Black continued with a fast-paced, one-hour set.

During a 20-minute intermission, the instrument and band setup was moved forward to the edge of the stage so that Black and his band could indeed be "up-close and personal" with the audience.

Black returned to the stage alone to play "Happiness Alone," a song he co-wrote with Jimmy Buffet. His band then rejoined him with acoustical instruments and helped him introduce some of his new songs such as "You Make Me Feel."

The second set was somewhat slower and Black described it as "unplugged—but still plugged in so you can hear us."

The highlight of the show was Black's rendition of the Eagles' "Desperado." When asked by the audience to remove his hat, Black replied that it is "a song that has to be played with a hat on." The crowd then went wild and responded with a standing ovation. After the song, Black took off his hat and bowed to the crowd.

To finish the show, Black played some of his biggest hits, including "Put Yourself in My Shoes," "Killing Time," and as an encore, "We Tell Ourselves."

The "Clint Black: Up Close" concert was sponsored by KXKC Radio and KLFY-TV 10. The radio station hosted a "country camp out" the night before tickets for the show went on sale. The camp out was hosted by DJs Nathan "Late Night Nate" Hanks, a USL student, and Chris McGuire, a USL graduate. ■

Oct. 19, 1994 was an evening of great fun and entertainment when the three-man band from Texas, known as ZZ Top, lit up the stage at the Cajundome.

The arena was not quite full, but a very good turnout was there to greet the band and enjoy their special musical style.

The stage was set with an abundance of neon lighting designs in shapes of transformers and wire lines. Along with this electrical set was a large version of a 1950s desk-set radio. During the performance, the dial on the radio would move to let the audience know what time period the songs were from. And if that wasn't enough, the dancers were a sight. Each time they came on the stage they were dressed (if you could call them dressed) in a new outfit, which went along with the song being performed. Ranging from tight leather wear to Las Vegas show girl costumes, the girls' attire, as well as their performance was quite entertaining, especially to the males in the audience.

The selection of songs ZZ Top played was quite varied. From ballads to blues to rock 'n' roll, ZZ Top proved they haven't lost their touch or their punch. "Legs," "Sharp Dressed Man," "Viva Las Vegas," "Cheap Sunglasses," "Give Me all Your Lovin'," and "Rough Boy" were just a few of the songs that captivated the audience and left them wanting more.

The show—only the second time in two years that ZZ Top has performed in Lafayette—was an exceptional performance. Even after so many years, ZZ Top knows how to put on a good, clean show full of pure rock 'n' roll, unlike many bands today. ■

With the combined efforts of Vee Corporation and KADN-TV 15, USL's Cajundome presented the Sesame Street and Friends production "When I Grow Up." The three-day event for Acadiana's youth was held Oct. 21-23.

Despite the vast distance from the stage to the audience, everyone from the balcony to the floor got a chance to view the performing characters at close range. The visual gap was bridged by a large stage that branched into two smaller side stages encircled by folding chairs and hundreds of children and their parents.

Safety measures were taken for the well-being of the children. All children under 10 were handed glow-stick necklaces and escorted to their seats by uniformed security. An unusually large number of security officers paced across the aisles throughout the show, making sure all was well.

As Cookie Monster, Oscar the Grouch, Big Bird, Grover, and many other Sesame Street characters stormed the stages, the belly of the dome was lit with a green glow. With song after song, the production's performers amazed children and grownups alike.

There seemed to be a feminist edge to the song "Girls Can, Too," sung and performed by a clan of five female characters. The audience of those over the age of 20 in the audience seemed to notice the subtle undertones the song suggested. Many questions were asked after the song was over. The outrage dyed with the ending of the show.

Another complication that arose during the performance: Grover's red "Super Grover" cape was missing, causing a scandal amongst the performers. The cape was later found in an old storage trunk and ended the rumors of theft. "The Caper of the Missing Super Grover Cape" was the best part of the show.

The grand finale featured Cookie Monster, who was head of the stage, selecting an audience member as "best dancer." Cookie looked around for a few minutes to find the dancer he was looking for. He pointed at someone in the audience. The tension grew as children began to scream, "Me, Cookie! Pick me!" All the screaming in the world didn't help the children. Cookie's mind was made up.

A shy young man, a popcorn and cotton candy seller in his early 20s, was brought to the stage by Bert and Ernie. The young man was "taught" a few Sesame Street moves, given a T-shirt for his performance, and escorted off to a side stage where a few other audience participants were recruited.

Lost-n-Found looks for the big time

From the smoldering wreckage of the now defunct band Easy Street, guitarist Kirk Richard, bassist Blaine Bearb, and "Master of the Keys," Byron Roy, formed Lost-n-Found.

Brian Pitre's available time helped Lost-n-Found become one of the most popular bands around Lafayette.

Business major Blaine Bearb spends most of his free time playing bass.

With Lony Fabre as lead singer and Josh Briley on drums, Lost-n-Found played their first show on March 30, 1993 after only three weeks of practicing. A year later, Lost-n-Found, along with new drummer Brian Pitre, has become one of the most popular college bands in Lafayette.

If you have never been able to catch a Lost-n-Found show, it is definitely a sight to see. The guys play in clubs from Lake Charles to Alabama. Locally, they can be seen entertaining large crowds every Wednesday night at Poet's College Countdown as well as weekends at the McKinley Street Pub. Playing mostly covers from bands such as Cowboy Mouth and Rush, with a couple of originals thrown in here and there, Lost-n-Found puts on a memorable show.

The guys do not just concentrate on becoming world-famous rock stars. Richard, a health information management major, Bearb, a business major, and Fabre, an education major, all find time to t in classes, exams, rehearsals, studying, and gigs. After a hard night of pounding on his keyboard, Roy wakes up at the crack of dawn to go to work at Stuller Settings, where he is in charge of research and development. Brian Pitre, who also works at Stuller Settings, is an emergency medical technician.

Lost-n-Found, however, is not just Lony, Kirk, Blaine, Byron, and Brian. Without people such as Greg Rizzuto and Ronnie Richard, stage coordinators, there probably would not be the show that people love to see. Lost-n-Found could be beating on buckets and playing rubber bands in a field somewhere if it were not for these two gentlemen as well as Rich Trahan, Lost-n-Found's very own sound man. Rich makes sure that Lost-n-Found sounds as good as possible.

If you have not seen Lost-n-Found, their performance is definitely something to check out. Judging by the crowds that line up for their gigs, getting to their shows early is highly suggested. But if those crowds are any indication of the future of Lost-n-Found, these guys have no where to go but up. ■

A Soldier's Play Regarded as a Strong Performance

The University Players of USL started their new season in a big way, opening with a strong performance of Charles Fuller's A Soldier's Play. The show opened Oct. 10, and it was nothing less than amazing.

Fuller's play takes place at an army barracks during WWII, an outfit that houses both white and negro soldiers. The black company is commanded by Sgt. Vernon Waters, a hard and unrelenting veteran with a focused and sometimes mad desire to advance his race. The show opens with a report of his murder, and Capt. Richard Davenport is assigned to conduct the investigation.

Because he is a negro, Capt. Davenport runs into many bureaucratic roadblocks in his search for Waters' murderer, and along the way, he discovers many secrets that the members of the regiment would rather have remained hidden.

The production was filled with fine performances, most notably the deft portrayal of Sgt. Waters by USL newcomer Capelli S. Burless II. He projected a fine image of a troubled man—single-minded in his purposes—but sometimes willing to go too far to advance his own cause.

In the troop ensemble, standouts included J.D. Jackson as Pvt. Peterson and Bernard Pearce as Pvt. C.J. Memphis. Both had a very sharp handle on their characters and managed to bring a personal touch to their personae.

Capelli S. Burless (left) as Sgt. Waters and Bernard Pearce as Pvt. Memphis.

USL Productions

There were some problems with the performance. Though D. Timothy Lott as Capt. Taylor and Daniel S. London as Capt. Davenport both worked well as individual actors, their rapport on stage left something to be desired. Considering the sheer number of scenes that they had to share together, their ensemble should have been smoother. However, they seemed at times not to complement each other's performance, instead slowing down each other's pace and making their scenes difficult to understand.

Max Lydy's light design was unobtrusive and quite pleasing, establishing the somber moments of the play well. His set though was a little troublesome. The blocky, rectangular design didn't seem to serve much purpose and didn't help to illustrate the story or to delineate the action on stage. Some of the posts on stage caused actors to have to squeeze by, making entrances and exits awkward.

Despite these minor flaws, A Soldiers Play was well worth the admission price. It centers on themes relevant to the black community and was thought provoking and enjoyable for all who attended. ■

Off to a Great Start

by Jeff Guidry

USL's production of Charles Fuller's A Soldier's Play went to the Louisiana College Theatre Festival hosted by NLU in Monroe this year. The production took all major awards in acting, tech, and directing, and garnered two students nominations for the Irene Ryan Acting Award and scholarship.

"This is the first time in our theater's history that we've done this well at festival," said Garey Hyatt, theater manager, "We've really gotten this new program off to a great start."

Top prize was the Critic's Choice Award, given to USL for the best production. This distinction also placed the school in a favorable position to be advanced to the Region VI festival at the University of Arkansas.

USL was also cited for the Best Tech Award (The Golden Hand Truck Award), given for the most efficient load-in, set-up, strike, and load-out. Max Lydy, assistant professor in theater design and technology, talked about USL's participation in the festival.

"The award I'm most proud of is the load-in load-out," he said. "All of the students involved with the show participated in putting up the set, and every aspect of the set-up was very professional. In fact, for the rest of the festival all I heard from the other school was how slick our students were."

The two students nominated for the Irene Ryan Award were Daniel S. Condon and Capelli S. Burless II, who played the roles of Capt. Richard Davenport and Sgt. Vernon Waters, respectively. This distinction allowed them to compete at the regional festival for the award.

Condon talked about the facilities they worked at in Monroe, saying, "It didn't seem like we got the same accommodations that the other colleges got. We got the floor plans of the theater only a few days in advance, so it was hard to know exactly where the set was going to be."

"We also only got the light plot when we got to Monroe," he continued,

"so we had to sort of do lighting on the fly. But the show came together very well."

Newly appointed chair of USL's performing arts department, H.D. Flowers II, was recognized with the Director's Choice Award. Flowers said, "This is the ninth time I've won the award, but it's the first time I've won it with this group of students and for this department. There's a certain amount of joy that comes with the distinction."

Another major award, Best Acting Ensemble, also went to USL. "That award relates to the load-in award," said Lydy, "because all facets of the production were professionally handled by the students.

"Some of the jobs done by the students, though, were not rewarded by particular awards," he continued. "Our stage manager Libya Pugh handled her job very efficiently, even though this was the first time she had ever managed a show," he said, "and the light board operator Leigha Hager also handled the pressure of not having much practice on the NLU light board very well."

Danse, Danse, Danse,

Fourth Annual State of La Danse Includes Works Both Old and New

Jeff Guidry, with contributions from Darrell Bourque, professor of humanities

For the past four years, USL's dance department has been performing exceptional works of classical and contemporary movement. This year's State of La Danse highlighted such works as the Russian ballet, Paquita, as well as the modern work, Falling Off the Back Porch, by Clay Talliaferro.

The dance department, sponsored by the USL concert series, Acadiana Arts Council, and Performing Arts Department, presented the fourth annual State of La Danse Nov. 12 at the Heymann Performing Arts and Convention Center.

The program started with dance department head Sara Stravinska's "Celestial Chant," a ballet performed to the music of Claude Debussy. The piece strongly reflected Stravinska's classical training and featured most of the older performers in the dance program, as well as introducing Lauren Burke of Broussard. "Celestial Chant" was quiet and balanced, showing slowly revolving circles and complex, angular and asymmetrical movements.

"The premise of La Danse is to reconstruct old works and to present new works by living choreographers," explained Stravinska. "It's a great learning experience for the dancers, because they get to work in the classic dances that they study about."

Susan Merritt

Dancers perform in the fourth annual State of La Danse.

"The piece I choreographed for La Danse is titled '7 + 2, 10 to 12: Untitled #2'," said dance professor Kenneth Jenkins. "It's a continuation of the work I did for the multimedia presentation called 'Seven Artists, Sixty Minutes: Untitled #1' that we performed earlier in the fall."

"I re-worked the piece to take into account how each part of the collaboration would stand on its own," Jenkins explained.

"I started to wonder how the individual parts would look if they were separated, if the piece was done as an entire video evening or theater evening, and I came up with the work for La Danse."

"My own work. . . Celestial Chant," said Stravinska, "came out a dream I had one night. Fortunately, I keep a pad of paper and a pen by my bed, so I was able to write down all the ideas I got for the piece."

"Spring Waters," featured guest artists Nadya Zybina and Jeffery Plourde. Zybina has performed with Ballet Guadalajara as well as other companies, and Plourde is currently the principle dancer for Ballet Austin.

The duet introducing them to the Lafayette audience was as quick, friendly, and brilliant as the Rachmaninoff music it was set to.

The final dance of the first half of the show was the most unusual piece of the evening, choreographed by Jenkins and entitled "7 + 2 in 10 to 12: Untitled #12." His work was an adaptation of the piece Jenkins did for the multi-media collaboration performed earlier this semester for the ACSA architecture convention. Set to the unpredictable and highly original score of music professor Jim Guthrie, the dance emphasized an unusual light show containing sharp color changes and interesting patterns.

"The whole purpose of ballet is to defy gravity," said Jenkins, "and in Clay's works there's a divergence from that. Instead of trying to get as high in the air as he could, he studied fall and recovery as well as using the entire body to gesture instead of just certain set movements and gestures."

"Clay's work ethic was great to

“If you take a diamond and shatter it, the pieces of the diamond are you and me. . . If we all combined our efforts to work towards a common goal, we'll come closer to reconstructing the diamond.”

observe," said Stravinska, "The main thing he taught our students is that they should take risks and not be embarrassed about doing things that might not 'seem right.' The trying is the fun."

Jenkins described what he saw for the future La Danse concerts. "We'd like to switch focus to original works and get away from reconstructions," he said. "In a way, reconstructions are really safe to watch. No one is threatened by a pot of flowers."

"If you take a diamond and shatter it," said Stravinska, "the pieces of the diamond are you and me. My work for this dance concert was about how to get everything to work in harmony. If we all combined our efforts to work towards a common goal, we'll come closer to reconstructing the diamond."

"It's like the parable of the talents in the Bible," she explained, "The master was more angry at the servant that hid his talents away and didn't use them for fear of retribution. He rewarded the servant that invested his talents and got more back."

"The greatest sin is not to let your talent grow," she said.

The last performance of the evening was a crowd pleaser.

Paquita was initially choreographed to showcase the talents of a whole troupe of dancers from the principals to the corps, and to this end, the dance was well chosen, highlighting all the best that USL Dance has to offer.

In all, this year's State of La Danse continued the tradition of quality that has come to be expected of the USL Dance Program. ■

Fans display their disgust over the baseball strike

O.J. Running on TV Once Again

O.J. Simpson lived life on camera, first as a college and pro football star running back, then as a sportscaster, commercial spokesman, and actor. But nothing could have prepared him, or his fans, for the role he would play in 1994.

The first reports were surprising enough: Simpson was suspected in the brutal slashing murder of his ex-wife, Nicole, and her friend, Ronald Goldman.

But it was O.J.'s arrest that proved unforgettable. After being accused, instead of turning himself in to police as promised, Simpson had a friend drive him on a rambling jaunt along southern California's freeways in a white Ford Bronco. The police followed behind at a discrete distance, heeding a warning from Simpson's driver that O.J. had a gun and was threatening to kill himself.

As a national television audience watched Simpson's Bronco moved hypnotically along the freeways. Police cars followed in formation, and crowds formed along freeways, displaying handwritten signs to O.J.

Finally, the Bronco returned to Simpson's west Los Angeles home, where he surrendered just after nightfall. So began what many people called the most famous murder case in American history. ■

Strike Out

The 1994 baseball season ended not with a strikeout or a dramatic home run as it had in 1993 but with a conference call and a fax. On the 34th day of the major league players strike, the team owners canceled the rest of the season, including the playoffs and the World Series.

"This is a sad day," said acting commissioner Bud Selig in a fax distributed to the news media.

Selig's sentiment was echoed by several people associated with baseball. He got no argument from Tony Gwynn of the San Diego Padres, who lost his chance to bat .400 for the season or from Matt Williams, the San Francisco third baseman who lost his shot at matching Roger Maris' season home run record of 62.

Many people associated with baseball were disheartened that Don Mattingly, the first baseman of the New York Yankees, would be denied a chance to appear in postseason play for the first time in his illustrious and Hall of Fame career. The Yankees were in first place in the American League Eastern Division the day the season was called off.

Meanwhile, as a result of the strike, superstar players like Barry Bonds and Ken Griffey Jr. lost more salary in a day than most Americans earn in a year.

But perhaps the individuals who lost the most were the fans, who suffered through a fall with a World Series for the first time since 1904.

The season floundered on the owners' insistence on capping player salaries. The players refused to permit a salary cap, went on strike, and in a little more than a month, the season was canceled.

With a stalemate in the negotiations between players and owners remaining during the latter months of 1994, the start of a 1995 baseball season is threatened. ■

A Love of Mud

Woodstock '94. It rained; it rained some more. Thousands of people crashed the gates.

People with tickets could not get into the concert or had to wait for hours to enter the grounds. Portable toilets overflowed. Food occasionally ran short.

Woodstock '94 looked a lot like the original 1969 rock festival—right down to the fans, who would not have missed the event for the world.

Promoters set up distant parking lots and shuttle buses for the 200,000 people who paid $135 each for tickets—advanced sales only. But about 350,000 people showed up. Many ticket holders could not find a parking space, and some walked up to 12 miles to get to the concert site. A few gave up and went home.

On stage, Bob Dylan, who did not play at Woodstock in 1969, sang, "Just Like a Woman." Joe Cocker wailed, "With a Little Help From My Friends," just like 25 years ago. Melissa Ethridge impersonated Janis Joplin, a late veteran of Woodstock I, singing, "Piece of My Heart."

When the festival was over, the rain-drenched and mud-covered fans lumbered home from the sloppy fairgrounds looking like walking dead—who died smiling. ■

Steppin' Out into Space

A jet-propelled astronaut unhooked his lifelines to the Space Shuttle Discovery and flew free, 150 miles above Earth. It was the first untethered spacewalk in 10 years.

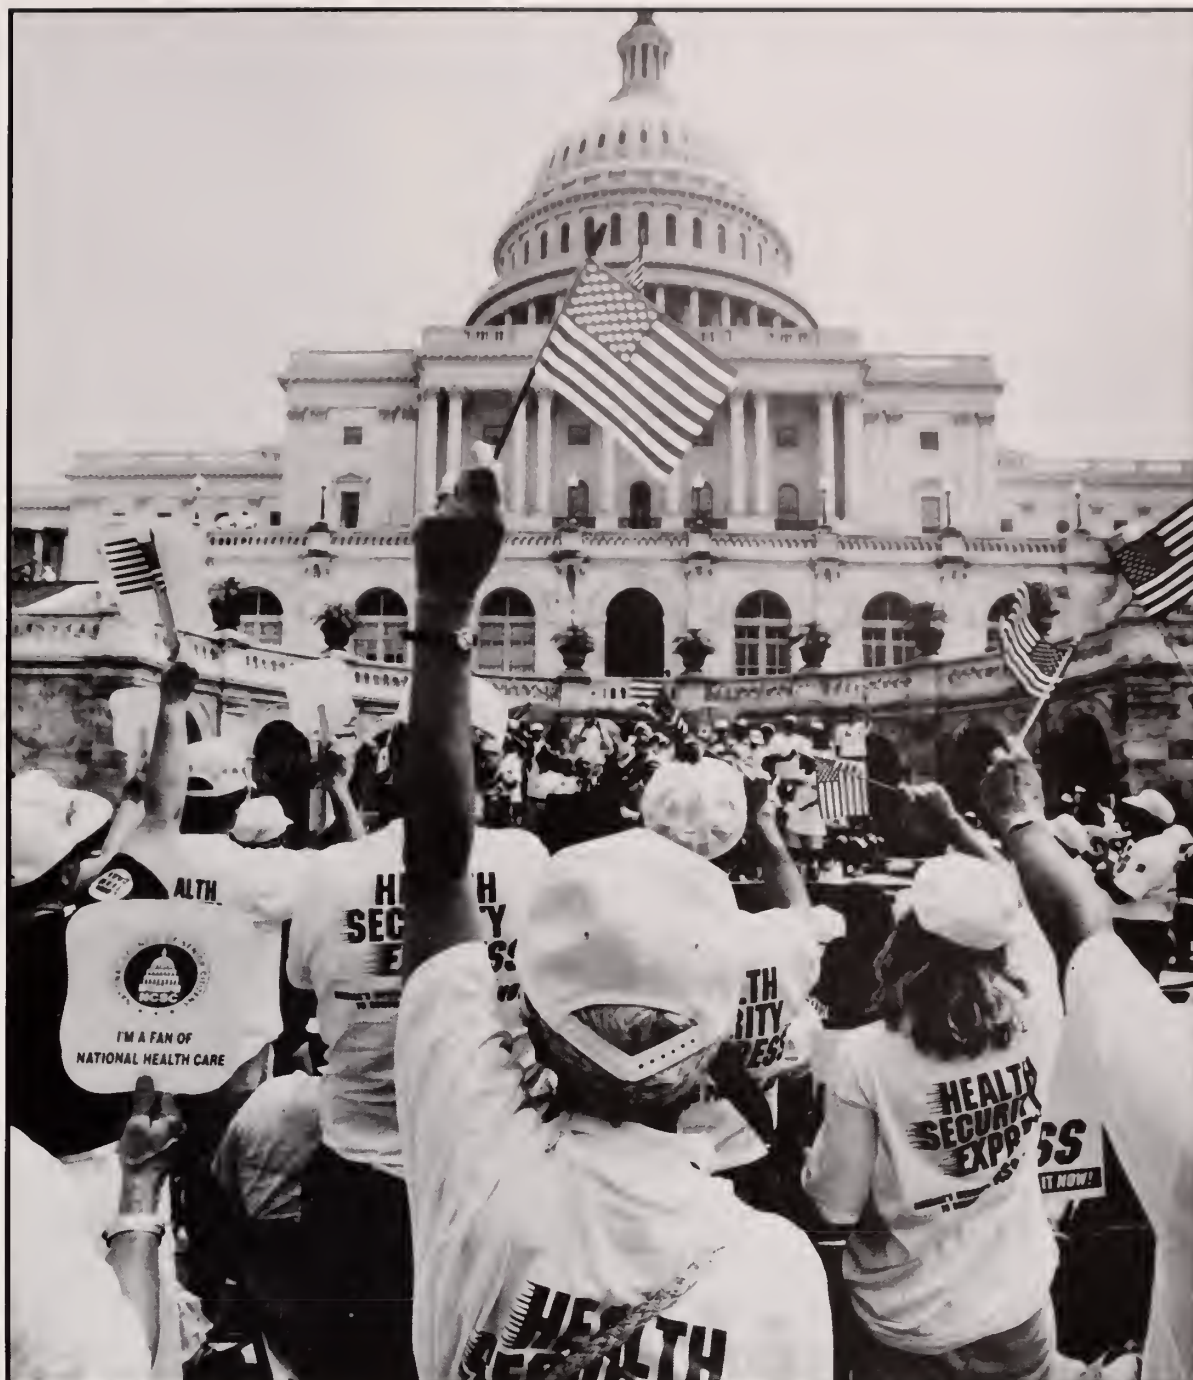

Mark Lee (astronaut in photo) was followed by fellow astronaut Carl Meade. They had but one jet pack between them—it cost $7 million—and had to take turns walking in space.

"This thing works like a champ," Lee said as he hovered over Discovery's cargo bay, firing the pack's 24 tiny nitrogen gas jets for propulsion and steering his path with a joystick.

In the trickiest exercise of the the seven-hour spacewalk, each astronaut propelled himself along the length of the shuttle arm, which was bent at an angle. Then, they scooted from the shoulder of the arm to the elbow, around the band, up to the end, and then back down again—all without using their hands.

The jet pack was designed to be a life preserver for space station crews of the future. It weighs just 83 pounds on Earth but—like everything else—is weightless in space.

Before Lee and Meade stepped out into space, only six astronauts had walked in space without a lifeline to the mother ship. ■

Health Care Reform

If the United States truly had a health care crisis in 1994, you could not have proved it to Congress. Despite the exhortations of President Clinton and the First Lady, the year ended without a significant health care reform as was hoped by many people across the country.

In 1993, President Clinton appointed his wife, Hillary Rodham Clinton, to head a health care task force. After extensive hearings and much research, the group produced a proposal that became famous—or infamous—for its complexity.

Meanwhile, sentiment for change seemed to be limited to the minority of Americans who lacked health insurance or feared losing their coverage under a change in America's health care system. In the absence of a public outcry, there was insufficient support in Congress for the Clinton bill, which called for universal coverage. But the president had promised to veto anything less.

Mrs. Clinton took some of the blame for the failure of the bill.

She said she had underestimated the effectiveness of the opposition and did not realize that the complexity of the administration's plan would deter people from supporting it. ■

Cubans Brave the Gulf

They headed north on almost anything that would float, including rafts made of the flimsiest materials—oil drums, inner tubes, and wooden planks.

They were Cuba's boat people—tens of thousands of people desperate to come to the United States to escape the poverty and hunger of their increasingly isolated island Communist nation.

Many did not make it to the United States because of storms, sinking rafts, or the U.S. Coast Guard, which intercepted more than 1,000 of the craft in one day in early September.

But the flood of migrants receded shortly thereafter. Reversing a 28-year-old policy of not granting Cubans asylum, the United States in 1994 agreed to admit at least 20,000 Cubans a year into the United States.

In return, Cuban leader Fidel Castro promised to halt the flight of boat people. People in Cuba gave rafters a few days to get their crafts off Havana's beaches and made sure no new ones were drawn up. ■

Deaf Woman Wins Miss America Title

The 68th Miss America was 21-year-old Heather Whitestone. After receiving the crown, she signed, "I Love you," amidst thunderous applause from the audience at the Atlantic City Convention Center.

Her slogan in the competition was "Youth Motivation: Anything is Possible." She was proof enough, having lost most of her hearing when she was 18 months old.

Whitestone became Miss America 1995 in part through her talent routine, a two-and-a-half minute ballet performance to music that she could not hear. Instead, she counted the beats in her head and synchronized her dance moves to reflect changes in pitch.

Whitestone said she did not think it would be hard for a deaf woman to be Miss America. "I think I'll do it just fine," said the Birmingham native who reads lips but used an interpreter at a news conference after her victory. "I mean, look at us, we're doing just fine." ■

Jackson Newlyweds Host MTV Awards

It was a match made in tabloid heaven: the child of one of the biggest stars in rock history married the other biggest star in rock history.

Lisa Marie Presley, Elvis's only child, got hitched to the reclusive, world-famous Michael Jackson. After weeks of dodging photographers outside Jackson's Trump Tower apartment in New York City, the couple made a very public coming out; they opened the 1994 MTV Music Video Awards Show, which was broadcast live from the Radio City Music Hall.

After an announcer at the awards ceremony intoned, "Please welcome Mr. and Mrs. Michael Jackson," the newlyweds strolled out onto the stage. "I'm very happy to be here," Mr. Jackson said. "And just think, nobody thought it would last."

The couple held hands during their brief appearance and exchanged a long kiss as the audience cheered wildly. ■

Former President Richard Nixon Dies

by Heather Oliver

On April 22, 1994, the most controversial president in America's history died at the age of 81.

Richard Milhous Nixon was born on Jan. 9, 1913, in Yorba Linda, Calif., 30 miles southeast of Los Angeles.

The 37th president was laid to rest at the Nixon Library in Yorba Linda. He was buried next to his wife, Pat Nixon, only a few feet away from the tiny farmhouse in which he was born. Nixon died in a New York hospital after suffering a major stroke in his home in New Jersey. The stroke had left him partially paralyzed and unable to speak, and he lapsed into coma just before his death.

Four past presidents attended his funeral, Gerald Ford, Jimmy Carter, George Bush, and Bill Clinton. President Clinton gave a eulogy at the funeral service.

The only president ever to resign from office, Nixon left the presidency on Aug. 9, 1974, while facing possible impeachment for his scandalous involvement with the burglary of Democratic national headquarters and other illegal activities.

Nixon began his political career when he was elected to the U.S. House of Representatives. He was proudest of his work on a committee that laid the groundwork for the Marshall Plan and other foreign aid programs. In the House, he also helped to write an act that set up controls over labor unions. In 1948, he was re-elected to the House as the nominee of both the Democratic and Republican parties. He won both of the parties' primaries. Nixon's political career seemed to be on the upswing when he won a seat in the U.S. Senate in 1950. While in the Senate he served on the Labor and Public Welfare Committee.

In 1952, the Republican National Convention nominated Nixon for vice president to run along side with General Dwight D. Eisenhower. Nixon faced some controversy in this campaign. There was a dispute over an $18,000 fund set up by his supporters in California. The fund was set up to enable Nixon to campaign for Republican programs and candidates in election and non-election years. The Democrats called this fund the "secret slush fund." Republican supporters were scared this controversy would hurt Eisenhower's chances of victory and demanded that Nixon withdraw from the race. However, things changed when Nixon addressed the public over television and radio on Sept. 23, 1952. He discussed his personal finances, showing he did not profit personally from the fund. He also gave his famous "Checkers" promise; he vowed to keep Checkers, a cocker spaniel that had been a gift to his daughters. Republicans hailed Nixon and Eisenhower declared Nixon his "boy." The pair went on to defeat their Democratic opponents in the 1952 presidential election.

In 1955, when Eisenhower suffered a stroke, Nixon was put to the test when he took over the duties of president. He again stepped in to run the country when Eisenhower had another illness in June 1956, and a stroke in Nov. 1957.

The dynamic duo of Eisenhower and Nixon again defeated their Democratic opponents in the 1956 presidential election. When it came time for the 1960 election, Republicans wanted to nominate Nelson Rockefeller of New York; however, he withdrew, and the Republicans nominated Nixon. The Democrats nominated the young John F. Kennedy for president and Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas for vice president. The two nominees were the first ever to use the television to argue campaign issues face-to-face. Nixon lost to Kennedy by 119,450 votes, the closest election since Grover Cleveland defeated James G. Blaine in 1884.

After his first presidential election, Nixon ran against democrat Edmund G. (Pat) Brown for Governor of California. Nixon lost the election by 300,000 votes.

He then moved to New York City in 1963 and began a law practice, becoming a prominent Wall Street lawyer. In Feb., 1968 Nixon announced his candidacy for the Republican presidential nominee. The convention nominated Governor Spiro T. Agnew of Maryland as his running mate. Nixon pledged to make peace in Vietnam and to begin a program termed "new nationalism." He also promised to bridge the "generation gap" and to listen to "the heart and conscience" of the American people.

In the election, Nixon defeated Vice President Hubert Humphrey by only about 812,000 votes. In his first term (1969 to 1973), he managed to mend ties with the biggest foreign nemesis: the Communist world. He reopened relations with the People's Republic of China and reduced the number of American troops in Vietnam. In 1970, he set up the Envi-

In the 1972 election, Nixon and his running mate Agnew won the presidential election by a landslide, receiving over 17 million more popular votes than George McGovern—the widest margin of any U.S. presidential election. Even though Nixon won the '72 election Nixon's relations with Congress grew increasingly strained. He angered many congressmen by not supporting their programs, claiming they were wasteful. Nixon also suffered a blow when Congress forced him to end U.S. bombing in Kampuchea.

The all-famous Watergate scandal hit the White House in 1973 despite Nixon's efforts to block the investigations. Congress, Judge John Sirica, and the U.S. Supreme Court pried the case open. The investigation determined that there was a burglary of Democratic Headquarters in the Watergate building in Washington, D.C., on June 17, 1972. Employees of Nixon's reelection committee were arrested and convicted of burglary. In 1973, evidence linked top White House aides with either the break-in or later attempts to hide information related to the burglary.

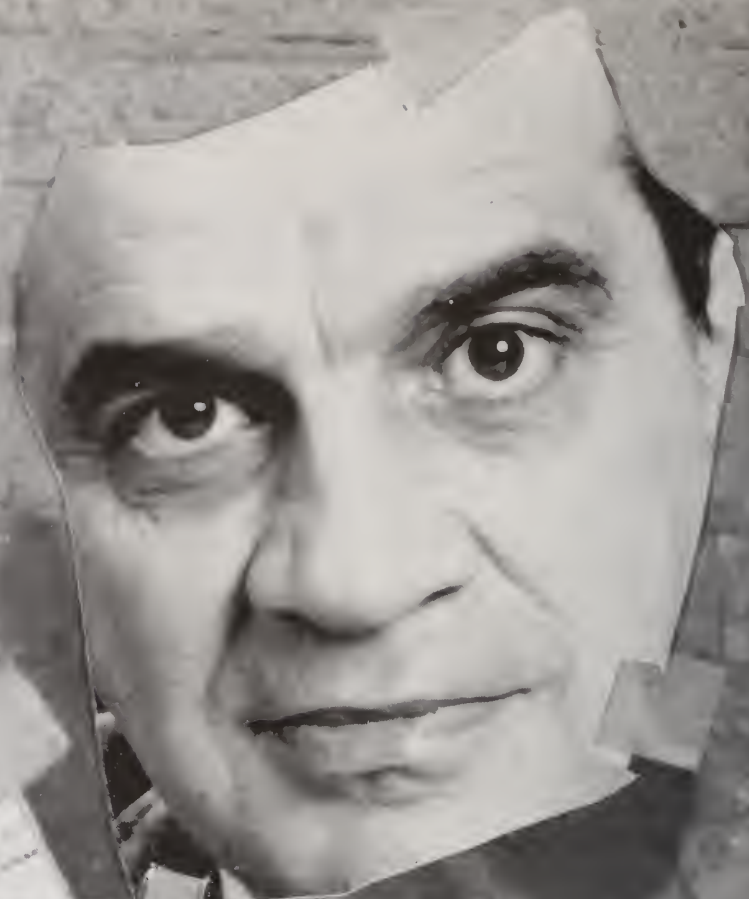

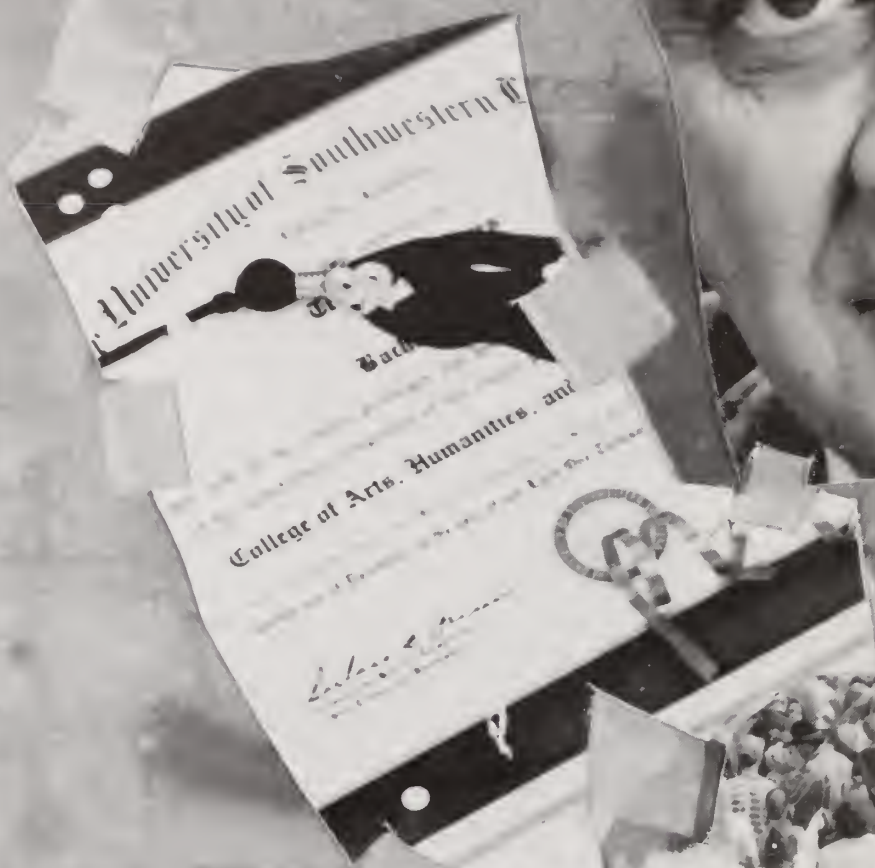

Head investigator, Archibald Cox, ordered Nixon to give up secret tape recordings that he had made of his conversations in his White House offices beginning in 1971. Nixon refused to give up the tapes and argued that the Constitution gives a President the implied right to maintain the confidentiality of private presidential conversations.

On Oct. 10, 1973, the resignation of Vice President Agnew stunned the nation. Nixon became the first President to appoint a Vice President under procedures established by the 25th Amendment. Gerald Ford took over Agnew's position.

On August 5, 1974, Nixon released records of taped conversations that severely damaged his chances of avoiding impeachment. The tapes showed that Nixon approved a Watergate cover-up.

On August 9, Nixon resigned with over two years remaining in his second term. ■

The USL Walk of Honor Mark Chretien Graduates to be Permanent Part of Campus GROWS

Becky Aloise

The More Things Change . . .

Years from now, if you ever come back to visit the campus of your alma mater, USL, don't be surprised if you find that your name is permanently etched in the sidewalk and not because you wrote it in the wet cement with a stick or twig.

Work began in 1994 to engrave on bricks the names of every person who ever graduated from USL and then to place the bricks year by year on the arched walkway that surrounds the campus quadrangle.

The USL Walk of Honor, which will eventually have bricks for each member of USL graduating classes since 1903, was the brainchild of former Alumni Association President Kenneth Ardoin.

"Without you (the students) the university as we know it would not exist," Ardoin said. The Alumni Association believes it is important that all graduates be recognized for their accomplishments at the university. That is why the names will be permanently displayed in the Walk of Honor. The walk honors all who have fulfilled their commitment toward a college degree," Ardoin added.

Liz B. Landry, the current USL alumni director, is heading the effort at continuing the progression of the Walk of Honor. "This is a huge undertaking," Landry said. "Our goal is to be completed by the year 2000, the centennial of the university. At that point, there should be a brick for every person who graduated from SLII, SLI, or USL."

USL was known as the Southwestern Louisiana Industrial Institute until 1921 and then became Southwestern Louisiana Institute. The school's name was changed to the University of Southwestern Louisiana in 1960.

The Walk of Honor is already in progress, and as of April 1995, bricks had been placed on the walk for graduates through the beginning of the 1950s. The walk begins on the south side of Martin Hall and will eventually enclose the quadrangle, ending on the opposite side of Martin Hall. If additional space is needed for the walk in the future—for the graduates of the 21st century—plans are for the walk to take a turn on St. Mary Boulevard and then proceed down Johnston Street to the Alumni Center.

Each graduate of USL will be a permanent part of a growing feature of the university's campus. Each graduate will be honored with a one-quarter-inch brick tile engraved with their name.

The bricks are being placed on the walk alphabetically and by year of graduation. At each decade (1940, 1950, etc.) a special tile is being added as a marker to recount important news events from the decade.

"Our biggest problem at this point is securing funding for the project," said Landry. "Right now, we've completed tiles up until about 1952. The tiles cost about $10 each. We hope to one day be able to ask students to pay for their own tile when they graduate, but at this point, we're mainly soliciting donations from alumni to try and get caught up. Once we can really get the ball rolling, we believe that the Walk of Honor can be a tremendous asset to an already beautiful campus." ■

Volume 76 of L'Acadien was published by Taylor Publishing Company, 1550 W. Mockingbird, Dallas, TX, 75235, using offset lithography.

The book was published through an open-bid contract with the University of Southwestern Louisiana Office of Purchasing. An assessment of $12 per full-time undergraduate student was included in the fall semester registration to fund the production.

The book was produced using Macintosh computers. All layouts and typesetting were produced in-house by staff. Camera ready laser proofs were printed in-house. 88MB Syquest cartridges containing computer layouts of the book were sent to Taylor for reproduction and binding.

Basic body copy in the book is Cheltenham. Other type styles include Avant Garde, Dom Casual, Helvetica, Mistral, Tekton, and University Roman.

The editor in chief was selected in the Spring of 1994 by the vice president of Student Affairs. The selection was made based on recommendations by the USL Communication Committee. The committee reviewed student applications and held personal interviews with applicants.

The editor then chose the rest of the staff based on applications and personal interviews.

Decisions concerning operational policy and content of L'Acadien are the responsibility of the editor in chief.

The theme, "The More Things Change..." was developed by the staff. The cover was designed by the editor in chief and reproduced by Taylor. Layouts were created by the art director and assistant art director and approved by the editor in chief.

Copy was assigned to staff and contributing writers by the assignments editor. Upon submission of the copy by the writers, it was edited by both the copy editor and managing editor. Layouts were edited by the art director and managing editor. The editor in chief was responsible for the final editing of all pages.

Photographs were chosen by the editor in chief. Most of the black and white photos were shot, processed, and printed by staff or contributing photographers. Color photos were shot by staff or contributing photographers and processed and printed by a local processing service. Student and faculty portraits were submitted by USL Parking and Transit in conjunction with the student identification card process. Fraternity and sorority member portraits were submitted by national composite picture companies and local photographers. Who's Who honoree portraits were submitted by a local photographer. News photos were supplied by Worldwide Press.

The 1994 L'Acadien, Volume 76, is copyrighted and may not be reproduced in any form, except for educational purposes, without prior written consent of the current editor in chief, the USL Communication Committee, or the USL vice president of Student Affairs.

“The police report read that we were uncooperative, aggressive to the police, and that we had a bad attitude. We didn't do that at all.”

—Gerald Green, who was asked to leave the Student Union because he and his friends were allegedly loitering.

 the legislature for Louisiana's higher education system creates $1.40 in new dollars for the state. What businessman would turn down the chance to make that kind of return on an investment? It's a dollars and cents decision.

—William H. Fenstermaker, past president of the Greater Lafayette Chamber of Commerce on Louisiana's Higher Education System
